

Speener to face 3 felony charges

Three criminal charges of misconduct in public office, involving an alleged kickback, personal long distance telephone calls and an unauthorized pay raise, will be filed against Eugene K. Speener, superintendent of the Outagamie County Health Center.

The felony counts, which Dist. Atty. John Ensley said he will sign Friday or Monday, result from a three-month John Doe investigation into several areas of county government and labor unions.

The misconduct charges will allege that Speener:

— Accepted a $125 television set, for his personal use, in return for his purchase of three barrels of floor wax and three barrels of cleaner for the Health Center in mid-1971. Hyde Park

Eugene Speener

Chemical Co. of New York was named as the donor of the television set.

Unlawfully authorized a $123.50 a month pay raise for James Mulholland, Health Center accountant, last January. John Doe testimony revealed that the Health Center Board of Trustees did not authorize the raise.

— Charged numerous personal long distance telephone calls to the county between Jan. 1, 1970 and Aug. 1, 1973. Testimony revealed the calls were to a personal acquaintance in Racine.

Speener's attorney, Robert W. Swain, was at a press conference this morning which was called by Ensley and County Judge R. Thomas Cane, who presided over most of the Doe. Swain said Speener had not been informed of the charges and he did not know how he would plead when he appears in County Judge Nick F. Schaefer's court next week.

If convicted, Speener faces a maximum penalty of one year in prison and a $500 fine on each of the three counts.

Speener apparently will be the only Health Center employe to be charged.

Cane told reporters today that there were other statements about misconduct at the Health Center made during Doe testimony, "but as many times happens, there were rumors that couldn't be substantiated. Cane did not elaborate.

Speener and Mulholland were among

U.S. appears set for Israeli supply effort

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States appears to be laying the groundwork for a major resupply effort for Israel should that nation suffer continuing heavy losses in its war with Syria and Egypt.

But knowledgeable officials stress that no decision has been made. They say the United States is concentrating on a diplomatic drive to find a concensus with the Soviet Union and other powers for at least a ceasefire to end the fighting, and more preferably for a framework for a lasting negotiated settlement.

"We're in close and continuing contact with the government of Israel," said Robert J. McCloskey, a State Department spokesman. At the same time, he said that a massive airlift of Soviet supplies to Egypt and Syria, reportedly under way, "would tend to put a new face on the situation" both for Israeli forces in the field and for the United States.

Witnesses reported, meanwhile, that a Boeing 707 transport plane bearing Israeli markings was loaded with Sparrow and Sidewinder Air-to-Air missiles at the Oceana Naval Air Station near Norfolk, Va. Officials described this as a patchwork resupply effort and not the kind of major rescue operation that Israel would need should it lose ground to its Arab foes.

Other observers said Israel undoubtedly already has asked Washington to speed up delivery of F4 Phantom jets and other weapons promised in contracts for shipment this year and next.

A key element in the decision evidently is whether Israel or Syria and Egypt obtain the upper hand in the field. At this point, senior U.S. officials say, a decisive turn has not yet been reached.

At the White House and elsewhere in the government there was no indication that the U.S. was making much headway in, as McCloskey described it, "attempting to crystalize a concensus."

The Israeli military command announced its ground forces crossed the cease-fire line in the Golan Heights today and staged hit-and-run commando raids across the Suez Canal.

Israeli air and naval raids on Syrian and Egyptian positions along the Mediterranean coast and Suez Canal were also confirmed by Arab communiques. They reported the attacks were repelled and claimed 86 Israeli planes had been shot down.

Israeli gunboats during the night shelled the Syrian port of Latakia and the Banias terminal for the Iraqi oil pipeline. Israel claimed two Syrian missile boats sunk without any Israeli loss, while the Syrians claimed eight Israeli boats and a Greek freighter were sunk.

In the Golan Heights, Israel reported its forces were attacking Syrian armored and infantry forces guarding the road to Damascus.

The Egyptians have reported penetrating nine miles east of the canal into Israeli-occupied Sinai and a communique today reported an Egyptian armored force had encircled fleeing Israeli tanks and destroyed an entire column.

Western visitors to the Egyptian front Wednesday reported forces and supplies continued to move across the canal to reinforce the Egyptian positions.

Syria and Egypt, involved in the fighting since its outbreak six days ago, were joined in battle Wednesday by Iraq. Jordan, which has a long frontier with Israel and fought in the six-day war in 1967, has mobilized its reserves and was reported under heavy pressure to enter the war on the Arab side.

Philippine Air Line Jet is hijacked

HONG KONG (AP) — Three armed Filipinos hijacked a Philippine Air Line jet today on an interisland flight, took the airline president hostage in Manila, then flew to Hong Kong, military authorities said.

The hijackers surrendered at the Hong Kong airport after several hours of negotiations. The crew and the airline president were reportedly unharmed.

The hijackers had released the plane's 64-passengers at the stop in Manila.

A government spokesman said the three young men surrendered after being informed that Philippines President Ferdinand E. Marcos had granted them amnesty.

There was no immediate reason given for the hijacking by the men, whose identities were not known.

After they landed at the Hong Kong airport, they told authorities they wanted political asylum.

Rancudo said two of hijackers held a stewardess and woman passenger with homemade .22-caliber pistols at their heads, while a third man brandished what he said was a hand grenade.

The three seized the BAC111 jetliner in Bacolod, a central Philippine sugar town about 300 miles south of Manila. They apparently overpowered an air marshal assigned to the flight and ordered the plane flown to Manila.

After resigning

Nixon seeks quick action on nominee

BY JEAN HELLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon sought the counsel of Republicans and top Democrats today on a vice presidential successor to Spiro T. Agnew, who quit, admitting federal income tax evasion.

Nixon has told the political leaders he wants by tonight any suggestions or advice they have on naming a nominee to succeed Agnew. Nixon also has sought the advice of congressional leaders on procedures for picking a new vice president.

The Constitution says only that a nomination will be made by the president and is subject to the approval of both houses of Congress.

After talking with the President Wednesday evening, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said Nixon expected to nominate a successor later this week or early next week. Mansfield and House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., met with Nixon after a meeting the President had with four top Republican congressional leaders — Sens. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, and Reps. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan and Leslie C. Arends of Illinois.

Agnew resigned Wednesday afternoon shortly before he faced U.S. District Court Judge Walter E. Hoffman in a Baltimore courtroom.

Agnew pleaded no contest to a criminal tax evasion charge that he filed a false joint income tax statement for 1967 that reported income of $26,099 and taxes of $6,416, when in fact his income was $55,599 and he owed taxes of $19,967.

Additional stories and photos on A12

Reading from a prepared statement held in trembling hands, Agnew told Hoffman, "I did receive payments in 1967 which I failed to report for the purposes of income taxation ...At no time have I enriched myself at the expense of the public trust."

Hoffman said he regarded Agnew's no contest plea as an admission of guilt.

"As far as the court is involved the defendant is on trial for wilful evasion of income taxes for the calendar year 1967, which charge is a felony in the eyes of the law," the judge said. "He has entered a plea of nolo contendere (no contest) which, so far as this criminal prosecution is concerned, is the full equivalent of the plea of guilty."

Hoffman sentenced Agnew to three years unsupervised probation and fined him $10,000.

Agnew's resignation and plea were his part of an agreement reached with Justice Department officials who agreed not to pursue charges of bribery, extortion and conspiracy against him. Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson had personally directed the federal investigation of Agnew and described the evidence as damaging.

In an unusual move, the Justice Department released through the court a 40-page document detailing the evidence amassed against Agnew on all charges, including those that were dropped.

Agnew said he was innocent of all the charges except the one on which he entered his plea.

Have compassion, consideration for Agnew, Richardson suggests

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson, urging consideration and compassion for Spiro T. Agnew, said today he hopes "the American people understand and support" the agreement that led to the vice president's resignation and admission of income tax evasion.

To that end, Richardson told a nationally televised news conference, he felt it was essential that the case government prosecutors had assembled against Agnew be made public.

He said only with knowledge of that prosecution case could the American people judge the fairness of the outcome.

Richardson said President Nixon did not participate in the plea bargaining negotiations on the Agnew case, but, as President, had to be satisfied that the arrangement was in the public interest.

The agreement embraced Agnew's resignation as vice president, a government appeal for leniency and publication of the case against Agnew in an investigation of tax evasion, alleged bribery and extortion.

In that account of the case, made public Wednesday, government prosecutors said Agnew, yearning for riches beyond his grasp, cast aside the law and reaped thousands of dollars as the kingpin in a shadowy scheme of shakedowns.

For at least a decade, Agnew actively encouraged the undercover kickback tradition known only to an inner circle of Maryland politicians and contractors seeking state business, the government claimed Wednesday.

He complained often that the demands of public office required a lavishness he could not afford on his salary alone. The contractors helped with frequent cash gifts, knowing they would be rewarded with lucrative state contracts, the prosecutors said.

The scheme was described in detail in a 40-page outline filed by U.S. Atty. George Beall with the district judge who accepted Agnew's no contest plea to a tax evasion charge. The plea was entered moments after Agnew quit the vice presidency.

Agnew admitted he had received payments in 1967 and that he knew the money was taxable. He denied the other allegations and said he took part only in "a long-established pattern of political fund-raising in the state."

The outline of evidence was remarkable for its graphic and unprecedented portrayal of wrongdoing by the nation's second highest officer.

The accusations focused on Agnew's relationships with four of his friends and business associates:

—J. H. "Bud" Hammerman, a wealthy Baltimore banker and real estate tycoon who allegedly acted as bag man for payoff.

—Jerome B. Wolff, a lawyer and engineer appointed by Agnew as Maryland Roads Commission chairman, now president of the engineering firm of Greiner Environmental Systems Inc.

—Allen Green, president of Green Associates Inc., one of the Maryland engineering firms that received hefty state contracts during the Agnew administration.

—Lester Matz, president of Matz, Childs and Associates Inc. and a sister firm that also basked in Agnew's favor.

Though Richardson said none of the major witnesses was granted immunity from prosecution, the document said Matz and Wolff were assured that their sworn statements would not be used "in

Opposition surfaces to naming of Connally

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Republicans met today to discuss possible successors to former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew amid a strong undercurrent of bipartisan opposition to former Gov. John C. Connally of Texas.

Nixon told congressional leaders and a close aide Wednesday he plans to name a strong vice president who shares his foreign policy views, a description fitting Democrats-turned-Republican Connally.

And an usually well-informed Capitol Hill Republican said "If it's anybody but Connally, I'll be shocked."

Republicans were preparing lists of possible nominees for submission to the White House by late today. Several said, however, they thought that procedure was "a charade" that won't influence Nixon's thinking.

Some GOP senators said they fear public opposition to a Connally designation might prompt Nixon to name him, while a leading Democratic senator was quoted as saying "If the President names Connally, that would split both parties."

One congressional source predicted flatly that a Connally nomination would be rejected by the Senate. Democrats control both houses of Congress, and both must approve the President's choice.

Some Democrats are already mapping plans to fight a Connally nomination, another source reported.

Word that New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller was interested in the nomination came both from Republican senators and Rep. Peter Peyser, R-N.Y., who said through a spokesman as House GOP members met that he had received a phone call from the governor expressing an "active interest" in the post.

In the Senate, the liberal and moderate Republicans who form the Wednesday Group held a breakfast discussion about the situation but reached no conclusions.

Besides the names of Connally, Rockefeller and California Gov. Ronald Reagan, all potential 1976 contenders, and a series of less political senior GOP statesmen, there was some talk that Nixon might make a surprise choice of a lesser known person.

Names mentioned in that respect were former congressman and White House aide Donald Rumsfeld, now U.S. ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization; former Sen. John J. Williams of Delaware and former California Lt. Gov. Robert Finch.

More Corona victims?

YUBA CITY, Calif. (AP) — The prosecutor who won conviction of Juan Corona for the murders of 25 California farm workers says he is looking for a second mass graveyard. He believes there may be as many as 14 more buried victims.

Sutter County Dist. Atty. G. Dave Teja said a 26th hacked and stabbed body has been "unquestionably" tied to the case. He said that additional evidence exists indicating there may have been a total of 38 to 44 victims.

"All of us connected with the investigation believe that someplace in Northern California there is another graveyard," Teja said.

There is evidence Corona buried victims of different races in separate areas, and that the "Mexican graveyard" is still undiscovered, Teja said.

Although Corona was convicted last February after a six-month trial and is serving 25 consecutive life sentences in state prison, Teja said the investigation of the case remains open.

He said detectives investigated sites this summer in four rural Northern California counties where he believes a graveyard containing the bodies of Mexican-American victims may eventually be found.

He said a brutally beaten body of a transient farm worker was found in January 1970 about 75 miles north of the Yuba City orchards where 25 hacked and stabbed bodies were unearthed in 1971.

Teja said the Tehama County victim, who is still unidentified, suffered similar wounds, and was listed as an unsolved murder.

But he said he believes that victim, of Mexican ancestry, is the same person referred to in an entry in the "death ledger" which played a large part in Corona's trial. That entry was "Sanchez Oct. 12, 1969." The ledger book contained 34 names and dates which experts said were in Corona's handwriting. Teja described it to jurors as a "death list."

Explaining his theory that there is a still-undiscovered graveyard, Teja said 24 of the men Corona was convicted of murdering were American-born transients of Anglo-Saxon ancestry and the 25th was black. But the "death ledger" included several Spanish surnames, and a now-lost second ledger is believed to contain more Spanish names, the district attorney said.

Teja said the one black victim's grave was isolated from the graves of the others discovered near Yuba City.

Partisan reaction mildest at the top

MADISON, Wis. (AP) —Spiro T. Agnew's portrait vanished from the wall of a Republican Senate caucus room while Wisconsin political reaction to his resignation Wednesday ranged from Republican anguish to Democratic satisfaction.

A caucus spokesman was asked about the Agnew photograph which had been mounted beside that of President Nixon, and replied: "Spiro who?"

Several Democrats said they would be happy to see Nixon resign also. Yet partisan reaction to the Agnew scandal was mildest at the top.

Democratic Gov. Patrick J. Lucey called it "sad news indeed for all Americans," saying Agnew's resignation "will avoid additional damage to the high office he has held."

Atty. Gen. Robert W. Warren, the GOP's highest state public office holder, said: "Who would have thought last January that this would be happening: Watergate, the Arab-Israeli war and Agnew's resignation."

State GOP chairman David C. Sullivan said he fears the Agnew maneuver may prevent Congress or the courts from determining the validity of "the allegations of bribery and graft."

Pleading no contest "to tax evasion tells the American public nothing about whether there was any misfeasance or malfeasance on the part of the vice president," Sullivan said.

Donald O. Peterson, Democratic national committeeman, censured Agnew as "one of those sanctimonious sams who were running around the country pointing the finger at everyone else."

Agnew's resignation and tax conviction is "divine retribution" Peterson said.

Agnew made four political visits to Wisconsin in five years, raising an estimated $500,000 for GOP treasuries.

Former Republican Gov. Warren P. Knowles said it "comes as a blow to me to find that he was involved," adding: "I regarded him as Mr. Clean."

Rep. David R. Obey, D-Wis., said the Agnew scandal demonstrates "the importance of exercising great care in selection of our nation's top leaders."

Rep. Robert W. Kastenmeier, D-Wis., said he is not certain "whether the full measure of justice has been meted out" to Agnew.

As Congress selects the next vice president, "the prime hallmark of that man or woman should be integrity," Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., said.

"I'm still slightly numb," Republican Sen. James Swan of Elkhorn said.

The state senator, an Agnew booster, said: "I can't make any comment until I know whether he is being loyal to a higher source."

Democratic Sen. Henry Dorman of Racine was less surprised.

"What is so strange about that? I am ambivalent about it," he said, adding: "A tragedy to the vice president or the president is a tragedy to us all."

Secretary of State Robert Zimmerman, a veteran Republican office holder, said he had no comment.

Sen. Raymond Johnson, Republican majority leader in the Senate, said the development shows the law must be followed by everybody.

"The law applies to everyone," Johnson said.

The Senate Democratic minority leader, Fred Risser of Madison, said Agnew's decision solves only half a problem.

"Now, President Nixon ought to resign so we can make it a clean house," Risser said.

Marge Pattison, vice chairman of the state Democratic party, said Agnew's action was "only a small part of their political problems."

Sen. Robert Knowles of New Richmond, an official at recent GOP national conventions, said Nixon has a choice of appointing a caretaker vice president who is not interested in the presidency, or somebody who could build up prestige in three years for the 1976 nomination.

Knowles mentioned former Texas Democratic Gov. John Connolly, Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee and Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois.

Some statehouse Democrats appeared outwardly pleased with Agnew's decision.

"One down and one to go," a secretary for Democratic state Treasurer Charles Smith remarked.

"I think he did what he should have done some weeks ago," Frank Nikolay, chairman of Sen. George McGovern's 1972 campaign in Wisconsin, said.

"The only shortcoming that I can see is that he didn't take the President with him," Nikolay added.

Nikolay said there was no question that plea bargaining was involved.

"I am not sure that a citizen of lesser stature would be in a position to trade off a picayune income charge for a number of alleged larger ones," he said.

"It is a sad thing for the country," Michael Bleicher, vice chairman of McGovern's Wisconsin organization, said.

"It is just unfortunate for our democracy that this thing had to happen. But it also shows the strengths of our system, that the president and vice president are not above the law," he said.

Bleicher, chairman of the mathematics department at the University of Wisconsin, said he was not surprised.

"It is reassuring to the world and the American people that our legal system is capable of leading to the highest level of government to assess guilt," Bleicher said.

He accused the Nixon administration of having a "tolerance to corruption and an attitude of permissiveness in high places."

State Sen. Dale McKenna, D-Jefferson, commented facetiously: "This will seriously impede his chances to run for high office."

Albert happy as House Speaker

WASHINGTON (AP) — Until President Nixon picks a vice president and has his choice confirmed by Congress, the next in line for the presidency will be a man who already has a job he likes better.

Carl Albert wanted to be speaker of the House of Representatives from the day he entered Congress in 1947, and when he made it in 1971 he declared his highest political ambition had been achieved.

Any disclaimer of interest in being president by a politician is usually regarded with skepticism, but in Albert's case there is no reason to doubt it.

For one thing, at age 65 there is little likelihood of his being nominated by the Democrats—unless, of course, he should succeed to the office while a replacement for Spiro T. Agnew is being found.

But more importantly, Albert seems genuinely convinced that the House of Representatives, as the branch of government closest to the people, is the ideal place for a public servant to be, and that the head man of the House has the ideal job.

Albert formed his opinion about the House as a schoolboy in the tiny southeastern Oklahoma town of Bug Tussle. The area's congressman visited the two-room schoolhouse one day and his talk about Congress and Washington fired the imagination of the little barefoot boy, who even now stands only 5 feet, 4 inches tall with his shoes on.

Albert went on to win national scholastic honors in oratory and a Rhodes scholarship to postgraduate studies at Oxford University.

He came home from England in the midst of the Depression and had to put aside his political ambitions to make a living, first as an office clerk in Oklahoma City and then as a lawyer for an oil company.

While serving as a legal officer during World War II, he met and married a pretty Pentagon clerk named Mary Harmon. They have a daughter, 25, who teaches school in Washington, and a son, 18, who is a freshman at Harvard.

Albert got his chance to come to Congress in 1946 when the incumbent congressman decided the night before the filing deadline not to run for reelection. Albert raced to Oklahoma City to beat the deadline and plunged into a campaign against three other candidates in the Democratic primary. He won by 359 votes and hasn't had any trouble being elected since. A fellow freshman in the class that entered Congress that year was Richard Nixon.

Even before he was elected, Albert had formed a friendship with the late Speaker Sam Rayburn, whose Texas district bordered Albert's, and Rayburn took the eager young Oklahoman under his wing. In 1954 he made Albert the Democratic whip and in 1961, when Rayburn died, Albert moved up to majority leader.

He achieved his goal of speaker when John McCormick retired in 1970.

After a shaky start in the last Congress, Albert has succeeded in welding the House Democrats into a more effective majority and has led a reform movement that has brought him more power than any speaker has enjoyed since "Czar" Joe Cannon died in the early 1900s.

Agnew kept own counsel after LA speech, caught newsmen off guard

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spiro THEODORE Agnew, a man of intense pride, a vice president who relished the platform and prestige of his office, had kept his own counsel in the past two weeks.

Some Agnew-watchers — mostly a small coterie of Washington-based newsmen who dogged his movements — saw his face becoming grimmer. But if anything he did or said in public appearances foretold the stunning decision to resign, they did not detect it.

The visible signs appeared to point in a different direction after his Sept. 29 speech in Los Angeles where, in a strident outburst of self-defense, Agnew told an audience of Republican women that he was being framed in a Maryland corruption case. He declared that he would not quit —even if indicted.

That dramatic speech appeared to have achieved Agnew's purpose, a silencing of rampant press speculation that he was on the verge of resigning.

Despite emotional outpourings of partisan sympathy from the GOP women and similar support from around the United States, some persons close to Agnew believe the Los Angeles speech is what actually spelled his doom as the nation's second-highest elected official.

"The White House didn't like it, especially his attack on the Justice Department for the news leaks and for trying to destroy him politically," said one member of the vice president's camp. "Whatever favor he had left with Nixon probably was gone after that."

Noted throughout his career as a skillful blender of good luck and political opportunism, Agnew was a former Democrat turned Republican who had won the Maryland governor's chair with much liberal support, against an opponent considered a racist extremist.

He originally backed the presidential candidacy of Nelson A. Rockefeller in 1968 and was caught unawares when the New York governor withdrew without warning from contention.

But his vigorous condemnation of black leaders in the riots following the death of Dr. Martin Luther King in April of that year attracted Nixon's attention and in a major surprise, Agnew was chosen over Massachusetts Gov. John A. Volpe to be Nixon's running mate.

As vice president, he never developed an affinity for Capitol Hill and seldom visited the Senate where one of his duties was to serve as president. Only once in his nearly five years in office did he cast a vote to break a Senate tie. That was earlier this year on the Alaska pipeline bill.

After a period of speculation about his political future, Agnew was again chosen by Nixon as his running mate in 1972. He pledged to abandon his controversial stance and by confining the campaign to issues, to erase his reputation as a GOP hatchet man.

After the Watergate scandal broke, the fact that Agnew had been frozen out by Nixon became a political plus that caused his potential as a Republican presidential contender in 1976 to rise sharply.

Some polls showed him the front runner among Republicans, although he lagged behind Massachusetts Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, whom many considered the leading Democratic hopeful. Agnew himself said he had made no decisions but that if he decided to run, "I'll run to win, and I can win."

It was this situation that prevailed in early August when the disclosures came that Agnew was under investigation and facing possible indictment for bribery, extortion, conspiracy and tax fraud in a kickback probe dating back to his years as Baltimore County executive and governor.

Not exactly an admission of guilt

WASHINGTON (AP) —In pleading nolo contendere, or no contest, to a tax-evasion charge Wednesday, former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew did not officially admit guilt, but the legal device has about the same effect as a guilty plea.

Black's Law Dictionary defines the Latin term as "a plea in a criminal action having the same legal effect as a plea of guilty so far as regards all proceedings" involving a charge against a defendant.

No-contest permits a defendant to expedite termination of a case without having to admit guilt.

U.S. District Court Judge Walter E. Hoffman, who accepted Agnew's plea in Baltimore, said he considered it "the full equivalent of a plea of guilty." He noted that nolo contendere pleas are frequently granted in tax cases.

University students not surprised

BY MAUREEN BLANEY
Post-Crescent staff writer

Students at Lawrence University on the night of Spiro Agnew's resignation generally expressed the feeling that the vice president's action had been expected. Any reactions of surprise were tempered with the thought that it was an unusual step in the light of Agnew's recent firm denials of wrongdoing.

Fred Gannett, 19, said he was not particularly surprised. He said if Agnew is guilty of the charges he should not have chosen to run or stay on. "And the charges against Nixon put a peculiar light on the action," he noted.

"Perhaps Agnew was a tool to sidelight the spotlight on Nixon. It's strange that he did resign in the light of statements he's been making." He questioned how much of the decision was Agnew's and how much was forced on him by Nixon or the attorney general.

Tom Gellman, 19, said he was not really surprised. "It was the most logical thing to do, avoiding a constitutional crisis." He commented that though the vice president's position is only a figurehead, it will be difficult to find a new vice president. Nixon will have to find a respected man with no political ambitions. "No Democratic Congress is going to confirm a man with political ambitions for the next presidentital election," he added.

Wilmington, Del. native Tom Hughes said Agnew's resignation was "a wise thing to do, as long as we get a new vice president really quick. I just hope Congress doesn't make the procedure too long."

Dennis Garvey, 21, said he felt there wouldn't be much change in the nation. "Everyone was kind of prepared for it, expected it to happen. Too many people are apathetic. But Nixon could benefit from the action. He could pick a vice president that has a good record and make himself look good," he added.

Michael Johnson, 20, said he thought Agnew should have resigned sooner. "There was so much evidence against him, it was pretty futile. Everything was going against him. It's going to shake up a lot of people who actually believed Agnew was not guilty."

Debbie Dodor said Agnew had to do something because "things were looking pretty grim." She said there probably won't be much of a national reaction. "Nixon's lost so much credibility, it not going to have that much of an effect. Everything's going downhill, it had to come."

"The way he's stated it, he's said he's guilty. He's not better than anyone else, he's not a privileged person," said Sandra Thein, 25. She expects little reaction because people are "already so dissatisfied with Dick and his policies."

One 20-year-old male student said he was surprised that the situation could have been allowed to become that extreme. But he had the impression that Agnew had been set up, he said. He said the resignation will cut deeper into the public distrust and lack of security in the present administration.

John Hernandez, 18, said he was not surprised by crooks in politics, but expressed the hope that the action will "open eyes. Maybe people will put more interest into things."

James Walgren, 22, a former LU student, said that "morally, Agnew should have resigned earlier and not waited until he got caught."

"It will shake a lot of confidence on a number of levels," said Mark Dommer, 19. "The grass roots Republican party had no idea of the reality of the widespread corruption in the Nixon administration."

The only interviewed student who felt Agnew should not have resigned said that the action can't have a good effect. Robert Wermeth, 18, said that most charges brought against Agnew were allegations. "I hope nothing too bad happens as a result. The press has been a little hard on him, but you can't place the blame on anyone."

Hope remains for U. S., state politicians insist

BY FRANK CHURCH
Post-Crescent staff writer

Area political leaders, although stunned and disheartened by the resignation and court appearance of Vice President Spiro Agnew Wednesday, saw hope for the country's political future.

Republicans, especially, saw a vindication of America's political and judicial system in the events that led to the downfall of the country's second highest public official.

Democratic leaders were less optimistic about the followup to the resignation. Area leaders contacted thought it might add to the growing political disillusionment started by the Watergate affair.

The area's two Republican congressmen were stunned by the resignation, U. S. Rep. Harold Froehlich, R-Appleton, calling it "tragic" and U. S. Rep. William A. Steiger, R-Oshkosh, an "unexpected turn of events."

"He (Agnew) has made one of the most difficult decisions in public life, and — in view of the need to remove the uncertainty and confusion of prolonged litigation — I believe he made the right decision," Steiger added, in a press release from his Washington office.

Both lawmakers urged President Nixon to nominate a qualified replacement for the vice president.

"Under no circumstances should the President, the Congress or the American people settle for a figurehead or a political eunuch," said Froehlich, adding that a "strong national leader" is needed. He said Sens. Howard Baker and Charles Percy, Govs. Ronald Reagan and Nelson Rockefeller and presidential adviser Melvin Laird "are worthy of serious consideration."

Froehlich called for Republican unity behind the President's nominee, and called on the President to consult Republican lawmakers, governors and members of the national committee before announcing a nominee. He urged the President to call a meeting of all three groups to help select the nominee.

"Only an open process of selection will produce the legitimacy that is necessary to assure support," he said.

While Froehlich urged consideration of several potential GOP candidates for President in 1976 — something that Democrats are urging the President to stay away from —Steiger called for a nominee capable of getting the support of Congress.

Steiger called for swift nomination of a successor "whose integrity and stature will command the respect and support of all the American people and renew the spirit of cooperation between the executive branch and Congress."

Steiger is known to favor the nomination of Laird.

Area Republican leaders believe the resignation of Agnew might rekindle a new "spirit" among Republicans who have become tired of the continuing stories of misdeeds by some of their leaders. Some hope it would also awaken the political grassroots, which they believe could provide a check on abuses by national leaders given too much power.

"I think it would be well to remind people that if we had more grassroots volunteers helping in both political parties, a great many of these problems would be eliminated," said 6th District party Chairman Mrs. Bert Sisk. "It's imperative that we make the system work."

People are becoming "weary of these political discrepencies," she said, and might be prompted into "pulling together and working harder." They might also, however, "turn up their noses and say they've had enough."

Eighth District GOP Chairman Thomas Teschner, although "sickened and saddened at what is a tragic thing," said it does "show that the American process is doing its job" when an attorney general of Agnew's own party can pursue an investigation as vigorously as Elliot Richardson did.

"There certainly was no attempt to cover up," he said.

"Once the numbness wears off, I think all persons concerned with good government will be back at work with more vigor than they had before," added the Crandon banker.

Outagamie County Republican party Chairman James Hensel said government misdeeds are the result of indifference toward politics by most people.

"This great crisis facing our country can be turned into a positive good if the average citizen will do his part and begin to participate actively in the political process," he said, in a press release, adding by telephone that the "surprise and shock" of the Agnew resignation might dampen local party motivation temporarily, but it "will come back together as we get down into the political races" of 1974.

The county's Democratic party chairman, Lawrence Longley, saw the only possible good from the Agnew affair being more careful selection of a vice president.

"I hope in the future that no longer will we select our vice presidents through careless, off-handed processes," he said, adding to Agnew's crisis the ill-fated selection of Thomas Eagleton as Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern's running mate in 1972.

"There's really no question that nobody's gained from the bringing down of the vice president's office," he said.

Winnebago County Democratic party Chairman John Allen said the Agnew affair, and Watergate, have made people "tired of the use of legal procedures by government officials to protect themselves."

"People in government, instead of using legal maneuvers and the like, should come out more frankly and just bluntly inform the American public as to what they have done and what has happened," he said.

Eighth District Democratic Chairman Robert Cornell said the Agnew affair is a "personal tragedy for Agnew, but also for the country, in the sense that it undoubtedly has the effect of creating further loss of respect for and confidence in our government and officials."

Tougher campaign laws, greater grassroots involvement in the political process and, most important, an "effort to raise the general moral standards of American society" must all be used to restore the public's confidence in its political system, he said.

Jon Guiles, Winnebago County GOP chairman, said the Agnew resignation might signal the "beginning of some new leadership from the White House."

The charges of political misdeeds are being swept away, he said, and it "could be the start of a new growth of vitality and spirit in the Republican party and the political system."

Area legislators were stunned by Wednesday's events. State Sen. Gerald Lorge, R-Bear Creek, said he was "surprised and shocked."

State Rep. William Rogers, D-Kaukauna, said, "It's a tragedy, but it proves our political system can work."

State Sen. Thomas Petri, R-Fond du Lac, said, "It's a tragedy from top to bottom, that's all."

'Yes' vote campaign mapped on Hortonville school referendum

HORTONVILLE — A telephone campaign, the distribution of 6,000 pamphlets and taped radio announcements will be part of a board of education and a publicity committee effort to promote 'yes' votes in the upcoming school referendum.

District voters Oct. 20 will be asked to approve a $2.2 million bonding referendum, which would include construction of a new 1,200 pupil elementary school east of the present complex in the Village of Hortonville and the renovation of the present school into a center for grades 7-12.

Supt. Marvin Obry said that the pamphlets will be sent home with students and distributed through local businesses, and would explain why the new school is needed, what the referendum includes and other information on the proposal.

Obry, Elementary Principal Eugene Riedl, and school board president Roger Weihing will tape the radio promotions.

Obry added that some district people are raising money so a large advertisement can be purchased in the local newspaper.

Obry explained to the board Monday that this year, for the first time, capital outlay and debt retirement expenditures are eligible for state aids, with an allowance of up to $100 a student.

He said that if the bond issue passes, the district would receive about $27,000 in aids for the issue, dropping the retirement rate for the first year from an estimated $2.07 per $1,000 equalized valuation to about $1.75.

In a press release, Obry explained the physical construction plans.

The elementary school has been designed to provide spaces for individually guided education (IGE), which is used at that level. He said that "This type of instruction has proven very successsful here, and many other school districts in 32 states will be using the IGE method this year."

Two schools in the same building, each designed for about 550 pupils, will be divided by gymnasium, kitchen, cafeteria, kindergarten, special education, showers and offices in the center of the school.

Each school would include space for four teaching units, a library, a group instruction area, offices and rest rooms.

The building would feature air conditioning and carpeting in instructional areas, he added. "There are virtually no hallways that waste valuable floor space," he added. "Chalkboards, book cases, movie screens and other items provide the division necessary for teaching small or medium groups within the unit."

The other phase of building plans calls for the renovation of the present building, which houses all grades, into a school for grades 7-12.

The courtyard would be enclosed, providing a large materials center and a group instruction area. The area also would act as an auditorium with seating for about 290 persons.

All vocational subjects would be moved to the area that presently houses lower and intermediate elementary grades. Industrial arts would have wood, metal and power shops plus electronic and drafting education areas.

Art would have three rooms, agriculture one, business education five, and home economics three rooms.

Other areas, including high school English, social studies, mathematics, science, and physical science education locker rooms, also would gain space.

Seventh and eighth graders, which presently use seven rooms on the second floor of the junior high level and two rooms in the basement of the Community Hall, would have the equivalent of 15 rooms on the second floor.

They would leave the area for art, industrial arts, home economics, music, foreign languages and physical education education in the senior high areas.

Obry added that "it will not be necessary to duplicate any of the equipment and teaching materials by keeping the junior and senior high students in the same building."

Rezonings stir debate on land use

Five rezonings were approved by the Outagamie County Board Tuesday amid renewed arguments over what constitutes good land use planning.

County Planner Robert Stadel had recommended denial of three of the five rezonings on the grounds that they did not conform to good land use planning.

The board actions prompted Supv. Herman Ripp to comment that "I feel we shouldn't ignore all our planning advice."

The most controversial rezoning was a request from Harold Hartzheim to rezone 42 acres in the Town of Buchanan to relocate a neon sign manufacturing business. According to Supv. Al Lewandowski, Hartzheim had indicated he would be using about 5 of the 42 acres for his business.

"This is what makes zoning a farce," Supv. John Kellogg declared. "The usual motive is for speculation. If we go on economic need, then we should rezone the entire county light industrial."

Supv. Eugene Kloes complained that the board has no guidance in making zoning decisions. "We need a land use plan," He said. "When is the East Central Regional planning commission going to give us a land use plan?" he asked.

"If we don't go along with the planner, why have one?," Supv. Fred Rehfeldt added.

Roy Willey Jr., director of the East Central commission, later told supervisors that the planning concept of zoning "is to provide for a more orderly growth and to protect property values." He added that the place to start for a land use plan is with the county planner, not the regional commission.

Supv. Joseph Kasperek, a member of the zoning committee, warned the board "not to go off the deep end" on a land use plan. A hurriedly developed plan that is bad is worse than no plan, he said. "If the communities understood the reasons for zoning we wouldn't have these problems," he said.

Holiday reminds Jews of rescue from Egypt

Sukkot, the Festival of Shelters, will be observed by the Jewish community today and Friday. It is a reminder to the people of Israel of their rescue from Egypt and enslavement.

Sukkot begins five days after Yom Kippur, the most solemn day in the Jewish calendar. Special emphasis is placed on the family unit. The holidays are a time of rejoicing, although the current situation in Israel is making that difficult.

Traditionally, a shelter is built or simulated to remind the Jews of the booths erected by their forefathers during the years of wandering in the wilderness when they searched for the promised land.

According to the Book of Leviticus in the Old Testament, the first day is to be a sacred day

"On that day, take boughs of fruit trees, laden with fruit, and palm fronds and the boughs of leafy trees... and build shelters with them, rejoicing before the Lord your God..."

Originally the feast was a seven-day event, and is still observed throughout that time by the more orthodox Jewish community.

During those seven days, it was required that all native Israelites live in the shelters, "To remind you, generation after generation, that I rescued you from Egypt, and caused you to live in shelters."

They struck oil

House creates special federal enclave out of Washington, D.C.

WASHINGTON (AP) —The House has voted to turn most of Washington, D.C., into a largely self-governed city, creating a special federal enclave out of certain government areas.

The new enclave would cover the Capitol, White House, Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts and five military posts. It would be run by a presidentially appointed director.

The rest of the city would be run by a locally elected mayor and city council for the first time since 1874, although Congress would control its budget.

The House approved the self-government bill 343 to 74.

It must be compromised with a Senate-passed bill that also would give the city a locally elected mayor and city council but would not set up federal areas within the city.

The capital enclave, to be known as the National Capital Service Area, was proposed by Rep. Edith Green, D-Ore., who said "this shall forever be the federal city."

The enclave idea was supported by Republican leaders. House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford predicted Congress would approve some form of self-government this year.

Supporters of the self-government opposed the capital enclave, which they said was wasteful duplication. They said the local government should run the entire city, including all its federal areas.

Mrs. Green said the director of the capital enclave would be responsible for maintaining police, fire, sanitation and streets services for the special sector but could cooperate with the city to secure these.

The President would have one year to recommend full details for setting up the capital within the city. Congress would control its funds.

Under the Constitution's provision that Congress shall run the District of Columbia, Congress would be able to overturn any mayor-council decision.

The President would continue to appoint the city's judges.

Washington was placed under congressional management in 1802 but was run by locally elected mayors and city councils from 1820 to 1871.

A joint federal-local governmental commission set up during the post-Civil War reconstruction period to build sanitation and public works drove the city bankrupt in three years. Congress resumed administration of the city on a temporary basis in 1874 and on a permanent basis in 1878.

Senate bill has 60-day troop limit

WASHINGTON (AP) —The Senate has passed a bill that would limit to 60 days the use of U.S. troops in combat without congressional approval.

The 75-20 vote sent the bill to the House, where final action is expected within a few days.

President Nixon has indicated he would veto any war powers bill he considers an infringement of his constitutional powers as commander-in-chief of the armed forces.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said in Senate debate that the new bill, a compromise between separate measures passed by the House and Senate in July, continues to violate "the constitutional allotment of war powers."

Sponsors of the measure, led by Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., called it a "reaffirmation of the constitutional responsibility of Congress to decide whether and when the United States should go to war."

The bill would require a president to report to Congress within 48 hours whenever he sends U.S. armed forces into hostilities, or situations risking hostilities.

A president would be required to withdraw the troops from combat within 60 days if Congress fails to approve their continued use. A 30-day extension would be allowed if a president certifies "unavoidable military necessity" for protecting the safety of U.S. forces during their removal from action.

Congress could terminate U.S. involvement in undeclared hostilities at any time by adopting a concurrent resolution, not subject to presidential veto.

Wasps will counter moths which love to chew on timber

MADISON, Wis. (AP) —Tiny wasps which dine on gypsy moths have been released in Wisconsin forests as a safety precaution against the destructive moth.

Gypsy moths are blamed for defoliating about 1.4 million acres of timber in the northeastern United States last year, but have not yet moved as far west as Wisconsin.

If they do, Donald Renlund of the Department of Natural Resources says Brachymeria Intermedia and Metrious Pulchricornis waiting for them.

Renlund was a member of a team that released the wasps near Brule, Black River Falls and Monico.

The gnat-sized wasps lay their eggs in pupal and larval stages of the moths, killing the moth when the wasps offspring reaches maturity.

Other forms of moths should provide a host population for the wasps in the absence of gypsy moths, Renlund said.

He described biological control of the gypsy moth as "only one tool in our repertory of weapons against destructive insects."

New Englanders often fight the gypsy moth with crop-dusting methods, an approach that requires spraying residential areas as well as forests.

'Happy Hooker' appeals

TORONTO (AP) —The Immigration Appeal Board has reserved decision on Xaviera Hollander's appeal against a deportation order.

Immigration officials ordered Miss Tollander, 30-year-old author of "The Happy Hooker," deported last February. Her attorney said Tuesday if the board upheld the order, he would appeal to Federal Court.

Cambodian Premier In Tam quits

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Cambodian Premier In Tam, who has complained of "contradictions" among the leaders of President Lon Nol's government, has submitted his resignation, the Ministry of Information announced today.

The ministry said the resignation was submitted five days ago and has not been acted on by Lon Nol or the two other members of the High Political Council. The council rejected another resignation from In Tam last June.

The contents of the resignation letter were not immediately available. The 51-year-old premier has been critical of the government's military effort and of official corruption and complained that he had no power to do anything about either one.

In the war, field reports said a squadron of armored personnel carriers and other government troops again reopened Highway 4, Phnom Penh's route to the coast. The Khmer Rouge insurgents had held a two-mile stretch of the road 45 miles southwest of the capital for five weeks.

The reports said the last insurgent position, on a hill, fell after an 18-day siege in which six government troops were killed and more than 70 wounded.

Search operations were reported in progress along the highway, and truck convoys were not expected to reach Phnom Penh from Kompong Som, Cambodia's seaport, until the weekend or early next week.

Twelve miles northeast of Phnom Penh, Vihear Suor was relieved by government troops Wednesday after being encircled for a month. The Cambodian command said the insurgents made a counterattack on the little provincial capital Wednesday night, but it was "immediately neutralized by fire from our troops."

On Phnom Penh's southwestern defense perimeter, the command said "the action of our troops and aerial bombardment have reduced the enemy to silence."

Further southwest of the capital at Srang, government troops were fighting fiercely with insurgent forces that had infiltrated into the town's market place, the command said.

Bremer conviction may be appealed

BALTIMORE (AP) — Arthur H. Bremer's attorney says his client's conviction for shooting Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace will be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court "unless told not to do so by Mr. Bremer."

And, Baltimore attorney Benjamin Lipsitz, who represents Bremer, added, "I don't think he will."

Lipsitz commented Thursday after the Maryland Court of Appeals refused to accept an appeal on the conviction. Lipsitz said the Supreme Court is "the only place left to go."

More out of own pockets

WASHINGTON (AP) —Twenty-three million aged and disabled persons on Medicare will have to pay an additional $103 million out of their own pockets for hospital care next year, according to new government figures.

Broken down, the figures show a Medicare patient will have to pay the first $84 of his or her hospital bills, or $12 more than the present $72 charge.

In addition, a patient's daily bill for hospital care between the 61st and 90th days will be boosted from $18 to $21, and the daily cost for post-hospital care in a skilled nursing home between the 21st and 100th days will go up from $9 to $10.50.

The estimate is based upon a 17 per cent increase in Medicare deductible and co-insurance costs for hospitalization announced Wednesday by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

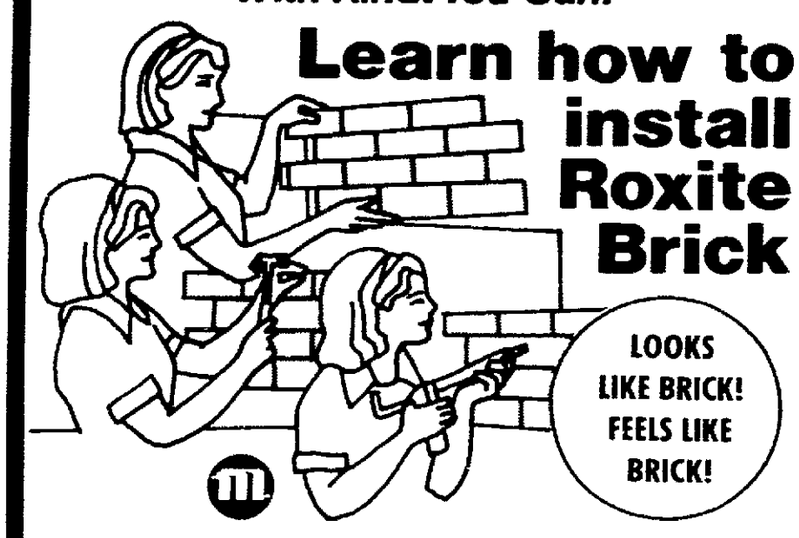

HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger said the Social Security Act requires him to hike patient charges in line with the average daily cost of hospital care.

The increases take effect Jan. 1.

Police & fire beat

No damage was reported after a small fire at about 4:30 p.m. Tuesday at apartments under construction at 1601 E. Roeland Ave.

Firemen said David LaStoffka, route 2, Iola, had been soldering some water pipes in a wall when the paper on the insulation caught fire. He had put the fire out with a garden hose before the firemen arrived.

The apartments are owned by E & R Construction Co., Neenah.

Joseph Sauer, 72 315 Smith St., New London, received a minor head injury at about 9:40 a.m. Tuesday in a two-car accident in the 600 block of S. Memorial Drive.

Police said his car was stopped in traffic in the southbound lane when it was struck from the rear by the second car, driven by Louis H. Hehner, 62, 2406 S. Fountain Ave.

Two persons were taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital for treatment of injuries they received in a two-car accident at 3:45 p.m. Tuesday at the intersection of Bennett and Summer streets.

One driver, Irving H Mackmiller Jr., 20, 832 W Commercial St., received leg and possible internal injuries. The other driver, Inez J. Schilling, 52, 1213 N. Richmond St, sustained a minor head injury.

Police said the Mackmiller auto was southbound on Bennett when it struck the Schilling car, headed east on Summer.

A tool kit containing a power drill and other items valued together at $120 and two chairs of undetermined value were reported stolen after a late Monday or early Tuesday break-in to a truck parked at Lake School & Office Supply, 136 N. State St.

Police said entry was gained by breaking off a padlock on the rear door of the vehicle.

James E. Gauerke, 835 Terrace Ave., Menasha, reported the theft of two tires and rims, an oil cap, air filter and filter cover and a hood ornament from his car while it was parked between Saturday and Tuesday at Royal Dodge Sales, Inc., 1610 W. Wisconsin Ave., Appleton.

Police said the items were valued together at more than $110.

Appleton police are investigating a report of fraudulent purchases totaling nearly $100 on Aug. 28 at H.C. Prange Co.

Arthur Hoolihan, 1302 S. Harmon St., told police he had lost his charge plate that day at the store and that he later received a statement indicating a woman had charged a dress, sportswear and shoes to the account later in the day.

SHIOCTON — Two persons were taken by the Shiocton rescue squad to St. Elizabeth Hospital in Appleton for treatment of injuries they sustained in a two-truck accident about 5 p.m. Tuesday on State 76 near Center Valley Road.

One driver, Joseph C. Troiber, 35, Park Ave., received a cut hand and bruised knee, while his daughter, Melissa, 4, received a cut lip, bruised legs and chest contusion

Police said Troiber's panel truck was northbound on 76 toward Shiocton when it attempted to pass the second truck, which was pulling a hay wagon and was driven by Leonard L. Voight, 68, route 2.

Voight's truck then attempted a left turn and was struck by the panel truck.

FREEDOM—Aloysius Schun, route 1,kaukauna, reported the theft from his tractor last Thursday of a radio and tool box containing a socket set, hammers, punches and open-end wrenches valued together at $150

James O Engelien, 929 W Grant St, reported the theft of two tires and wheels valued at $90 from his car while it was parked Monday afternoon at Fox Valley Technical Institute.

KAUKAUNA — Tim Ryan, 318 E. Columbian Ave., Neenah, reported the theft of more than $350 worth of equipment from his van truck while it was parked Sunday at Wisconsin International Raceway.

Ryan told police the missing items included a tape player, 10 to 15 tapes, an 8- by 5-foot piece of tapestry, a tape box and two mobile speakers He said there was no indication of forced entry into the vehicle

Damage was estimated at $150 after the convertible top of a car owned by Martin Wilson, no address given, was reported slashed while the vehicle was parked Saturday in a lot near the intersection of U.S. highways 10 and 41.

KAUKAUNA — Michael Urban, 20, 1018 Sullivan Ave., was released on a signature bond of $405 and ordered to appear before Municipal Justice Clarence O'Connor Wednesday to answer charges of drunk and disorderly conduct.

Urban was arrested after a street fight Saturday.

Froehlich at local office

U.S Rep. Harold V. Froehlich, R-Wis, will be available to talk with his 8th District constituents from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m Saturday at the Appleton post office, room 208.

Xavier swings with activities of homecoming

Homecoming week events are in full swing at Xavier High School. It began with a button sale Monday, followed by a blue and white day Tuesday.

Today is known as class distinction day, with each class dressed in a different color, and Friday, when official homecoming activities begin, is out-of-uniform day.

The parade will be at 4 p.m. from Lawrence University. There will be a pep rally at the school after all the floats get there, followed by the football game at 7 p.m. at Goodland Field. The queen will be selected by lot during halftime. The Xavier Hawks will oppose the Premontre Cadets from Green Bay.

Culminating the week's activities will be the dance Saturday from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., with the crowning of the queen scheduled for 10 p.m.

The theme will be "We May Never Pass this Way Again," and the band is the "Marque" from Milwaukee.

The homecoming court includes Joan Birchler, Nancy Ebben, Connie Milhaupt, Jane Sullivan and Gerri Van Dyke

Pep rally set to open East homecoming

"Run the Papermakers Through the Patriot Press," is this year's homecoming theme at Appleton High School-East.

Friday's schedule includes a 2:15 p.m. pep rally at which the court and queen will be introduced A bonfire is set from 7 to 9 p.m. at Plamann Park.

The parade, featuring the floats, the court, the drill team and the marching band, will be at 10 a.m. Saturday. The East Patriots will face the Kimberly Papermakers at 1:30 p.m. The dance will be the finale of the weekend and will be from 8:30 p.m. to midnight. Music will be by "Punch," and the theme is "You're the Worm in My Apple."

The school has chosen to weave the theme around the Applefest program, with most of the decorations coinciding with the city's salute to the apple.

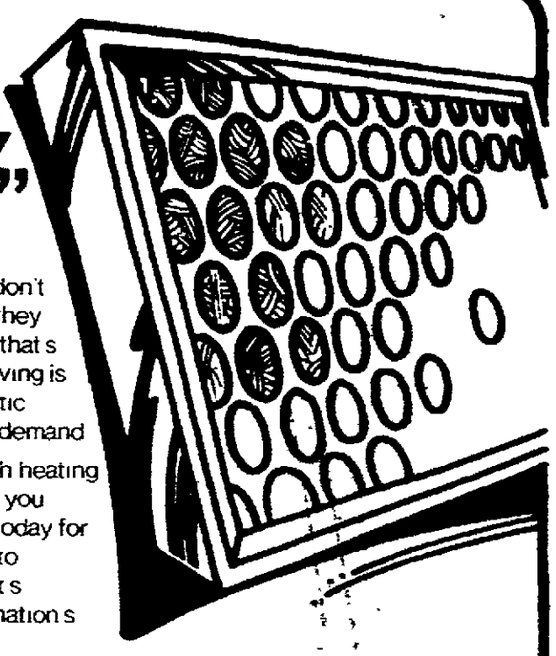

Freedom High getting ready for homecoming

FREEDOM — Homecoming activities at Freedom High School will begin tonight when the "Burning of the V" takes place. The letter stands for the Denmark Vikings, whom the Freedom Irish will oppose Friday.

The burning will be at 7:15 p.m. today. On Friday there will be a pep rally at 4:45 p.m., followed by the parade of floats. The game will be at 8 p m. the same evening. There will be a dance from 8.30 to 11:30 p m. Saturday. The theme is "Midnight Hour," and the band is "Cambridge"

Randy Semrow is the king and Nancy Green the queen. Members of the court are Carol Coene, Becky Oudenhoven, Cheryl Garvey and Doris Vosters; William Vandenberg, William Huss, Don Green and Steve Schuh.

Farm Progress Days

Rights, responsibilities examined

BY EDITH BOCK
Post Crescent staff writer

FOND DU LAC — The bewildering largess of textiles, manmade, natural and mixed, that confronts today's homemaker may have accounted for the packed tent-full of women who heard Lenore Landry, textile and clothing specialist here Tuesday

A specialist with the University of Wisconsin Extension, Landry spoke on consumer rights and responsibilities in textiles at the opening day of Wisconsin Farm Progress Days. Sessions from 9 a.m. to 4 p m are daily through Thursday on the Tom Dooley farm, west of here.

Follow the four basic rights of consumers and their attendant responsibilities and be a happier and more satisfied consumer, Landry advised.

The rights won't work without exercise of the responsibilities, she emphasized.

The right to choose is a familiar one, but to exercise it efficiently the consumer should keep firmly in mind why the purchase is made, select carefully both merchandise and supplier, but selectively and after some comparison shopping

Advertising and the now required tags and labels provide information, Landry continued, but the consumer must understand the performance promised.

"There are three very different standards expressed in those claims of waterproof, water repellant, and water resistent You need to know what the terms mean.

"Check the care instructions before you buy and ask questions. Sales people are generally willing to help."

So-called permanent care labeling, she noted, means that the label is permanent for the life of the garment or the yard goods. "They tell how to care for the garment. The wise consumer figures comparative costs of alternate care methods in determining which to buy."

The home sewer has the responsibility to request the label when buying materials and to sew it into the garment for permanent care information.

Consumers, government, and business agree on the right to safety, but the consumer must examine the merchandise for its safety features and inform the retailer if it doesn't live up to promises.

"You'll be paying a dollar to $1.50 more for children's night wear in size 0 to 6X this year," Landry noted "It's well worth it." She said the increase reflects the manufacturer's investment in flame retardants required since July in children's sleepwear of those sizes.

No label is required, Landry advised. These items must meet flammable standards whether domestic or imported.

Some sleepwear made prior to July is still on the market, and is required to carry a warning label.

Care instructions here are extremely important, she noted. Homemakers must follow them carefully to maintain the retardent properties.

In keeping with the "live safely" theme of women's events at Farm Progress Days, Landry noted that today's high heeled, platform soled shoes are hazardous particularly to the ankles "Don't get too high," she advised her audience

The State Traffic Patrol is advising women to pack their platforms but drive in more suitable footgear that moves more easily from gas pedal to brake, she said.

Baggy pants, especially those with cuffs, present the danger of tangling in them while walking or driving, she added

"You have a right to be heard." Landry concluded her talk. "You have a responsibility to know where to go for help, to voice a complaint or dissatisfaction

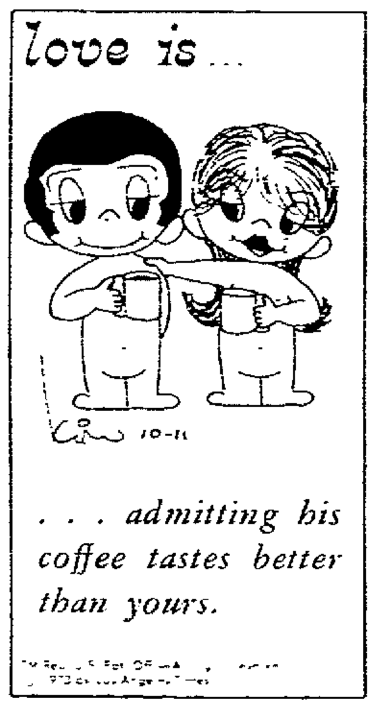

From such customer cooperation, she said, come changes and improvements in merchandise. "Tell the retailer first," she advised. "Usually he will relay the information to the manufacturer."

To the four basic responsibilities, Landry added a fifth.

Consumer courtesy is important, she emphasized. "It's difficult to get the merchandise, to arrange for its display, to present it attractively for you. You have the responsibility to respect that effort, to arrange suitable payment for what you purchase, and to recognize the limitations of your resources before you buy."

Her talk was followed by a style show featuring 46 Fond du Lac County residents as models wearing clothing from a bewildering array of fabrics, each with its permanent care label

Made from Vogue and Butterick patterns, style show fashions included designs from such couturier dressmakers as Pucci, Givenchy, Bill Blass, Valentino, Emanuel Ungaro and Yves Saint Laurent.

UWO series to consider death

OSHKOSH — College of Continuing Education and Cooperative Campus Ministry are co-sponsoring a series of six sessions which will consider death

To be held from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays beginning Oct. 30, sessions will be at Pollock Alumni House with the exception of the Nov 13th gathering at The Seefeld Chapel

Moderator of the series will be The Rev. Don Collins, United Ministry in Higher Education Pre-registration is encouraged.

The sessions have been scheduled because few topics are of greater concern to persons in our society than death. The fact that our discussions about death often fail to progress beyond the level of humor is a strong indication of our inability to deal with it maturely. The series is designed to help us better understand fears and hang-ups and, in doing so, to open the way for the development of the emotional, physical and theological aspects of death in our own lives

Potluck will honor scouts

MARION — The Senior Planning Board of the Fox River Area Girl Scout Council will have a potluck dinner from 4:30 to 5 p m Sunday at St Mary Catholic Church. The dinner will be in honor of the four international scouts who attended the Poso Ne' Mot Event in Keshena.

All girls and advisors of the Senior Troops plus the hostess families of the international visitors are invited. Individual Senior Scouts are welcome if the entire troop is unable to attend

Each troop is asked to bring enough food to feed each person attending from their troop It will be served buffet style and shared with all troops

Entertainment includes a presentation from the International girls about Denmark and Bolivia with Kath DeLain, Appleton, sharing her experiences while attending the International Event in India The Norway Patrol also will tell of its experiences abroad Judy Wunsch and Karen Oberhauser, Clintonville, and Maureen McInnis, Marion, were part of the Norway Patrol.

Clintonville Senior Troop 288 and its advisor, Mrs C H Rafoth, will attend the dinner Cephas Ocloo, Clintonville AFS student, will be guest of Troop 288 and will teach a song, game or dance from Ghana The scouts of Troop 288 are taking food to the dinner that the people of Ghana eat.

Registration

'Personality Plus' is apt theme

Three speakers highlighted the recent Personality Plus one-day program Saturday at the Country Aire. Sponsored by Fox Cities Chapter of the National Secretaries Association (International), the sessions focused on three aspects of the personality and how they apply to secretaries.

Ethel Burge, international lecturer, writer and fashion consultant, addressed the women on the importance of a sense of humor She stated that humor makes one feel better, is a sign of intelligence and makes one sleep better

Kinesics, or body language, came into play during the "sharpening" session According to Elaine Styles, TV model, 35 per cent of what one conveys is through verbal means The other 65 per cent is through body language

The 210 women present heard the speakers key on the importance of fashion as office wear They cautioned against putting clothes out the night before work, indicating that they should dress according to their mood

A fashion show concluded the presentation

Ann Landers

Putting out flame not same

Dear Ann Landers: I was struck by the poignancy of the poem by R B. Richards, Palos Verdes Estates, Calif., "Pardon Me, Doctor, But May I Die?"

The old gentleman had buried his wife, most of his friends were gone, his children were grown and on their own, his work was done, he was tired and sick — very sick — and he asked the doctor to take away all those tubes and machines and let him go in peace. That plea was one I hope will make an impact on doctors everywhere

I have another poem, which I hope you will print.

Put Out the Flame

"I do not fear death, dear physician,
As much as I fear the indignity
Of hideous deterioration"
Thus Euthanasia's friend spoke openly
"Kind doctor, when that certain time arrives,
When I am not productive anymore,
Or cannot add to any fellows' lives,
Or with excruciating pain am sore—
Then I beseech thee in God's holy name,
Perform thy greater Hippocratic role.
The hour unknown to me, put out the flame
Within my body and release my soul.
To take its journey to that Reservoir
Where all departed souls and angels are."—Boston Globe Reader

Dear Reader Sorry, but there's a big difference between keeping a terminally ill person alive through extraordinary measures, and "putting out the flame"

To "put out the flame" suggests, to me at least, that something be done to end a life. I am not in favor of this The old gentleman who pleads, "Let me die," is asking that the flame be permitted to go out, but to put it out is to end a life, and no man has the right to do this

Dear Ann Landers There's a certain little high-fannied blonde in this office who pretends to be Miss Goody Two-Shoes of the Prudential Building Some of the stories we've heard about her from the last bunch of girls she worked with don't add up to the Virtuous Miss she is portraying.

Several of us have noticed that every Thursday she wears the same dress or pantsuit she wore on Wednesday, also her hair is a mess This has happened four Thursdays in a row We have concluded that the gal has a steady arrangement and doesn't sleep home on Wednesday nights

Should I be a pal and tip her off that we know, and to at least take a different blouse or skirt along and wear a hairnet?—Friend In Need

Dear Friend (?) I'd hate to believe that every girl who is wearing the same dress or pantsuit today that she wore yesterday didn't sleep home last night If you want to be a pal, keep your mouth shut and suggest that the other cats in the office do the same

Put pesticides away

Cool fall days have discouraged most mosquitoes and other pests that plagued us this summer. We no longer need "bug bombs," sprays — pesticides — that we used to get rid of flies, weeks and other summer pests

So, while we're storing lawn furniture, picnic baskets and garden tools, it's a good time to put away pesticides. They've helped make the lawn and garden more attractive, and they made outdoor living and dining more pleasant Time, now, for their winter vacation

It's a good idea to collect all pesticides in one place and look them over Take an inventory. Are you saying that you don't have any pesticides? Didn't you have something you used to get rid of spiders or ants in your apartment? Did you use an herbicide to control dandelions or crabgrass in your lawn, an insecticide to protect your roses?

Almost every home has at least one pesticide, and even moth balls deserve a home of their own, away from other household products

Be sure to keep all pesticides —or that one pesticide —in the original, labeled containers And protect the labels You will need to read those labels next time you use the product If they're not in very good shape, repair them or recopy them before you put them away Their condition won't get any better over the winter

Now look about for a really good place to keep them It's best to lock them up But if not, be sure that it's a place where they'll be separate from other things Keep them away from food and out of the bathroom medicine chest

You'll probably need to read the label to see if there are any special directions for storage And most important of all, put them in a place where your children don't play Remember, the label says, "Keep out of reach of children and pets." Small children are natural explorers, especially those under five They are most likely to have accidents — so, keep pesticides out of toddler territory

Do you have empty containers — or remnants of a product you know you won't use again? Now is the time to throw them away Makes more room in the garage for other storage, even for the car. Wrap the empty container, or the leftover —container and all, in old newspapers

Put the package in the very bottom of the trash can Cover it tightly, and send it off to the sanitary land fill. There, animals, pets and children will not be able to get into them Don't save the empty containers or use them for something else. It could be dangerous

So, for safety (1) Keep all pesticides in the original, labeled container

(2) Store all pesticides where children, pets and irresponsible persons can't get them.

(3) Keep pesticides away from food, dishes and cooking utensils.

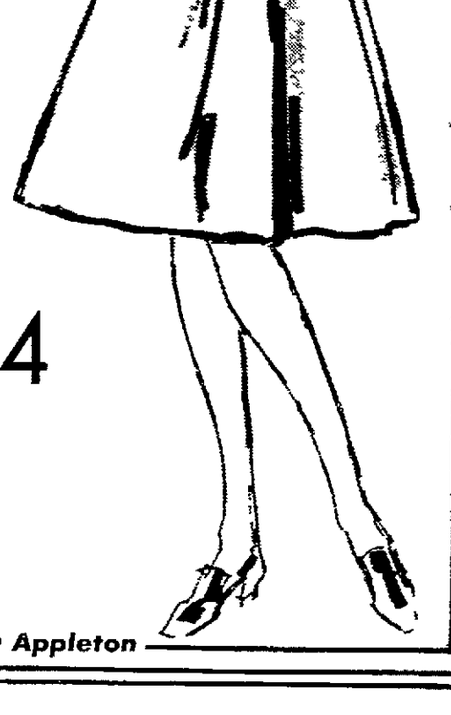

(4empty) Dispose of containers and leftover pesticides at the sanitary land fill

(5) Read the label every time you use pesticides

Award recipient

Charles Williams, awards committee chairman, and Toby Roth, state assemblyman from Appleton, presented a plaque to Christine Kaepernick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Kaepernick, during Monday's luncheon at the Elks Club. Christine, a Fox Valley Lutheran High School student, is this year's recipient of the annual Raymond Ware Human Worth Award of the Appleton Noon Optimist Club. The award is presented annually to an area young person who is exemplary in community service. She is involved in the candy-striper program at Appleton Memorial Hospital, is on the yearbook staff at Fox Valley Lutheran, and is involved in church activities such as teaching Sunday School and working in church cancer drives. Leftovers go to dogs

I have this friend, Phyllis Supermother, who is about to drive me crazy

She suspects I'm not the greatest cook in the world. (I taught her how to make leftovers from scratch.) So for years, she's been pitter-pattering in and out of my house trying to convert me to her religion: kitchen

When her kids were younger she used to say, "I have discovered the most divine way to get your pickiest youngsters to eat breakfast. You take ordinary pancake batter, color it pink and pour it into a circle. Then you make eyes out of raisins, peach slices for the mouth and a big banana for the nose."

I didn't have the heart to tell her my kids would have eaten all the fruit before I checked it out of the supermarket And that they once signed a pact that they would eat anything that wasn't deep green, navy blue, pale pink, bubbling, moving, or multiplying and dividing itself.

Last week she came over with a notebook full of recipes and said, "Don't your children just hate school lunches?"

"Only when I send them from home," I said

"You can't be serious," she said. "They aren't seasoned properly They're overcooked And they're expensive I bet your children would love it if you sent them an exciting lunch from home"

"The last time I sent an exciting lunch from home," I explained, "it was a jar of consomme for my daughter who was on a diet The science department got hold of it and diagnosed it as diabetes"

"You're terrible," she said opening her notebook. "Look at these cute sandwiches you can cut out of bread with cookie cutters and

"Phyllis, a 14-year-old would drop out of school to follow elephants in the circus with a dust pan before he would break out a sandwich shaped like a teddy bear"

"There are other ideas," she persisted "For example, did you know you could send ice cream to school with them in a thermos? Little buns that you can make into tuna boats? And interesting stews with little cold biscuits?"

I took her by her shoulders and said, "Phyllis, face it I'm no good for you I feed my leftovers to the dog when he will eat them I mistrust anything that isn't frozen under foil I talk about your micro oven behind your back And I hope the Galloping Gourmet breaks a leg and they will have to freeze him Give up on me!"

"God will get you for that," she said clutching her book and running for the door (Copyright 1973)

Hold-up often useful with trump contract

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Most players use the hold-up at notrump contracts. You refuse to win the first trick in a suit, hoping to cut communications between the two opponents. This sort of play is risky at a suit contract but may still be advisable

West opens the king of hearts, and East plays the ten. Should you win the first heart trick or should you hold up your ace?

Perhaps you fear that East will ruff the second heart if you fail to take the first trick. This kind of risk must be considered at trump contracts but not at notrump.

In this case, you lose the contract by winning the first trick You draw two rounds of trumps and then lead the jack of diamonds for a finesse. East takes the king of diamonds and a trump He then leads his remaining heart, whereupon West defeats the contract by taking two heart tricks

RISK JUSTIFIED

This time the risk of a ruff is justified You make your contract by refusing the first trick

West continues with the jack of hearts. East follows suit, and you take the ace Now you draw two rounds of trumps and take the diamond finesse

East wins with the king of diamonds, but cannot lead a heart. It was for this very reason that you refused the first trick. No matter how East continues, you will discard a heart on one of dummy's long diamonds

Fascinating fabrics

By Frances Dietrich

You can save money by doing your own alterations of newly purchased family clothing, and by renovating or updating some of the clothes now in the closet In addition, you can often get great bargains by buying marked-down clothes of good styling and fabric, but poor workmanship, then resewing the seams and hem and tightening buttons.

The secret of doing the best job in this type of sewing, as well as when making clothes at home, is the right choice of thread. That little spool of thread may be the most important purchase you make It has to hold the dress or coat together

Try to match the fiber in the thread as closely as possible to the fiber in the fabric. The familiar mercerized cotton thread is soft, lustrous and durable with a low stretch factor, which makes it ideal for woven fabric of 100 per cent cotton, linen or rayon However, its nonstretch characteristic makes it unsuitable for knits of any kind Knits need stretchability built into the seams

In addition, all cotton thread has a slight shrinkage factor that parallels that of cotton, linen and rayon. It may cause seams to pucker, when used in permanent press fabrics, where the polyester does not have the same degree of shrinkage.

Fabrics of man-made fibers make special demands on thread. A thread is needed which will work with the ease of cotton, but have more elasticity and strength, less shrinkage

Thread, which is a combination of polyester and cotton, has a center of high strength filament polyester wrapped with cotton. The cotton cover provides the softness of the natural fiber and takes the same ironing temperature of all cotton This is particularly important in pressing seams open This thread is suitable for permanent press fabric and other wovens, which are blends of natural and man-made fibers.

Thread, which is 100 per cent spun polyester, has even greater stretchability and is ideal for stretch wovens and knit fabrics The long, hair like filaments of polyester are cut into pieces resembling the lengths of cotton fiber. They are twisted together in one ply Then three of these plies are twisted again to form a strong thread Finally, each tiny fiber is electronically fixed in place to stabilize the twist and reduce knotting and snarling. It was developed to build stretch and recovery into the seams of knits.

Nylon thread has as many as 68 very fine filaments bonded together without twisting to make a thread with exceptional strength, translucence, stretch and recovery It is used mainly for nylon, tricot, ski wear and stretch fabrics incorporating nylon and spandex.

Silk thread in size A fine dimension should be used for silk and wool fabric. It is also used for basting, as it will not leave an imprint during pressing Pure silk heavy duty thread size D, is for topstitching fabric of any fiber. As silk, by nature, is not colorfast, do not use contrasting color for topstitching a garment you may be laundering, as it may bleed or crock witnesses at the closed door Doe.

The right choice of both thread and needle is important. Write for free information sheet, "How to Choose the Right Thread," by Coats and Clark It includes chart, how to sew a smooth seam, and testing a balanced stitch. Send long, self-addressed and stamped envelope to Frances Dietrich, in care of The Post-Crescent.

Cane said testimony revealed "an extremely poor accounting system" at the Health Center, whereby expense statements of center officials were submitted and approved without sufficient proof of the expense.

"In addition," Cane told reporters, "a practice existed where vouchers were submitted by various county health center officials and approved and paid in advance of the expense with no later accounting."

However, there was no evidence of criminal misconduct in those actions, Cane related.

He recommended that the county adopt and require a more strict accounting of public employes' expenses

Testimony revealed no evidence of tampering or misuse of patients' trust funds or any other trust funds, Cane said. It was the first indication that there had been concern over trust funds at the Health Center. Cane also saw no need for an independent audit of Health Center expenditures. The county board three months ago appropriated not more than $5,000 for an outside audit but has not contracted for the audit, pending the outcome of the John Doe. Several county board supervisors petitioned for the John Doe last July 11 after The Post-Crescent published several articles that raised questions concerning administration of the Health Center. Reporters had spent several weeks researching the issue. The Post-Crescent reported last June 24 that Speener repaid the county $302 for personal long distance phone calls in 1968, after the matter came to the attention of trustees. A reporter, while reviewing telephone bills at the Health Center last May, found that long distance calls to the same Racine telephone numbers were again being charged to the county.

Shortly after the discovery, Speener showed a reporter a receipt signed by Mulholland indicating that Speener had repaid the county $108.15 for the latest series of personal long distance calls.

The information that will be contained in one charge against Speener indicates that the calls were still being billed to the county up to Aug. 1.

The Post-Crescent also had reported that many Health Center employes were getting salaries above authorized county pay scales.

In July the salaries of 34 Health Center employes were cut more than $10,000. Speener took a $10.40 a year pay cut. Asst. Supt. William Bricco's salary was cut $1,387 and Mulholland's annual salary dipped $1,929.

The charge against Speener will allege that he authorized an illegal pay raise for Mulholland of from $715 to $838.50 per month.

Speener paid $1,831.50 for the floor wax and cleaner that figured in the alleged gift of the television set, Doe testimony revealed.

The Post-Crescent found last May that the three barrels of floor wax purchased two years ago by Speener were still in the Health Center basement. They had not been used, he told a reporter, because it was discovered the wax would not work on Health Center floors.

Speener, 48, has been Health Center superintendent since April 1, 1967. He was hired by what was then a three-man board of trustees to replace John Engle who had the job four years.

Speener came to Appleton from Racine where he had an administrative job in the Racine County Department of Social Services. Before that he worked for welfare departments in Oconto and Barron counties and taught school in Elcho.

Speener said late this morning that he had no comment on the charges. He had not had time to talk with legal counsel, he said.

In the running

These Republican leaders are among those mentioned by observers as possible successors to Vice President Spiro T. Agnew. But some Republicans caution that President Nixon may reach beyond the most obvious possibilities. From the left are, top row, Melvin Laird, former Defense Secretary; Hugh Scott, Senate GOP leader; William Rogers, former Secretary of State; John Connally, former Treasury Secretary; bottom row, California Gov. Ronald Reagan; New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller; Gerald Ford, House minority leader; and Arizona Sen Barry Goldwater. (AP Wirephoto)

News in brief

Auto workers ready Ford strike

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers union says it will strike Ford Motor Co. on Oct. 26 if a new national contract is not reached by Oct. 22. The UAW's Ford contract expired on Sept. 14, but it was extended on a day-to-day basis while the union settled national, Canadian and local contracts with Chrysler. UAW vice president Ken Bannon said he hoped the walkout would not be necessary. But he served notice that if no contract settlement was made by Oct. 22 "the union would be free to take any action that is necessay in the absence of a new agreement." The union has held some bargaining sessions with Ford, but the deadline announcement was expected to push negotiations into high gear. Bargainers are working at Ford to relate the Chrysler pact's provisions to the nation's No. 2 auto maker.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Malcolm Moos will leave the University of Minnesota presidency to become board chairman of the Center of the Study of Democratic Institutions. Moos will take over the center position in Santa Barbara, Calif., next July 1, succeeding Robert M. Hutchins, 74, who made the announcement. The center was established in 1959 to study ways of maintaing a free society under the changing political, sociological and technological conditions of the second half of the 20th Century. Moos, 57, has a wide background in sociological and technological conditions of the second half of the 20th Century. Moos, 57, has a wide background in government, journalism, scholarship and educational administration. He was an administrative assistant to President Dwight Eisenhower and later a special assistant, speech writer and consultant to the President. He has headed the university since 1967.

OVERLAND, Mo. (AP) — Only 20 per cent of the records of former servicemen and women damaged in a four-day fire at the Military Personnel Records Center can be salvaged, according to the center's acting director. "But we're optimistic that no veterans will lose any benefits as a result," Warren Griffin said Wednesday. More than 20 million files on former members of the Army and Air Force dating back to 1912 were damaged when fire swept through the top floor of the six-story building that housed a total of 56 million records. Approximately $1.8 million in emergency funds has been spent so far in rehabilitating the center and restoring the records.

LONDON (AP) — Rescuers plucked five men from the English Channel today after a French dredging ship with 15 persons aboard capsized in the Straights of Dover. The British coast guard said two bodies have also been recovered. A coast guard helicopter and several boats, including a cross channel ferry, continued searching for the other men. The capsized boat was identified as the Cap de la Hague, which worked out of Calais, France.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard Stearns and Frank Mankiewich, two of Sen. George McGovern's lieutenants in last year's Democratic presidential campaign, were scheduled to be the next witnesses before the Senate Watergate committee. Meanwhile, Committee chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr. said he will try to comply with subpoenas directing him to present evidence in the New York securities trial of former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans and fugitive financier Robert L. Vesco.

any criminal prosecution."

After the 1962 election of Agnew as Baltimore County executive, an unnamed middleman set up a system for Matz to kick back 5 per cent of his fees on county contracts, the prosecutors said.

When Agnew became governor in 1967 the kickback scheme mushroomed.

The evidence, said the prosecutors, "establishes that Hammerman obtained, and split with Mr. Agnew and Wolff, cash payments from seven different engineering firms in return for state engineering contracts, and from one financial institution in return for a lucrative arrangement with the state involving the financing of certain state bonds."

The amount was flexible, but averaged between 3 per cent and 5 per cent of the contract fee, the prosecutors said.

Green made semi-monthly payments amounting to $11,000 each in 1967 and 1968, during which time his company received about 10 contracts with fees between $3 million and $4 million.

Agnew's election as vice president did not disturb the kickback arrangement with Matz and Green, the prosecutors said. However, they said that the two found that Agnew had minimal influence on federal contract awards.

Judge frees water funds

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Jack Roberts says that President Nixon's impoundment of funds allocated by Congress for water pollution projects was illegal.

Roberts ordered Wednesday the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to revise its 1973 and 1974 budget to give Texas and other states the $11 million that Congress had intended they get.

"This decision, if upheld, would free up monies urgently needed by Texas municipalities to meet water pollution control standards and to ensure the protection of the health of this state's citizens," said Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill.

Hill said that he had filed the suit in the name of the Texas Water Quality Board, which regulates state water pollution control efforts, but Oklahoma, Missouri and Wisconsin had joined in the suit as interested parties. He said the suit actually was a class action "for all the states entitled to the allotment of said funds."

Massage parlor wins case

MILWAUKEE (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Myron L. Gordon Wednesday banned enforcement of a Racine ordinance which prohibits massage parlor employes from massaging bodies of clients of the opposite sex.

Gordon said while municipalities may require licensing of massage parlors, prohibiting massages of persons by parlor employes of the opposite sex would be unconstitutional.

Gordon ruled in favor of Valley Health Systems, Inc., Racine, and Sandra Michale, an employe and chief shareholder, who had filed the lawsuit. Gordon said female employes of the Valley Health have been massaging male customers since November, 1972.

The Racine Common Council last April passed an ordinance requiring licensing of massage parlors and banning massages given to persons of the opposite sex. Valley Health employes frequently have been charged with violating the ordinance.

Episcopalians reject resolution on amnesty

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A call for general amnesty for "all who have refused to participate in the conflict in Indochina" has been rejected at the Episcopal Church's governing convention.

The resolution was approved Wednesday by the House of Bishops, but failed to get concurrence by the lay-clergy branch of the church's bicameral legislature, the House of Deputies. The lay people defeated the resolution there.

As the 13-day convention neared its end today, it directed the "trial use" for another three years of revised forms of worship, a revamping of the church's historic Book of Common Prayer.

First action on formal adoption of the new rituals will come at the next convention three years hence, to be held in Minneapolis.

The convention also finished action to abolish a provision for excommunication of persons married in ways not in keeping with church standards.

The step was in line with earlier adoption of liberalized marriage canons, allowing remarriage in the church after civil divorce.

The bishops, in their plea for amnesty for draft resistors, said tensions over the Vietnam war had caused some people "to scorn the conscientious acts of those who resisted the call to bear arms and others to belittle the sacrifice of those who accepted the call to military service."

For the sake of "reconciliation among all people," the bishops urged fuller government benefits to Vietnam veterans and general amnesty for those who refused service in the war.

One bishop, Archibald D. Davies, of Dallas, Tex., noted that he has a son who, as a military deserter, now lives in Canada where thousands of young Americans are unable to return home. Canada where thousands of young Americans are unable to return home.

"The church must speak up loudly for their forgiveness and hope for their reincorporation

Nobel Prize is awarded

STOCKHOLM (AP) — The 1973 Nobel Prize for Physiology or Medicine was awarded today to two Austrian researchers and one Dutch researcher for discoveries concerning behavior patterns.

The $120,000 prize was shared by Karl von Frisch, Viennese-born but working out of Munich, Germany, Konrad Lorenz who also was born in Vienna but works at the Max Planck Institute in Germany, and Dutchman Nikolaas Tinbergern, who carries out his research at the department of zoology at the University Museum of Oxford, England.

The winners' research concerning animal behavior, mainly through studies of insects, fish, and birds, have also stimulated comprehensive research on mammals and clarified what causes a human infant's first smile.

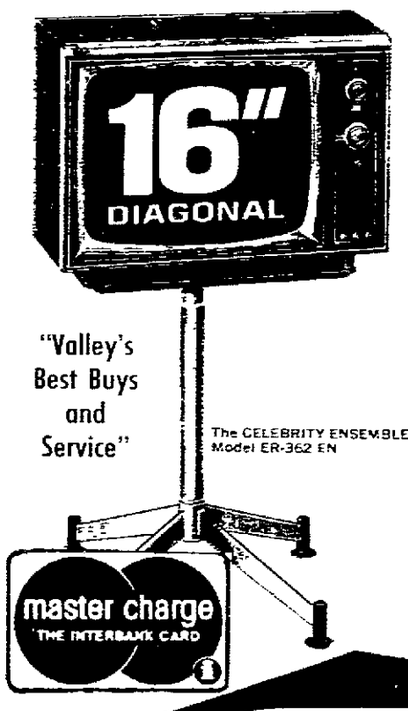

Their research also has led to important results for psychiatry and psychosomatic medicine, "especially as regards possible means of adapting environment to the biological equipment of man with the aim of preventing maladaption and disease," the Karolinska professors said.

Lorenz, von Frisch and Tinbergen pointed the way out of a dilemma in behavioral research, at a time when others were stalemated, by focusing on the survival value of various behavioral patterns in their studies of differences among species.

County won't support state's recycling plan

BY BILL KNUTSON
Post-Crescent staff writer

An attempt to get Outagamie County to endorse state takeover of solid waste disposal failed after an emotional exchange on the county board floor Wednesday.

Supv. Eugene Kloes of Appleton asked for support of a Senate bill being debated in Madison today that would create a state solid waste recycling authority.

Wisconsin is a leader in solid waste disposal and a vote against his proposal "is a vote against progress," Kloes admonished supervisors.

But, by a 22-18 vote, supervisors agreed with Supv. Norman Austin of Appleton, who said the board was not sufficiently informed about the issue to vote on Kloes' proposal. Austin had the matter tabled for 30 days.

Afternoon debate followed a lengthy morning presentation to the board by Arloe Paul, retired president of Allen Bradley Co. and vice chairman of the Governor's Task Force on Recycling.

The state would be divided into regions for implementing the waste recycling program. Fond du Lac, Outagamie and Winnebago counties would form the initial region.

Paul asked to appear before the board after opposition to the state-controlled program developed in Fond du Lac and Winnebago counties.

Supervisors, including Board Chairman Russell DeLaHunt, were upset because Outagamie County, which has worked two years on development of its own solid waste disposal program, would see its soon-to-be-constructed shredder system taken over by the state.

"We're a little chagrined," said Supv. Ted LaPin of Appleton, that after we sign a contract and break ground the state comes along and tries to claim eminent domain on our shredder."

It "completely usurps the powers of the county," said Supv. Gene Retzlaff of Hortonville, who told the board he was told by State Rep. Ervin Conradt of Shiocton that the recycling bill stood little chance of passage.

Several supervisors indicated they would be in Madison today when the bill is debated.

The state already has taken over the school sytem, is about to take over social services and probably is eyeing police services, Retzlaff complained.

Most of the support for the state program came from die-hard opponents of the county's plan to construct a hammermill shredder in Appleton's Northeast Industrial Park.

Supv. Fred Rehfeldt of Appleton took the opportunity to take another lick at the county board's zoning committee which has spearheaded development of the local waste disposal plan.

"The committee is running scared. They went hog-wild on some of the b.s. going on in this county. I think you're in a muddle."

Rehfeldt complimented Paul and his task force for doing a good job.

Supv. Charles Wussow of Appleton said it was impractical for a small community to go into its own recycling program.

"It's like bailing water out of the ocean with a small pail." Wussow remarked.

Supv. Herman Ripp of Appleton thought Outagamie County "should team up with the state and get the show on the road."

DeLaHunt told supervisors that Fox Valley chambers of commerce will meet Friday to discuss the state recycling bill.

Paul said the county's efforts in solid waste disposal would not be wasted if the state plan is realized.

The county's shredder would fit into the program, with the state either buying or leasing it from the county.

County 'favors' rapped; code of ethics proposed

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent staff writer

The judge conducting the John Doe probe in Outagamie County today expressed grave concerns about certain county board committee favor receiving and county failure to comply with bid procedures and called for a code of ethics to be established.

In a statement released at an unusual press conference, acting Circuit Court Judge R. Thomas Cane stated: "It is recommended that the Outagamie County Board adopt a code of ethics prohibiting its employes and elected officials from accepting any gifts or favors from individuals who are doing business with or requesting in any manner to do business with Outagamie County."

He said the code, among other things, should prohibit county officials and employes from accepting gratuities for doing their job, and if they do, they should be punished.

Cane, who has been receiving secret testimony since last July on several subjects, said he didn't believe that there had been criminal activity involved, but he feared the favor-receiving could lead to such activity and should be stopped immediately.

He declined to identify the committee. However, it was learned some time ago the county board highway committee was the subject of a portion of the probe.

Ervin (Butch) Conradt, chairman of the highway committee for several years and committee member for 17 until he retired from the county board last spring, said he had participated in the lunches and drinks, but saw nothing wrong in it. Other committees do the same, he said.

He suggested the county board should pay more or provide meal allowances if it stopped the free lunches from salesmen.

Conradt said the highway committee members, including himself, also had been taken on fishing trips to Canada by firms doing business with the county, but there was no talk about purchases on the trip, he said.

County Executive Alvin Woehler said he believed the judge was referring to the highway committee. "It sounds like that committee," he said.

Woehler said he concurred with the idea of a code of ethics and would pursue the matter.

Cane stated that the court found "a certain committee...has practiced for some time the acceptance of free

More charges?

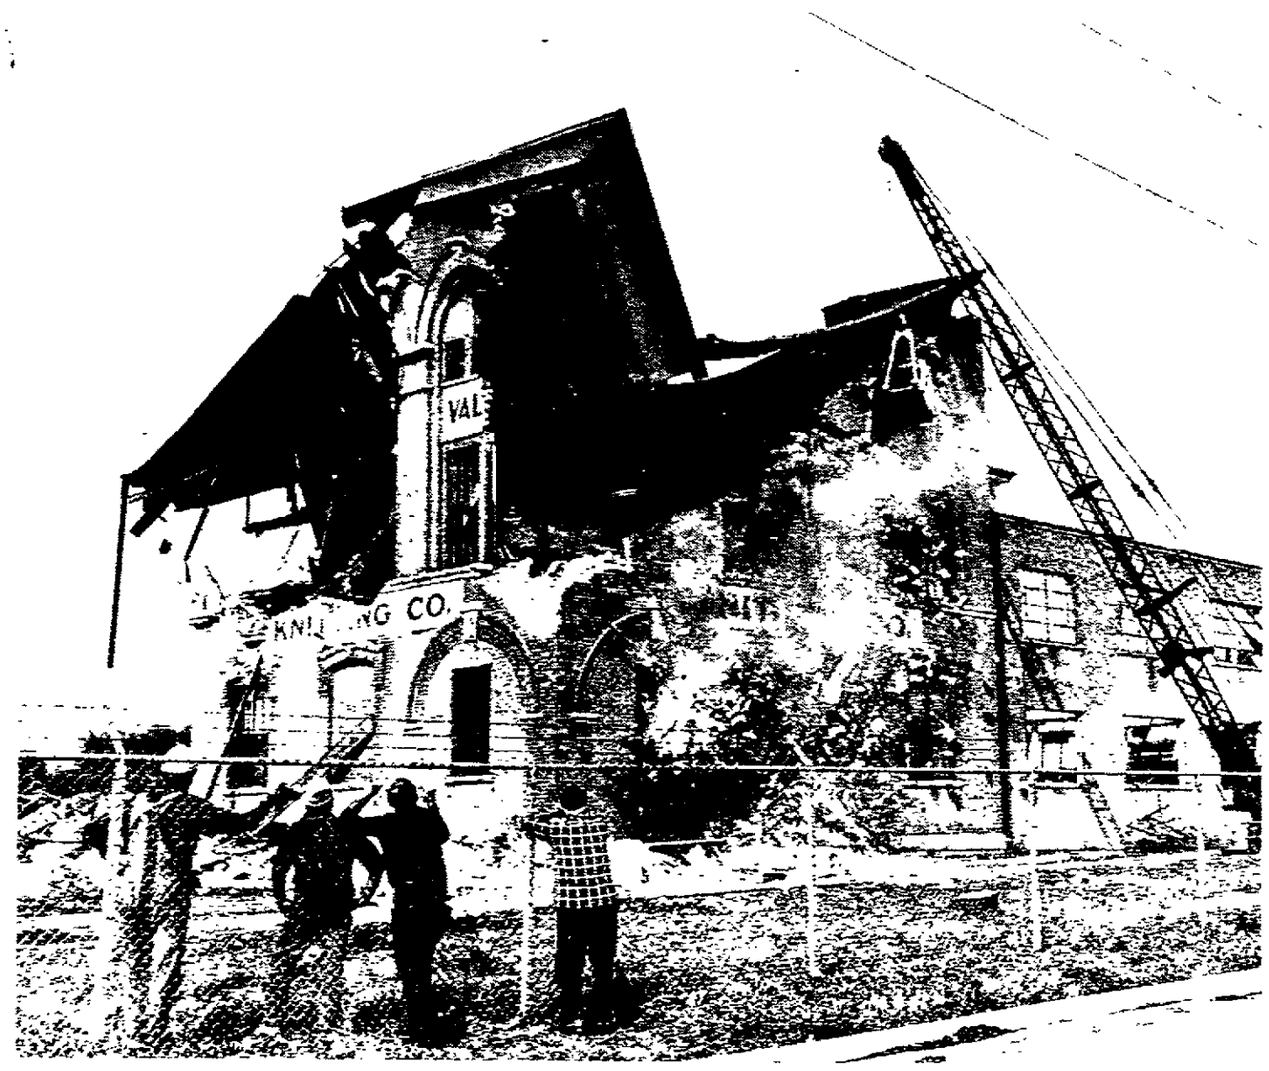

There may be more charges filed as a result of the John Doe probe in Outagamie County, but not involving county matters, acting Circuit Court Judge R. Thomas Cane revealed today.

Cane and Dist. Atty. John Ensley issued a statement on the probe this morning outlining plans to charge county health center Supt. Eugene Speener with three counts of misconduct in office and calling for a code of ethics for the county to stop certain favor-receiving practices and illegal purchase methods.

The judge, responding to reporters' questions, said other charges were being considered. He would not identify the area where they may come in, only assuring they wouldn't involve county government.

Apparently, the only noncounty government complaint probed in the closed Doe hearing was an allegation by certain members of Operating Engineers Local 139, Appleton, of misconduct by union leaders.

At least three union members have testified since Aug. 8, including the complainants on that day and one near the end of September. The first two witnesses were Charles Strong, of the Clintonville area, and Wilbert Lupas. The third witness was not identified.

End of landmark

Demolition crews went to work this week on the former Fox River Valley Knitting Co. building at 808 W. Wisconsin Ave. to make room for a shopping development. The building had been vacant since 1971, when the knitting firm — a leading manufacturer of socks — moved to Osage, Iowa, where it is operating under the same management. The building was constructed shortly after the turn of the century. (Post-Crescent photo)

Officials oppose rezoning landfill

Opposition to Appleton's petition to rezone its Mackville landfill site from wetland floodplain to agricultural was expressed this morning by Town of Center officials and a state agency.

Arguments on the rezoning were aired during a public hearing before the Outagamie County zoning committee. The hearing was recessed to 1:30 p.m. Oct. 31 at which time the committee will make a recommendation, Supv. Joseph DeBruin, chairman, indicated.

The city is under state Department of Natural Resources (DNR) orders to close the landfill by Oct. 1, 1974, because of it being in the floodplain. Rezoning the site out of the floodplain would lift the state order.

Robert Miller, Appleton director of public works, said the city is going on the assumption it will need a landfill even after the county's solid waste shredder is in operation. There are items, he said, which cannot be run through the shredder and which still must be disposed of. Of particular concern, he said, is Dutch Elm diseased trees.

He questioned whether the site actually was in the floodplain, contending that most of the land had already been filled above the floodplain level when the zoning was placed on the site in 1968. "Further fill will not increase the leaching problem," he said.

Miller said most of the leaching problem had been eliminated when the site was converted from a dump to a landfill by use of a clay cover.

However, the state Bureau of Water and Shoreland Management, in a report filed with the committee, stated that "removing the land from the zoning does not solve the problem. Leaching is a bigger problem than potential impediment of water."

It must be decided, the state bureau contended, whether the fill was there when the area was originally zoned a floodplain.

The Town of Center board, in a letter to the committee, "strongly opposed" the rezoning.

Delmar Schmeichel, former Town of Center chairman, termed the site "a sick area. It was made sick through the dumping of garbage." He said that if the ground continues to be polluted, the water supply for that area eventually will become polluted.

"It is too late to stop what's already there," he said, "but we can stop adding to the sickness."

Vernon Geiger, Soil Conservation Service agent, said the soils in the area were poorly drained and carried a "severe limitation" rating for landfill use. "It's not a very good place for a landfill," he said.

Miller told the committee that the city was fighting a time problem. "We have to get out by Oct. 1. Unless you (the county) are ready to accept this material on Oct. 1, I'm dead."

Sidewalk plan would set traffic flow standards

BY FRANK CHURCH
Post-Crescent staff writer

Members of the Appleton Street and Sanitation Committee have an idea for a city sidewalk policy. Now they must test it.

Their idea is for a policy that combines the present procedure of installing walks when requested or ordered by the City Council with one that sets vehicle–pedestrian flow standards which must be met for the city to order walks installed over property owner objections.

The proposal comes from Ald. Glenn Thompson (13th), who has proposed since mid-summer that the city either establish a policy for installing sidewalks or put the question to a referendum.

Thompson and other members of the committee worked out the policy formula at a special meeting Wednesday. They'll now have part of it tested by Traffic Engineer Albert Letzkus before another special session tentatively set for Oct. 31 when they could act to recommend its passage.

The policy now tentatively formulated would require sidewalks:

—Along state, county or primary city streets with curb and gutter;

—Wherever the council orders them installed. But that order could be overridden by objecting property owners if they are called for in an area that does not have a specified amount of traffic —pedestrian and vehicular — each day.

The standard now contemplated — one which will be tested by Letzkus — would allow for sidewalks on one side of the street when hourly vehicular traffic numbers between 30 and 100 and pedestrians number at least 75 per day, or when vehicles number over 100 per hour and pedestrians number at least 50 per day.

Sidewalks could be ordered in on both sides if 50 to 100 vehicles per hour matched with at least 250 pedestrians per day, or more than 100 vehicles per hour and at least 150 pedestrians per day passed by.

What the committee is unsure of now is the standard for pedestrian traffic. Letzkus took a figure from a 1954 report of the American Association of State Highway Officials and Thompson cut that in half to arrive at the tentative standard.

Letzkus will run pedestrian counts along Fremont Street, east of Telulah Avenue, an area absent of homes but along a route used by children going to school.

"I kind of like it," said Thompson of the proposed policy. "It gives the people the voice that they want."

Thompson admitted that lots of property owner objections could create lots of work for city engineers, who would have to survey areas proposed for sidewalk installation to see if they meet the standards.

But both he and Public Works Director Robert Miller agreed it was justified to insure sidewalks were put where they were needed and wanted, but not where they were not wanted and not needed.

The pedestrian-vehicle standards replace an earlier proposal from Thompson that would require sidewalks along a street with a traffic volume of more than 2,000 per day. That was "just to get the discussion going," Thompson said Wednesday.

Letzkus, in a three-page report for the committee that admitted there were no "recommended nor established criteria to determine the need for sidewalks," nevertheless said the city's present random procedure was both inconsistent and haphazard.

On the other hand, Letzkus said disadvantages to determining installation on the basis of specific physical standards (as now proposed) included the problem of coming up with "necessary" criteria and the necessity for traffic engineering studies at installation sites that are opposed.

CLC says no to sewer charge hike

The Cost of Living Council has refused to allow Appleton to apply a sewer service charge increase prior to the lifting of price controls on Aug. 12.

Director of Public Works Robert Miller, in a letter to the city water department, said "We have made every effort to obtain an exception from the Cost of Living Council which would permit immediate application of the rate increase. However, we have not been successful in that request."

The City Council had approved the rate increase to go into effect with the quarterly billings mailed Sept. 1. But the Internal Revenue Service ruled the increase could not be applied to any water used prior to the lifting of controls on Aug. 12.

The city appealed, contending there would be a year-end deficit in sewage treatment costs of $45,000 if there was any delay.

Miller said that the Cost of Living Council indicated the new rates can be applied to the quarterly billing being sent out Dec. 1.

Crash injuries fatal to rural Kaukauna youth

KAUKAUNA — A 16-year-old route 2, Kaukauna boy died early today of severe head injuries which he sustained in a fiery two-car accident at the intersection of Farrell and Greiner roads about 7:15 p.m. Wednesday.

According to Outagamie County Coroner Bernard H. Kemps, Randy J. Vander Heiden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Vander Heiden, died at 12:45 a.m. without regaining consciousness after the crash.

Two persons riding in the second car were listed in good condition today at Kaukauna Community Hospital. They were the driver, Gary D. Wisneski, 19, route 1, Kaukauna, with a shoulder separation, and Rodney B. Peirson, 17, route 1, Seymour, with face and knee cuts and several broken teeth.

Authorities said the Vander Heiden youth was alone in the car and heading west on Greiner toward Appleton, where he was to do some shopping. His car collided in the unmarked intersection with the Wisneski auto, which was heading north on Farrell. The accident took place less than a mile from the Vander Heiden residence.

The two vehicles left the roadway and entered a field at the northwest corner of the intersection, where the Vander Heiden car burst into flames. The crash was discovered a few moments later by Vander Heiden's father, who was driving to a neighbor's house.

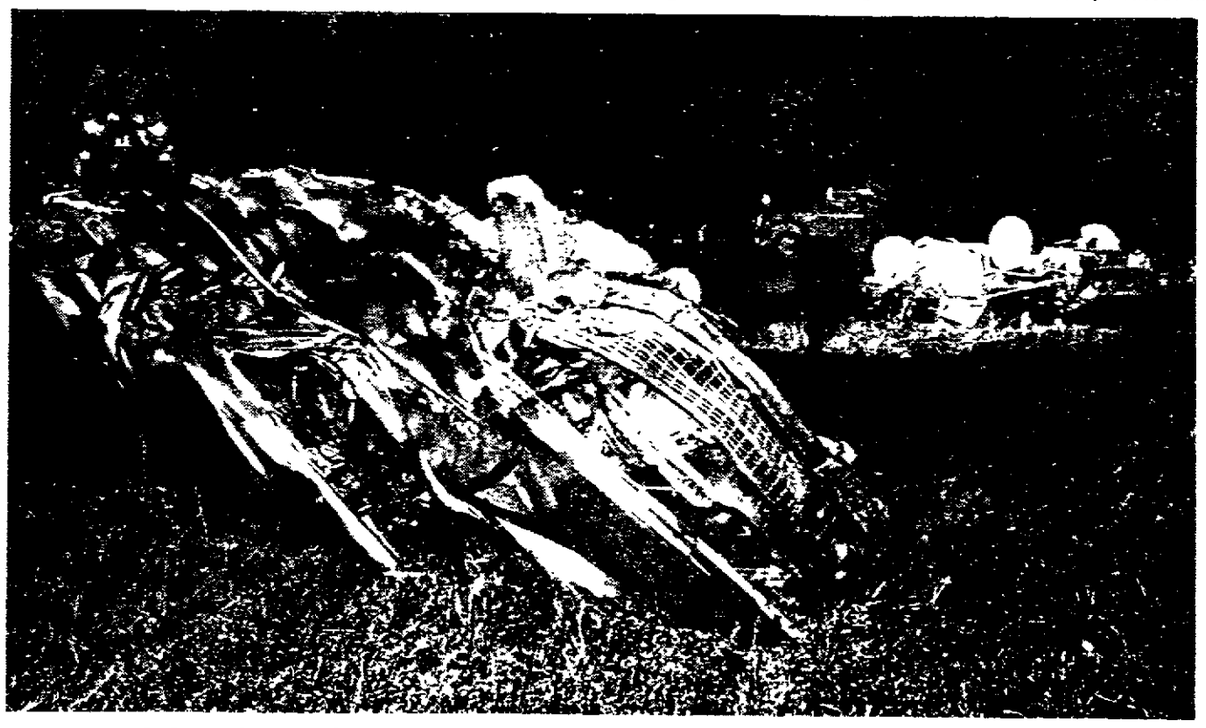

The elder Vander Heiden saw his son lying unconscious on the front seat of the burning auto and pulled him out.

The death was the 32nd this year on county roads, establishing an all-time record. The previous mark of 31 was set in 1968, while only 17 fatalities had been reported by this date one year ago.

The victim had been a junior at Kaukauna High School.

New names mulled for Langedyke

"Houdini," "Veterans Memorial" and "Arthur Jones" were some of the labels mulled by Appleton park and recreation commission members Tuesday as they began a search for a new name for Langedyke Park on the city's northeast side.

"We'd like to find a word that's a little easier to spell," said commission Chairman Jean Dorn.

The commission will put off until at least its next meeting a decision on a new name. The suggestions brought up Tuesday came from a brief effort to get the public to suggest new titles for the park that is midst of a multiyear development plan.

The present name comes from the former owner of the land.

Some commissioners were unsure whether a new name should be selected before the development project is completed. Some, however, thought it should be selected immediately, to get people accustomed.

"There may be a more deserving name later on," said Commissioner Orville Strutz.

"There'a nothing to say that it can't be changed again if a more deserving names comes up," countered Commissioner Ralph West.

Applefest contests to add festive suspense

Babies, golden-agers, smiles, the Big Apple and good food will all fit in the spotlight next week as Applefest contests put a bit of suspense into the festivities.

The first baby born after 10 a.m. this Saturday at Appleton Memorial or St. Elizabeth hospitals will be the winner of the Applefest baby contest. The winning baby will be presented with a $25 savings bond through the courtesy of the Multiple Listing Service of Fox Valley, Inc., sponsors of the contest.

Baby Applefest will also receive an assortment of other gifts donated by Appleton-area merchants.

The Applefest prince and princess who won the Outagamie County Women's Dental Auxiliary smile contest will ride in the Applefest, Appleton High School-East homecoming parade, which starts at 10 a.m. Saturday.

Karen Hietpas, 10, Kimberly, and Grant Strebe, 11, Appleton, won the smile competition after entering photos of themselves, dentists' notes testifying to their dental health and brief statements about their smiles.

Brownies will also get into the apple spirit Saturday with an apple adventure day planned in some city parks. About 500 Brownies will participate in apple treasure hunts, bobbing for apples and other activities at Plamann, Jones and Telulah parks beginning at 10 a.m.

A Big Apple dance contest, featuring a $25 savings bond as top prize, will cap Saturday's Applefest activities at Pierce Park. The MLS-sponsored contest will begin at 5 p.m. in the park's pavilion. Judges will be from the Arthur Murray studio.

Senior adults in the area will also be recognized during Applefest activities with the Golden Apple awards. The contest is cosponsored by the Outagamie County Bank and the Appleton "Y" Auxiliary.

The award will be presented to the man and the woman over age 60 who have been judged outstanding community leaders and who have exemplified the good citizen. The presentation will be made at an Applefest buffet luncheon at the Appleton YMCA beginning at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Mother's apple pie won't be the only good cooking coming out of the Applefest fresh apple recipe contest next week.

Persons 18 years or older in the Fox Cities were invited in September to send in their recipes using fresh apples in one of four divisions — salads, desserts, main dishes and breads or quick breads.

The top three entries were picked in each category and will compete in a bake-off at 10 a.m. Wednesday in the Reddy Room of the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co., 200 N. Appleton St.

Judges will consider appearance, nutrition, reasonable cost and ease of preparation. First-place winners in each division will be notified and receive a merchandise prize at the time of the bake-off.

Police & fire beat

Firemen were called to the rear of an apartment house at 1834 W. Pershing St. after a fire was reported in a large rubbish container about 9:45 p.m. Monday.

The firemen said flames were coming from the container when they arrived, but they could not determine the cause of the small blaze. The container is owned by Refuse Service Inc.

Rudolph A. Fischer, 49, 400 W. Glendale Ave., received a minor head injury when his car was struck by a city-owned pickup truck driven by George E. Edict, 52, 1328 S. Madison St., at the intersection of Pershing and Owaissa streets about 3 p.m. Monday.

Police said Edict was driving east on Pershing and failed to stop for a stop sign, entered the intersection and struck the car, headed south on Owaissa.

Two persons were taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital for treatment of injuries they received when their motorcycle was struck by a car at the intersection of College Avenue and Morrison Street about 7:30 p.m. Monday.

The driver, Benjamin M. Van Beek, 20, 337 S. John St., Kimberly, received a leg injury, while the passenger, JoAnn M. Utschig, 15, 2016 E. College Ave., sustained arm and leg injuries.

Police said the cycle was eastbound on College when the car, driven by Ewald Rehfeldt, 41, 1013 S. Christine St., made a left turn from College toward Morrison and entered its path.

Six brass drain covers valued together at $42 were reported stolen during the weekend from Appleton's west parking ramp.

A wallet containing $50 and personal papers and owned by Mrs. Robert Weaver, 3180 Justin Court, was reported lost Saturday evening at the Coach Lamp Inn, 211 S. Walnut St.

Approximately 80 feet of fencing, including wooden boards and posts, were reported damaged after weekend vandalism at the William Reffke residence, 200 E. Calumet St.

Police said the damage may have been done by children sitting on the fence and running minibikes into it.

COMBINED LOCKS — Vandals cause damage estimated at between $200 and $300 to restrooms and the lighting system at Van Zeeland Park over the weekend, and Police Chief Thomas Jansen said his men would make frequent checks of all village parks as a result of the complaints.

Three aluminum light standards, installed Thursday at a cost of $150 each, were broken loose from their mountings, lights broken and the hoods damaged by rocks. Screens were torn off the restrooms and toilets inside smashed, said Jansen.

Plan commission backs bid against rezoning

The Appleton Plan Commission turned back a recommendation of the city planning and development director and sided with a group of petitioning residents in recommending against R-2 zoning for a lot on the northwest corner of Schneider Place and Badger Avenue.

The rezoning was requested by Peter L. Petros, who wanted to build a duplex on the Sixth Ward lot now zoned R-1. Nearly 40 area residents petitioned against the move, however, and several of them appeared at the informal public hearing held by the plan commission Monday.

They complained that everything else in the area is single family, that rental property usually isn't as well kept up as owner occupied dwellings and it would lower the values of surrounding properties.

Planning Director Jack Hetu said the planned two-family structure would be compatible with the neighborhood. He challenged statements that it would lead to a chain of other two family structures in the area by saying it would "not establish a precedent because each project can be looked at on its own merits."

The recommendation goes to the common council for final okay.

In other action Monday, the commission:

—Recommended approval of the sale of two parcels of city land on the northeast and southeast corners of Third and Locust streets. Ald. Roylance Pointer (14th) said the area might become a suitable relocation site for at least one of the buildings on the block where the city intends to build a police station. Pointer said moving the residence might be cheaper for the city than tearing it down or acquiring it.

The two parcels, measuring about 120 - by - 120 feet each, were designated "public squares" when they were given to the city by the Village of Grand Chute in 1850. The park commission, which has jurisdiction over the areas, has recommended that the properties be sold because maintenance costs are too high for the use they are getting.

The proposal to sell the properties, made by Ald. Thomas Kamps (8th), includes provisions that the city reconnect a drain and acquire an easement to assure adequate drainage.

— Turned down an offer to buy property at 201-203 Lawrence Street for $100,000 from the H. C. Prange Co. Public Works Director Robert Miller said the property might be used for the proposed Jones Park Civic Center project, but both he and Hetu agreed that that was years off.

—Recommended vacation of a small portion of Jennie Street, measuring 112 feet on the longest side. The request for the vacation came from Dan C. Sparks, 1043 E. Eldorado.

Grand Chute receptive to industrial bond requests

GRAND CHUTE — The town board intends to adopt a resolution indicating it is receptive to requests for industrial revenue bond help by industries.

The board heard an explanation of the program — recently cleared for use in Wisconsin by a State Supreme Court decision on a Kaukauna-Thilmany Pulp and Paper Co. case. The presentation was made by Robert Chase, of the Appleton Area Chamber of Commerce.

Board members apparently are willing to adopt a resolution indicating their receptiveness, but not until they get word from the town attorney that it would cause no legal difficulties.

Under industrial revenue bonding, an industry can borrow money at advantageous rates through the municipality for construction or equipment purchases, such as in pollution abatement programs. On paper, the municipality is the borrower, but the industry assumes annual repayment responsibilities

Ira Livingston, town chairman, said that if the town could help stimulate industrial growth in the area, it would be beneficial for the area, not just the town.

County orders study of jail meal program

A request to increase the prisoner meal allowance paid to the sheriff was sent back to committee by the Outagamie County Board Wednesday with instructions to study the feasibility of the county's taking over the program.

Sheriff Calvin Spice presently receives 60 cents for each meal fed a prisoner in the security section of the jail and 70 cents for each meal fed a Huber Law prisoner.

The request was to increase the meal allowance by 10 cents in each category.

Supv. Eugene Kloes, who made the motion to send it back to committee, said "it's time we get rid of this 18th century hang-up." He said the county should handle the meal arrangements since it pays all other costs related to food.

In other counties, Kloes said, the sheriff also has to pay the cooks' salaries if he is paid a meal allowance.

Thirteen county workers employed under the Emergency Employment Act (EEA) were made permanent county employes, but only after a squabble over whether there was sufficient money in the contingency fund to pay their salaries for the remainder of this year.

The resolution, brought in by the personnel committee, called for the transferring of $13,000 from the contingency fund to pay the salaries for the last two months of this year. EEA funds expire Nov. 9.

Supv. Harold Miller, chairman of the finance committee, challenged the availability of the funds, saying the fund had less than $6,000 in it. Babbitt disagreed, more than $28,000 was available, including $22,653 which had been borrowed by the highway department and returned.

Miller said he had checked with the bookkeeping department and the highway department had not yet returned the money. "The October balance sheet will show the money has been returned," Babbitt said.

Supv. John Schreiter complained, "This is another example of funds being shifted around without the authorization of the finance committee or the county board."

In other action, the board approved the transfer of the juvenile court intake worker from the jurisdiction of the social services department to the juvenile court and approved the finishing of the flooring on the third floor of the safety building at a cost of $6,000.

Push for parochial school aid focuses on textbooks

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The drive for state financial assistance for the troubled parochial schools of Wisconsin has taken a new turn as the principal organization working for such support has abandoned former plans in favor of a state textbook financing program for all schools, public and private.

James E. Hough, legislative adviser for the Fair Education Committee, said he now is having drafted with the aid of legislative technicians a plan that would install in Wisconsin the free textbook plan that is operating in some other states.

Some localities now provide books for school children without charge. In other communities they are purchased by public school pupils. Another alternative is a rental system. But textbook service at public cost is confined to tax-supported school systems

Hough acknowledged that the cost to the state treasury may be an obstacle, but expressed hope that the so-called "power" formula written into the new state school aid budget could be amended to provide aids according to the financial capacity of the local districts

He acknowledged that the initial cost of providing textbooks for more than a million pupils in the public and private school systems would be formidable, but explained that he will remind the legislature that the books can be used for successive generations of children in the several grades.

Thus the average annual cost may appear reasonable to the legislators, he suggested hopefully, estimating that it might be as little as $7 million yearly over the long term.

The issue of some form of state relief for the nonpublic schools has been before the legislature for several terms and has been one of the most controversial of the questions debated there.

Two years ago an income tax credit bill for parents of parochial school students barely missed passage, but this year the legislature has appeared reluctant to take up the subject. Gov. Patrick Lucey, who has had considerable success with his own legislative proposals in two legislatures, consistently has declined to take a position on the issue.

Kerner's wife dies

LAKE GENEVA, Wis. (AP) — Helena Cermak Kerner, 67, the wife of former Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner, died Wednesday. She was the daughter of Anton Cermak, the mayor of Chicago when he was killed in 1933 by an assassin's bullet intended for then President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt.

New, $1.75 million nursing home to be constructed

Rose Nursing Homes, Inc., which four years ago constructed and now operates Oakridge Gardens Nursing Center at 1700 Midway Road, is planning to construct another facility of equivalent capacity across the road

The facility, which will be called Oakridge Gardens Nursing Center Annex, will cost $1.75 million and be started in about January and completed in August, 1974

The skilled care facility will have a capacity of 114 residents and include a new concept, according to Richard B. Rose, owner and administrator. There will be closed circuit television monitoring and tennis courts in the new two-story facility.

Rose, of Kaukauna, said there will be three wings initially, with the capability to increase it to six and a 244-resident capacity. The existing center has a 117-resident capacity

He estimated the new center would have about the same number of employes, including registered nurses and licensed practical nurses. The existing one has 88 employes.

The existing facility, which cost $1.1 million, is certified as an extended care facility for Medicare and Medicaid. Its residents come from the Fox Valley area.

The new facility will have a residential and skilled care area.

Rose and his wife operated nursing homes in Green Bay and Kaukauna, and have been in business for 18 years. The Kaukauna home was closed in 1969 because of federal requirements.

Clinic set for smokers

A clinic to help smokers who want to stop smoking will be conducted Sunday through Thursday at the Appleton Memorial Hospital

The five-day program will be sponsored by the Fox Cities Heart Watch, a division of the Wisconsin Heart Association, and presented by Bruce Roberts, who has been involved in similar projects for a number of years.

The program will be from 7:30 to 9 p.m. nightly and will cost $5 to cover the film lecture and the materials

The clinic emphasizes group therapy and a buddy system.

Registration will be accepted at Memorial Hospital until the first session Sunday evening.

Outagamie code of ethics sought

lunches, dinners and drinks at the expense of various salesmen who are attempting to sell property to the county."

He added: "The court is satisfied from the evidence presented there were no salesmen who received any advantage over the other with the county since the salesmen were expected to equally share the costs. However, I find this practice reprehensible since it could easily lead to abuse and a public officer or employe is not expected to receive any such personal hidden rewards by virtue of his office."

County Board Supv. George Kroes, highway committee chairman, said he didn't believe the practice of the lunches and drinks was wrong, but he said he probably would support a code of ethics prohibiting it, depending on how the code is written.

"I'm not going to say that we never had any lunches on salesmen," he said. "They occasionally feed us when we run into them at lunchtime, or when they're doing some demonstration."

He suggested it was "good for the county" for the committee to know what salesmen are selling and to handle some business at lunchtime, instead of during a special meeting.

Kroes, named chairman last spring to replace Ervin Conradt, contended the lunches happen only occasionally, perhaps once a month.

He also complained that Cane hadn't called in more than one member of the highway committee. He said he would contact the judge to express his disappointment.

The judge also stated that the court found that the county "has failed on numerous occasions to comply with Section 59.08 of the Wisconsin Statutes which requires the county to submit for competitive bids any contracts for construction, repairs, remodeling or improvement of any public work, building or furnishing of supplies or material of any kind where the estimated costs will exceed the sum of $1,000."

Cane added he didn't believe there were any "hidden motives" or excessive costs resulting. "I am satisfied in the future there will be compliance with this statute," he said.

Cane said he and Dist. Atty. John Ensley were making the statement — which he termed a rare practice after a Doe probe — "in the interest of justice and good government."

"We are both relieved that our county government is free of any corruption or impropriety other than what has been cited and believe that the people have a right to know this," he said.

The statement included announcement of the planned filing of criminal charges against Eugene Speener, health center superintendent, for three counts of misconduct in office.

Woehler said he would seek to have Cane, Ensley, Corp. Counsel William Schuh and himself sit down and draft a preliminary code to be brought before the county board for consideration.

Woehler said he believed the code should and would be implemented in the county.

However, he withheld his agreement with Cane's contention that illegal purchasing practices were being used in the county. He said the corporation counsel had issued a legal opinion some time ago that the practice was legal.

"If this is an area for discussion," he added, "I'm certain we would invite the judge and DA to sit down with us and resolve it in total. But I am not agreeing that this was a violation, at this point."

Woehler said the practice was used by county board committees, and the board approved the minutes of the committees.

Woehler declined to comment on the value of the Doe. He had questioned its value during the early stages, although he publicly said he would cooperate. He also unsuccessfully attempted to have the probe transferred to a judge from outside the county.

The Doe, which commenced in mid-July after a series of articles about health center activities in The Post-Crescent and subsequent complaints by certain county board supervisors, reached into at least four areas, including the health center, the highway committee purchasing, voucher control questions from the county clerk and alleged union leadership misconduct in Operating Engineers Local 139. The nature of a Doe is that it can be reconvened at any time when a complaint appears to have merit, and it can probe any area within the jurisdiction of the officials conducting it.

by his parents, three sisters and four brothers.

Visitation will be after 3 p.m. Friday at the De Wane Funeral Home, Wrightstown. Funeral services will be at 10 a.m. Saturday at Holy Cross Catholic Church, Kaukauna, with burial in St. Patrick Cemetery, Sniderville.

The boy was a nephew of Joseph Vander Heiden, at whose farm a barn was destroyed by fire Tuesday morning. The fire had been at the intersection of Farrell Road and County Trunk JJ, two miles south of the accident scene.

David A. Posey, 24, Dallas, died in a Bloomer hospital Wednesday of injuries received in a Sept. 29 accident, in which the panel truck he was riding in and a car collided on U.S. 53 south of New Auburn. Four others died in that crash.

The two deaths raised the state's 1973 traffic toll to 871, compared with 908 one year ago.

segments along a continuous route — reduces the effectiveness of existing sidewalk and encourages pedestrians to "remain on the street rather than changing to and from the street to walk around missing sidewalk areas," Letzkus reported.

The search for a city sidewalk policy began earlier this year, after a dispute over installation of sidewalks along Pershing Street and elsewhere. At that time — early June — Thompson proposed that the city either come up with a sidewalk policy by the end of the year or ask voters this spring if sidewalks should be required on all improved streets.

Police & fire beat

Nothing was reported missing after an apparent break-in late Sunday or early Monday at the Prince of Peace Lutheran Church, 2330 E. Calumet St.

Police said a northside office window was found standing open and several items knocked off an inside shelf onto the floor. In addition, there were pry marks on another window. No damage estimate was given.

Nothing was reported missing after break-ins to three used cars at Kolosso Auto Service, 226 N. Division St., during the weekend. Police said coat hangers may have been used to gain entry into the vehicles.

Municipal audit will be decided

HARRISON — A special meeting to ascertain whether electors want a municipal audit was authorized by the town board Wednesday night.

The meeting will be the week of Nov. 12, with a definite date established after consulting with the town attorney, Robert Lutz, Chilton.

A petition with 33 signatures asking that the town records be audited was first presented to the board last June by Mrs. Donald Zobel, route 1, Menasha. Since then she has presented several other requests, pointing out errors in the last two annual financial statements. Mrs. Zobel has stressed that she is not accusing town officials of wrong-doing, but feels financial procedures should be up-dated and better record keeping methods established.

The town board has repeatedly put off authorizing an audit because it felt the cost of $500 to $1,000 was too much.

Voters will have the opportunity to express their views at the special meeting. However, only matters pertaining to a municipal audit can be taken up at the meeting.

City to start leaf pickup

City crews Monday will begin picking up leaves along city streets, a job they expect to last until Nov. 17.

Crews will start north of the river at the east city limits and from there keep circling countercounterclockwise until all streets are covered. Three sweeps of the city are usually required.

The sanitation crews expect to make final cleanup from the gutters between Nov. 10-17.

Residents are cautioned not to rake leaves into the gutters when rain threatens. Street storm drains are sometimes clogged when the leaves are washed over them, resulting in flooded streets.

People can rake leaves into gutters or to the edge of the pavement from between Oct. 15 and Nov. 11. After that, leaves must be placed at the curb on regular refuse collection days.

Brush and garden debris should not be mixed with the leaves because they clog equipment and slow down collection.

Residents are also advised to keep leaf piles low so that children are not hidden from passing motorists. Piles of leaves should be kept close to the curb to avoid interfering with traffic.

Persons picked for Denver forum

Three area persons have been selected to serve as group discussion leaders for the third annual National Forum for the Volunteer Court-Corrections Movement, to be held Monday through Thursday in Denver.

The three, who will be among some 200 such leaders, include Mark Van Thiel of Kimberly, Dr. Howard Porter and Judge Nick F. Schaefer, both of Appleton. All three have been instrumental in prisoner rehabilitation work in Outagamie County.

Their leadership efforts at the convention, expected to be attended by nearly 3,000 persons from throughout the nation, were requested by Keith J. Leenhouts, founder and director of the national Volunteers in Probation movement.

Schaefer started the local VIP program which Van Thiel currently heads. Schaefer will lead a discussion on prisoner work release and community centered rehabilitation programs, while Van Thiel's group will deal with the roles and functions of volunteer coordinators such as himself.

Porter's group will discuss the role of psychologists in volunteer and corrections work, in addition to the functions of group counseling in rehabilitation.

Two other area persons will attend the conference. They are John Feavel, a field supervisor for the Wisconsin Division of Corrections, and Diane Cusatis, a volunteer agent in the local Volunteers in Probation program. Both are from Appleton.

Police & fire

KAUKAUNA — Harvey Cornelius, 27, 135 W. Second St., was taken by police to Kaukauna Community Hopsital for treatment of a head cut suffered in a tavern scuffle about 8:30 p.m. Saturday.

According to police, Cornelius started arguing with a friend and was hit by a bottle when a fight ensued. Neither Cornelius nor the other party would press charges.

Not enough action

BY DAN VANDERPAS
Post-Crescent staff writer

The debut of "Tenafly" on NBC's Wednesday Mystery Movie series (7:30-9 p.m., Channel 5) entitled "Joyride to Nowhere" was somewhat disappointing because of its lack of action and suspense.

The story finds Harold Tenafly (James McEachin), a private eye for High Tower Investigations, searching for a crook who rips off cab drivers. All of the cabs hit belong to the Trans Taxi Company and Tenafly wonders why Quick Cab Company drivers are not approached. During the opening scene, a cab driver is ordered at gunpoint to drive to an isolated area of the city. There he is forced to leave his car and remove his shoes as the gunman drives away with his vehicle. In order to aid his investigation, Tenafly, who looks like Hank Aaron with a mustache, moonlights as a cabbie. He meets fellow cab driver, Steve Hall (Michael Bell), who has aspirations of becoming a great writer.

The murder sends Tenafly to the victim's apartment where he finds a valuable Charles Dickens book.

He finally traces the book to Steve's brother, Grady (Ross Marlin). It turns out that Grady killed his brother in order to gain complete control of the Hall Piano & Organ Company estate.

Tenafly, an enjoyable down to earth character, is unlike other private eyes. He's a family man who worries about insurance premiums and drives a compact car. During the opener, he helps iron out a relative's family problem.

The debut is sprinkled with bits of humor. Tenafly becomes upset when the freshly painted name on his parking stall is misspelled.

As he drives the cab, the black investigator nearly has to deliver a baby. He also gets uptight when a cab inspector fare acts like a prime holdup suspect.

In another scene, policeman Sam's best noon hour buddy is a hippo. Later, Tenafly's surprised to find that a lawyer, Leslie R. Storm, turns out to be a kindly old lady.

And finally, he almost goes to pieces when an anticipated shot in the back is just a loud pound on a piano's keyboard.

Unlike Frank Cannon, who goes into action during a similar time slot on another network, Tenafly's life is in no great danger until the final five minutes of the hour and a half program.

He wasn't involved in any high-speed chases, shootouts or fisticuffs. Rather than being a brave and fearless defender of justice, this detective isn't anxious to shed blood or endanger his life.

However, like other TV private eyes, Tenafly is a cool, intelligent operator.

If the stories become a little more action packed, he'll be an interesting man to watch.

The biggest problem I have with "Doc Elliot" (9-10 p.m. Wednesdays, Channel 11) is accepting James Franciscus in the title role. I was not overly impressed with him in his earlier roles as "Mr. Novak" and "Longstreet."

In his new series, Franciscus plays a doctor who gets sick of the New York City rat race (rats there must be in good shape) and moves his practice to the Colorado Rockies, where he covers 600 square miles of rugged territory.

The concept of the series is not new, lord knows, but if it is handled well we might end up with a show somewhat above the level of soapy melodrama.

Judging by the opener, "...And All Ye Need to Know," nothing too profound is to be expected. The plot was predictable. In fact, by 9:15, I had determined what the major problem was, even though it took Doc until 9:45 to suspect. The story involved a blind young woman (Meredith Baxter), very pretty, who was married to not-too-glamorous mountain man, played by Mills Watson. Doc determines an operation could restore the woman's sight and can't for the life of him understand why her husband is upset. It was obvious to everyone but Doc Elliot that the man is afraid that when she can see, the wife will reject him, just as every other woman did previously.

Doc would not have figured it out at all, except that Emmett, the husband, finally spelled it out for him in a nice little exchange. "You're blinder than she is," Emmett says. "What do you mean," Doc replies, innocently. "I'm a warthog, mister. And I had me a rose." Doc is shocked.

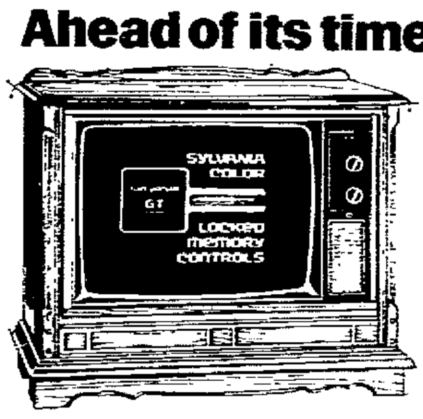

Even if Doc Elliot rambles around the Rockies curing all ills but not picking up on obvious human situations, this series has some chance of being enjoyable. The people seemed real and the dialogue generally intelligent. Now if they can make the Doc bright, we're all set.

NOTICE OF SPECIAL BOND REFERENDUM

TO ELECTORS OF Joint School District No. 1 of the Village of Hortonville, Towns of Center, Dale, Ellington, Grand Chute, Greenville, Hortonia and Liberty, Outagamie County, Wisconsin

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a special bond referendum will be held between the hours of 7:00 A.M. and 8:00 P.M. on October 20, 1973, in the polling places set forth below, for the purpose of approving or rejecting the following Initial Resolution adopted by the School Board at its meeting held September 24, 1973.

Initial Resolution

RESOLVED that Joint School District No. 1 of the Village of Hortonville, the Towns of Center, Dale, Grand Chute, Greenville, Hortonia and Liberty, Outagamie County, Wisconsin, borrow an amount not to exceed $2,200,000 by issuing its general obligation coupon bonds for the purpose of providing funds to construct a new elementary school in Hortonville and an addition to Hortonville High School and necessary land acquisition.

The question to be asked is: Shall the following Initial Resolution be approved? [illegible] and the answer to be given to such question shall be either "YES" or "NO". A "YES" vote shall indicate the Elector's approval of the borrowing of money, and the issuance of bonds not exceeding $2,200,000 for the purpose of constructing a new elementary school in Hortonville and an addition to the Hortonville High School and necessary site acquisition. A "NO" vote shall indicate the Elector's rejection of such borrowing and such purpose.

In the event a majority of the Electors at referendum vote "Yes" as to the Initial Resolution, the School District will be authorized to undertake such project and may issue bonds in an amount not in excess of the amount stated therein to finance the costs thereof.

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Medication needed to wipe out scabies

Dear Dr Thosteson: My daughter contracted mites, or scabies. How and where she does not know, but she traveled in Europe some months ago and we believe she picked up the trouble along the way

My husband and I have the same trouble now, and I need to know more about it —Mrs L R

Scabies used to be the scourge of people who didn't keep clean Not now Just about anybody can get these pests

Dr Charles Parish of the University of Pennsylvania recently spoke on the comeback of scabies along with crab lice and body lice

Both were thought to be almost extinct Now obviously they aren't Thev are becoming very prevalent indeed

Close human contact is thought to be the way scabies spreads — the mite which causes the ailment burrows under the skin to lay eggs and leaves a telltale itchy streak The trouble occurs mainly on exposed parts of the body, arms and legs

Since the trouble in scabies is under the skin, scratching doesn't do any good. You need a medication that will get at the mites (and their eggs) in the tunnels they have dug

Treatment has to be diligent A lick and a promise just isn't going to do the job In the past sulfur lotions have been used with good effect, but they were pretty smelly Currently the preference is for a 25 per cent solution of benzyl benzoate applied as a lotion after a thorough bath

A medication used for crab lice — called Kwell — also is effective for scabies

Treatment ordinarily should be repeated two or three times at four-day intervals

As in your case, scabies can involve the whole family Besides medication, clothing and bedding must be thoroughly laundered to get rid of mites Even the family dog can become infected and be a cause of recurrence of the trouble It's worth having a vet check

Clothing should be changed daily, but there's one happy situation Machine washing kills the mites

Dear Dr Thosteson I have taken mineral oil for my well-being every day for about nine years now. Can it affect my eyesight and give me high cholesterol? —F N

I don't know what you expected to accomplish by taking so much mineral oil What did you expect, by the way?

Since too much mineral oil can interfere with absorption of vitamin A, there possibly could be some effect on eyesight, on night vision, that is It won't increase your cholesterol, but I would recommend that you curtail such extensive use of mineral oil

Dear Dr Thosteson My husband died recently of a heart attack The doctor that signed the death certificate said the cause was "acute myocardial infarction due to arteriosclerotic cardiovascular disease and hypertensive cardiovascular disease" Can you explain this in plain language?

—Mrs M E S

It means damage to the heart muscle (a heart attack) due to hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure

---

Dear Dr. Thosteson Should a "fistula in ano" be treated if it causes no problems and is inactive? —R M

Yes, because such a fistula (often called a rectal fistula) can become infected at any time A fistula is an abnormal channel through the tissues and should be corrected before it becomes infected or causes other symptoms

Hemorrhoids can be cured If troubled with fissures, fistulas, itching and other rectal problems write to Thosteson in care of The Post Crescent requesting a copy of his booklet The Real Cure for Hemorrhoids," enclosing a long, self addressed (use ZIP code), stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling

Roth one of four appointed to property tax exemption group

State Rep Toby Roth, R-Appleton, is one of four state legislators appointed to a special study committee on personal property tax exemptions to see if state budget provisions calling for a phase out of the tax by 1978 should stand up

Roth, who along with the three other legislators will be joined by three citizen members on the committee appointed by Gov Patrick Lucey said the personal property tax has long been recognized as 'biased and unfair

"I believe the budget provisions for ultimately eliminating this tax are justified," he said "I am confident such justification will be borne out by the study to be undertaken by our committee"

The committee, authorized by the recently passed state budget, will make recommendations regarding the effects of exempting manufacturers' materials and finished products, merchants stock and livestock from personal property taxation

It is instructed to report late in 1974

Back after three years off

8-9 Channels 2-7 —For the first time in three years, Jackie Gleason is back on the home screen The Jackie Gleason Special reunites some of the old Gleasonians — Art Carney and Jane Kean, plus Sheila MacRae and Garry Merrill — and has Jackie trotting out some of his old characters (The Honeymooners, Reggie Van Gleason) for the occasion

6-7 Channel 38 —The Advocates, Yale Law Professor and leading Constitutional authority, Alexander Bickel and James Hill, prominent Atlanta attorney, debate the issue of President Nixon's refusal to release his tapes Attorney Hill will offer a defense of the President's decision opposing Prof Bickel's view of the public's right to know

7-8 Channels 9-11 — Toma speeds along, and tonight some hit men hit the wrong men, and Toma (Tony Musante) sets out to nab them He has the help of a young student (Geoffrey Deuel), who may not be exactly what he seems It's a crime story with a happy ending

7-8 Channels 2-7 — Once again, The Waltons brings back a character from last season —Verdie, the black woman (played by Lynn Hamilton) A wandering black man and his little son come to town and Verdie sets her cap for the father But he's the kind who doesn't want to be tied down

7-8 Channel 5 —The Flip Wilson Show has a solid hour of entertainment Flip's buddy, Redd Foxx, joins Rev LeRoy in church to explain why religion is like an automobile They do a skit showing how money can be made from art Joan Rivers has a funny monologue about the battle of the sexes and Helen Reddy is on hand for a musical interlude

8-9 Channels 9-11 — Caine (David Carradine) is mixed up with all kinds of caricature cutthroats on Kung Fu, and there is a plot of sorts about a chalice stolen from a mission Better is the flashback story which explains, for the first time, how Caine escaped from China with the help of a priest.

8-9 Channel 5 — Ironside is pretty heavy going this week A scientist disappears and maybe he defected But his wife and Ironside (Raymond Burr) don't believe his pre-typed farewell. Then it all bogs down in a mish-mash of ideology and computer technology

9-10 Channels 9-11 — The Streets of San Francisco has a sad little story of a second-rate crook (Tom Bosley) who makes a big score — but it backfires Chased by both cops and killers, he has no place to hide, except his old cell on Alcatraz This is the first time Alcatraz has been filmed since the Indians were in residence

9-10 Channels 2-7 — CBS Reports delves into the closeted world of the autistic child on A Boy Named Terry Egan According to psychiatrist Dr Bruno Bettelheim, interviewed for the special, autism infers a withdrawal into oneself, as in the case of Terry, 9, who with professional help, is just now learning to tolerate physical communication with his family and peers

9-10 Channel 5 —NBC Follies is full of fun, from the beginning (Joey Heatherton, Sammy Davis Jr and Ken Berry with "Clap Your Hands") to the finale (an Oriental-style number, featuring The Little Angels of Korea with their drum-and-fan routine) In between you'll see Wayne Newton, Mickey Rooney and a funny Japanese flamenco act, The Ultra 3 Chief sketches are a Ziegfeld number and a spoof of psychiatry.

Cover a bottle with flattened straws

BY CAPPY DICK

A straw-covered soft drink bottle is an ornament to use as a curio on a desk or coffee table. Any boy or girl will enjoy making one from such easy-to-find materials as soda straws and glue.

Use it for a vase

Flatten the straws by placing them one at a time on a table and creasing them with your finger. Be sure the creases are sharp so the straws will be easy to shape to the sides of the bottle.

Spread glue on a straw and stick it vertically to the bottle. If a straw isn't long enough to extend from the top of the bottle to the bottom, patch in a piece of straw to complete the length.

When the bottle has been covered, reinforce the straws by twisting pipe cleaners around the bottle as shown in Figures 1 and 2.

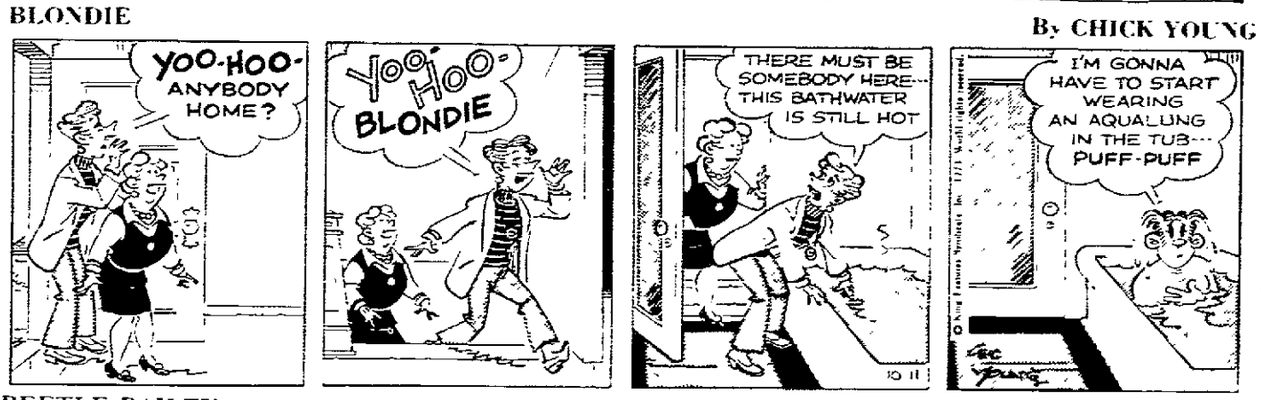

Figure 2 shows the straw bottle as a flower vase. If the straws have been applied properly, the bottle will look somewhat like an imported container.

Mothers! If you need new ideas to entertain your children's scout meetings and birthday parties, you'll find 45 of them in Cappy Dick's "Birthday Party Stunts" booklet. To get a copy, send 50 cents in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Cappy Dick Booklets, P.O. Box 42877, Evergreen Park, Ill. 60642.

Tomorrow, a spool of thread "imbedded" in a solid rock!

Mayhem in Metsville

Dust rises from a paper-littered Shea Stadium field as thousands of New York Mets fans descend from the stands Wednesday after the Mets defeated Cincinnati, 7-2, to win the National League pennant. (AP wirephoto)

Mets' fans go wild after 7-2 triumph

BY KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) —It's two miracles down and one to go for the New York Mets.

"You've got to believe," said pitcher Tom Seaver after the miraculous Mets won the National League pennant with a stunning 7-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds Wednesday.

Winning the pennant for New York's Cinderella team was as unlikely as winning the National League East had been—but there it was.

Next stop is the World Series, an illogical thought through most of the summer when the Mets were far behind the leaders in the NL East. "We were dead three months ago," said veteran Ed Kranepool, "and dead one month ago."

Three months ago, the Mets were 12½ games behind. One month ago, they were in last place. So miracles do happen.

"I just want to win four more games," said a buoyant Yogi Berra, the Mets' manager. "Just four more."

The Mets will go into the World Series Saturday at the American League site—Baltimore and Oakland play the fifth and deciding game in the AL playoffs today—fresh from an emotion-charged playoff series that had every element of baseball drama—and then some.

New York won the deciding game of the five-game set with a pitcher who supposedly wasn't able to win the big ones and with a lineup that wasn't supposed to hit that well.

Seaver, although the ace of the New York staff, was the only Met pitcher to lose a game in the 1969 World Series—when the "Amazins"' won their only world championship. And since then, critics have derided Seaver for losing crucial games, calling him a "choke" pitcher.

The Mets' hitting has been suspect all season, too. On paper, their lineup doesn't have nearly the firepower of the Reds. But on Wednesday, they out-hit their supposedly stronger opponents 13-7.

The New York manager had been fired by the fans and the press long before the Mets made their season-ending charg toward the National League East flag. Incidentally, Berra became only the second manager in baseball history to win pennants in both the National and American Leagues. Berra won a flag with the New York Yankees in 1964. The other man to turn the trick was Joe McCarthy, with the National League's Chicago Cubs in 1929 and eight times with the Yankees.

Berra's coveted pennant had a bitter flavor to it, though. After Tug McGraw came in to save Seaver in a bases loaded, ninth-in-nine jam, a bizarre scene of mob rule erupted at Shea Stadium.

Uncontained by the park police, thousands of fans rolled out of the stands and literally tore up the place. The vandals not only ripped off temporary stands along first and third base, but scooped giant holes out of the turf.

Several people were hurt in the ensuing madness as the Met fans went beserk, fighting among themselves and attempting to grab the fleeing players who literally ran for their lives.

At dusk, the Shea Stadium field had a supernatural moonscape effect with jagged craters throughout.

"They brought the fans from the zoo to the ball park and they bring them back after the game," said Cincinnati's Pete Rose, who had been the object of scorn from Met fans since Monday when he had a brawl-sparking fight with Met shortstop Bud Harrelson.

"Pete was the first one we worried

Orioles overcome A's lead for 5-4 victory

OAKLAND (AP) —The game that got away from the Oakland A's forced the American League playoffs into the finale today of a series where the unusual outdistanced the expected and home run hitters haven't been the sluggers.

Catcher Andy Etchebarren and second baseman Bobby Grich provided the power Wednesday that won 5-4 for Baltimore's Orioles after the A's had led 4-0 through six innings and Vida Blue had given up only two singles.

Etchebarren hit a three-run homer that tied the score in the seventh and then Grich led off the eighth with a blast off reliever Rollie Fingers that also cleared the left field fence in the Oakland Coliseum.

The day before, Oakland shortstop Bert Campaneris homered in the 11th for a 2-1 victory.

Today, the Orioles face the A's ace right-hander Jim "Catfish" Hunter who was 3-0 against them in a 21-5 season even though Baltimore slammed eight home runs from his offerings.

The Orioles, who saw their ace Jim Palmer blasted in the second inning Wednesday, rely on Doyle Alexander, 12-8. Alexander was 1-0 against the A's and allowed only five hits and one earned run in the 13 1-3 innings he pitched against them in the regular season.

The AL playoffs go an extra day in deciding who will meet the New York Mets in the World Series because of a rainout Monday.

Etchebarren's hit drove in Don Baylor and Brooks Robinson ahead of him and the latter had already knocked in the first Baltimore run. Then Grich, with 12 homers during the 162-game regular season, homered off a Fingers fast ball.

While Etchebarren and Grich took the batting honors, the Orioles came up with a pair of fine relief pitching performances from Bob Reynolds and Grant Jackson.

Reynolds took over in the second inning up only one run in 4 2-3 innings. Jackson, a southpaw, came on in the seventh with two runners on base and one out and retired the A's Jackson and Gene Tenace, the home run slugger of last year's World Series.

Jackson became the winning pitcher as the Orioles overcame the four-run lead with just eight outs to go.

Gridders seek little extra

BY ROGER PITT
Post-Crescent staff writer

The emotions of homecoming will be counted on by several teams this weekend as they prepare to face conference football leaders.

Wautoma and Shiocton, both 1-4, have Central Wisconsin Conference co-leaders Little Chute and Manawa, both 4-0-1, respectively, to contend with.

Xavier (1-4) is host to unbeaten Fox Valley Christian Conference power Green Bay Premontre in a 7:30 p.m. Friday game at Goodland Field.

New London (1-3) faces No. 3 Middle 10 school Ripon (3-0) in an East Central Conference match. However, the favored Tigers will be the home team.

Brillion (4-1), co-leader in the Olympian Conference plays at winless Hilbert at 8 p.m. Friday.

The schedule has the ingredients for some stunning upsets around the area.

Appleton West and Oshkosh North, co-leaders in the Fox Valley Association, face stiff tests from Neenah and Menasha, respectively. The Terrors and North possess 3-1 slates, while both Twin-City clubs are 2-2.

Paul Engen's Terrors rank as the most-solid defensive club in the FVA allowing just 20 points. Neenah's ground game has been explosive at times and sputtered badly at others.

Menasha relies on the big play and an emotional, hard-hitting defense. The Bluejays must stop the Spartans' Steve Schmid who has rushed for more than 100 yards in every game this season. Schmid leads the FVA in scoring with 32 points and rushing with 484 yards in 121 carries.

Kaukauna (2-2) goes after its third straight win against Oshkosh West (1-3). Both teams must stop one player who is the key to the offense. Al Potratz carries the brunt of the OW offense with 327 yards rushing, while Reed Giordana has riddled opponents for 523 yards via the airways on 38 completions in 59 attempts.

Surprising Kimberly (2-2) will try to improve its position in the standings Saturday at Appleton East (1-3). Karl Lamers has gained 163 yards rushing and Dick Van Grinsven has passed for only 26 yards in leading Kimberly which has a scrappy team. Bob Marx has passed for 280 yards, Dave Gerard ran for 208 and Kerry Frank 192 for Appleton East.

Small school opponents of No. 4 ranked Manawa and No. 5 Little Chute have had nothing to show for their efforts. In fact, the two schools played to a scoreless tie earlier in the season and appear headed for a co-championship. Both have five shutouts this season.

Wautoma must stop the rugged ground attack led by Todd Jansen and Scott Schommer and the passing of Rick VanderWyst. The Mustangs have limited opponents to nine points this season while scoring 92 in the CWC.

Steve Lowney went on a six touchdown binge last week for Manawa and the senior speedster will be the main cause for concern as Shiocton celebrates homecoming with a 1:30 p.m. Saturday game.

Perhaps the best game of the week in the CWC will be played Friday night at Weyauwega when the Indians host Marion. Both teams are 3-2, however, Weyauwega has suffered only one loss on the grid iron this season as they forfeited one game for using an ineligible player.

The keen rivalry between intra-city opponents Fox Valley Lutheran and Xavier will be put aside Friday night as the Hawks host Premontre. FVL, currently second in the FVCC with a 4-1 record, must rely on outside help in catching the Cadets, 6-0, who dealt the Foxes their only loss.

Xavier coach Bob Pliska noted, early in the week, the homecoming festivities may add enough spark to the Hawks to pull an upset. Xavier ranks third in offense, despite a 1-4 record. Fundamental mistakes have stopped many Hawk scoring bids this season.

Defense-minded Fond du Lac Springs, 3-2, can't be taken lightly by the Foxes who must win to keep their hopes of overtaking Premontre alive. Doug Mattek, 708 yards, and Tom Hanke, 338 yards, pace FVL's rushing attack, the most potent in the FVCC. Mattek leads conference scorers with 56 points.

Menasha St. Mary (3-2) hosts Manitowoc Roncalli (2-3) in a 7:30 p.m. Saturday contest at Goodland Field. The Zephyrs defense has held the team in contention allowing just 147.6 yards a game, while the offense has been sputtering. Injuries to key offensive people have caused some of St. Mary's problems.

New London upset Ripon last year in New London. Quarterback Jim Snyder has thrown for 556 yards and Bill Rohan has run for 301. If they avoid the mistakes which have stopped many scoring bids, the Bulldogs again could surprise the Tigers.

No. 7 rated middle school Omro takes its bruising running game to Winneconne. Omro, 3-0, has allowed just 19 points to ECC teams this year.

Hilbert's offense hasn't scored in the Olympian Conference. The defense, which has allowed 97 points scored the only points for Hilbert with a safety. Quarterback Shorty Biedenbender and back Tom Mullins pace the Brillion offense.

Cardinals obtain aide

ST. LOUIS (AP) —Dave Ricketts, bullpen coach for the Pittsburg Pirates for the past three seasons, has been hired to fill the same position for the St. Louis Cardinals.

Ricketts, 38, a former catcher for the Cardinals, will replace Tony Auferio.

Peay likely starter for Chiefs

BY LEE REMMEL

GREEN BAY — The football fates, sometimes cold and cruel, also can be poetic.

A case in point is Francis Peay, the recent Packer, who currently is a valued Kansas City Chief.

Early in 1972, the classically built offensive tackle was injured in a 20-14 disaster against Oakland which also cost the Packers the services of Gale Gillingham and Rich McGeorge for the season. He subsequently lost his job to his replacement, Bill Hayhoe, who became a permanent starter.

In the off-season, Peay accordingly was dealt to the Chiefs, who obstruct the Packers' path in Milwaukee County Stadium Sunday afternoon. Kansas City's Hank Stram was counting upon him to understudy veteran Jim Tyrer at left tackle when training camp opened, but fate again took a hand.

Dave Hill, the incumbent at right tackle and a 10-year veteran, was shelved by a leg injury and Peay suddenly found himself a starter once more. And, though Hill since has returned to health, Fran-swah will continue to be for at least another week.

Although it represents a somewhat poetic turnabout for the 29-year-old University of Missouri product, Peay sees it in another light.

Old situation

"I don't think it's really ironic," he observed by telephone from the Chiefs' Kansas City dressing room by telephone Wednesday. "It's left up to the coaches, so it's in someone's hands. Last year is an old situation—this is a new year and a new situation.

"I just try to be ready—that's how I make my living. But my paycheck goes on whether I play or not."

Although merit may not have won him his chance, it may be what is keeping the trerstwhile bonus baby in Kansas City's starting lineup.

"Francis has just done a helluva job for us," says Bob Sprenger, the Chiefs' director of public relations, who was in Green Bay Wednesday to address the Mike & Pen Sports Club. "He played so-so the first week but he did an outstanding job against Bubba Smith in the Oakland game two weeks ago, which we won 16-3.

"Smith was non-existent in that game—you never saw him. And Peay did another good job for us last week against Denver. I'd be willing to bet Hank Stram will start him against the Packers Sunday, even though Hill is ready to play."

Peay, playing down his performance against the Raiders, Peay noted, "It was a game we won (16-3), and anytime you win, it has to reflect on everyone. We were able to score more points than they were, so that has to reflect favorably on somebody.

"The main thing is that they weren't able to force us into making any crucial mistakes offensively."

Peay, traded to the Chiefs last January for defensive end Aaron Brown, presently deactivated, has found a similarity to the Packer approach in Kansas City.

"We play the game a lot like the Packers do," he said, "we're cautious to an extent, like they are."

Happy, deceptive UW eyes rise from cellar

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Defending Big Ten champion Ohio State brings an unblemished record to Camp Randall Stadium to battle a somewhat deceptive Wisconsin Badger football squad Saturday.

The Badgers at last managed to ring up a tally in the victory column by downing Wyoming 37-28 last week, and hope to climb out of the Big Ten cellar they share with four sister schools.

The Buckeyes handed Washington State a 27-3 drubbing, and would like to keep their undefeated status for an expected showdown for the Big Ten crown with arch-rival Michigan, also undefeated.

The Badgers have logged only seven victories against Ohio State since the teams first met in 1913, losing 31 and pulling out four ties.

Ohio State is 3-0 on the season. Wisconsin is 1-3.

UW coach John Jardine said the victory over Wyoming was what the team needed to get back into the groove.

Wisconsin has been consistently picked to get sent to the showers despite its close clashes with Purdue and Big Eight powers Colorado and Nebraska.

The Badgers have outscored their first four opponents by one point, losing the first three games by a total of eight.

"That is the most important thing: winning," Jardine said. "We waited a long time for this. We are a happy team now."

Perhaps the happiest man on the squad is tailback Billy Marek, who led the Badgers to three school records in last week's game.

Marek piled up 226 yards in 29 carries against Wyoming, breaking the rushing mark formerly held by Alan "A-Train" Thompson who logged 220 yards against Oklahoma in 1969.

The Badgers, 630 yards total offense broke the modern mark of 572 set against Northwestern in 1951.

Their total rushing, 548 yards, erased the modern school mark of 441 set against Marquette in 1951.

The Badger ground attack is bolstered by fullback Ken Starch, who ran for 184 yards in 13 carries, and reserve tailback Selvie Washington.

Wisconsin does not seem to have nailed down a good pass defense and is going against what Jardine calls "one of the most exciting quarterbacks I have seen in college football."

He referred to Cornelius Green, who engineered the Buckeye dismantling of Washington State.

Also plaguing the Badgers are mistakes characteristic of a young club.

Their potential victories turn sour because of fumbles, interceptions and missed assignments.

Against Wyoming, Wisconsin was penalized three times for delay of game.

Joe Hammen hits 212

KIMBERLY—Joe Hammen fired a scratch game of 212 for honors in the Kimberly Senior Citizen's Bowling League at Jerry's Lanes.

John Van Nuland had top scratch series of 499 and Frank Verhagen was high with handicap with a 564 set.

For the women, Ella Siebers had a 170 game and Mary Williamson rolled a 464 series. Germaine Lamers had lines of 95, 94 and 93.

Mrs. Palmer has ace

Mrs. John Palmer recorded a hole-in-one on the par 3, No. 8 at Ridgeway Country Club. It was the first ace for her.

West girls in state net test

Defending champion Wauwatosa West is the favorite in the third annual WIAA state girls tennis tournament Friday and Saturday at Madison West.

Appleton West qualified its team in sectional competition last week, while the Appleton East doubles team of Nancy Werner and Lori Halverson, which placed second, also qualified.

Linda Utschig and Kim Ready captured the doubles crown for AHS-West to give the Terrors the sectional title. Singles players Kris Gurholt and Mickie Sullivan qualified for state as members of the team.

Girls from 22 schools, including 13 full teams, are in the state tournament field. Competition will start at 9 a.m. both days.

Madison West girls defend title

Madison West carded the best qualifying score last week in sectional play with a 169. Green Bay Preble had 192 and West Bend East 197.

Tee times are set for 9 a.m. on both 9-hole layouts. The course will open to the public at 1:30 p.m.

Teams qualifying at six sectional sites last week were Bonduel, Brookfield Central, Brown Deer, Fond du Lac, Green Bay Preble, Hartland - Arrowhead, Homestead, La Crosse Central, Madison Memorial, Madison West, Viroqua and West Bend East.

Defending medalist champion Mary Hafeman, West Bend East, led qualifiers with a 39. Linda Stack and Anne Brewster, both of Madison West, carded 41s. Last year's runnerup Karen Julson, West, also returns.

Evie Myers registers 589

Evie Myers cracked a 589 series in the Women's Classic League at the 41 Bowl Wednesday night. She had a high game of 217.

Karen Dix blasted a 575, Delores Jacobs fired a 569, Muggs Selig posted a 215-562 and Kathy Sodermark ripped a 559. Elaine Bartel rolled a 229 game.

In the Lucky Strike League at the 41 Bowl, Geri Wogsland splintered a 222-586.

Ethel Martin rolled a 207-575 in Rock 'N Roll competition at Jerry's Lanes, Kimberly, while Mary Ann Ver Bockel smashed a 204-211-569 in Gemini 12 action at Sabre Lanes.

In the Early Swingers League at the 41 Bowl, Barb Mackowski ripped a 222-216-572

Esposito gets hat trick

BY FRED ROTHENBERG
Associated Press Sports Writer

This is for the National Hockey League goalies who are so concerned about Phil Esposito's health.

Watch out!

Esposito, the National Hockey League's leading scorer four of the past five seasons, still isn't 100 per cent recovered from April surgery on his right knee, but Vancouver goalie Gary Smith would be the last to know it.

Esposito slapped three goals past Smith, career Nos. 399-101 Wednesday, in the Boston Bruins' 6-4 season-opening victory over the Vancouver Canucks.

Elsewhere in the NHL, Montreal downed Minnesota 5-2; Toronto outscored Buffalo 7-4; the New York Rangers beat Detroit 4-1; the New York Islanders and the Atlanta Flames skated to a 1-1 tie; Chicago blanked Los Angeles 3-0, and California squeezed by St. Louis 2-1.

It was a good night all around for the Esposito family as Phil's brother Tony posted the 50th shutout of his career in Chicago's 3-0 victory over the Los Angeles Kings.

Chicago struck for all of its goals in the third period. J.P. Bordeleau got the first goal at 5:35 before Dennis Hull and rookie Darcy Rota added some cushion.

The defending Stanley Cup Champion Montreal Canadiens started their defense of their crown without All-Star goalie Ken Dryden, who retired, but the there was no noticeable weakness in the Montreal goal—only in replacement Bunny Larocque's stomach.

"I was so nervous that I became sick between periods," Larocque said after stopping 28 of 30 shots in Montreal's 5-2 victory over Minnesota.

Green Bay will activate tackle Kent Branstetter

GREEN BAY — Following Wednesday's workout, which saw the Packers finish just before showers struck, the Green Bay area, Devine announced that rookie tackle Kent Branstetter will be activated for Sunday's game "to give us a little more depth in the offensive line."

Branstetter, a free agent from the University of Houston, presumably will replace guard Bill Lueck, who has been sidelined by a knee injury incurred in last Sunday's 16-14 victory over the Giants.

"Bill is improving," Devine said, "But he won't play against the Chiefs. Everybody else will be ready."

The Packers will conclude their practice week here Saturday and leave by bus for Milwaukee at 3 p.m., Devine said. He added, however, "Saturday's practice depends on the weather. It's not imperative to work out Saturday if the weather is bad."

Kansas City enters Sunday's contest with the American Football Conference's leading passer and pass receiver. Quarterback Lennie Dawson has mounted a glittering 69.6 per cent efficiency average, based on 39 completions in 56 attempts for 432 yards and one touchdown.

Favorite target

Dawson's favorite target of late, running back Ed Podolak, paces all AFC passcatchers with 19 receptions for 164 yards. Teammate Jerrall Wilson also is second in punting with a 47.5-yard average for 20 kicks.

Ron Widby is the Packers' only statistical leader in the National Football Conference, where he is No. 1 in punting with a 45.9-yard average. Chester Marcol, his kicking comrade, is sixth in scoring with 31 points.

Jan Stenrud, KC's longtime placekicking specialist, is seventh in AFC scoring with 25 points despite having already had four field goal attempts blocked.

Although the World Series will be carried nationally by NBC, Sunday's Packer-Chief game will be telecast regionally by Channel 5, the station has announced.

Ski Fair slated this weekend

A prelude to the upcoming skiing season is slated this weekend in the form of a Ski Fair at Janus, W. College Ave.

Ski films will be shown continuously Friday and Saturday. A binding safety demonstration will be given in connection with the films.

Another feature of the fair will be a ski swap and used ski sale. Equipment for all members of the family will be available, and no charge will be made for this service.

Informal showings of ski fashions will be presented at 6:30 and 7:30 p. m. Friday and at 11 a. m. and 2 p. m. Saturday. A special attraction for children will be an appearance the Hot Gear Dragon. Free ski patches and comic books will be given.

No admission will be charged at the fair, and the public is invited.

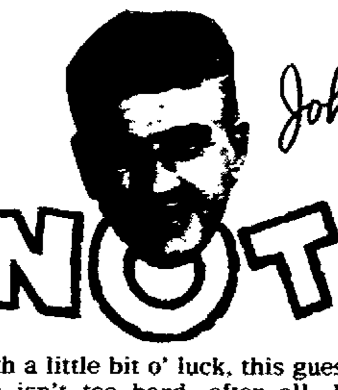

Leads trapshooters

Les Wyman broke 50 straight targets to lead the competition in the Outagamie Conservation Club trapshooting league at the club grounds.

Roger Bramer had 24 out of 25 and scores of 23 of 25 were turned in by George and Frank Zimmer.

Gambles of Hortonville took the Division I title with Duda's Shooters and Schlitz Shots tied for second. In Division II, Racette's Big Ones took the title and Mueller's Sheet Metal finished second.

NOTES & NOTIONS

With a little bit o' luck, this guessing game isn't too hard, after all. I got lucky last week, for an 80 per cent mark (32 right, 8 wrong, 1 tie), the best of the season. Over-all, the chart shows .732 (131-48-7).

Packers over Chiefs—Just as the Vikings never lose to the Lions, the Packers do consistently well against the Chiefs. In order for that kind of fortune to continue, the Pack secondary will have to handle Len Dawson a bit better than they coped with Fran Tarkenton and Norm Snead. It shapes up as a monumental defensive battle, and I figure the Bay offense can come up with the big play or two that it will take to win.

Ohio State over Wisconsin—As the surprising Badgers continue their near-suicide schedule (playing three of the nation's top five in a 4-week span), they won't be psyched out by the big, bad Buckeyes. But before the second half has run its course, OSU power figures to wear down the UW battlers.

Lawrence over Grinnell—It's time for the Vikes to chalk up that much-needed first win. But they won't do it if they approach the game as Chicago's Bears did against New Orleans.

Fox Lutheran over Fondy Springs—The collision of the Fox Valley Christian Conference's two most surprising teams is especially important to the Foxes and their title hopes. Our guess is that FVL's ground attack will eventually solve a strong Ledger defense,.

Appleton West over Neenah—The rugged defense of the FVA co-leaders will get yet another significant test from a Rocket attack that has become well diversified. It looks like a tight contest; with the Terrors getting the nod on consistency to date.

Premontre over Xavier—The Hawks rather frustrating season could be an instant success with an upset over an arch-rival. But the unbeaten Cadets seem to have a little too much going for them—especially on offense.

Oshkosh North over Menasha—It's obvious by now that the revitalized Jays are for real, and they have the potential for knocking off yet another co-leader. But the high-powered Spartan ground attack is tough to deny for a full 48 minutes.

Little Chute over Wautoma—The Mustangs will keep their championship express rolling with rather frequent trips into the Hornet end zone.

Appleton East over Kimberly—In this pick, it's a case of potential over the form chart, and the expectation is that the Patriots will prevail in an extremely close game.

St. Mary Central over Roncalli—The Zephyrs will enhance their record against a Jet team that has seen more valleys than hills this season.

Kaukauna over Oshkosh West—The Indians have been somewhat vulnerable to the pass lately, and no one goes upstairs quite as well as the Ghosts.

Other NFL games—Buffalo over Baltimore, Chicago over Atlanta, Los Angeles over Dallas, Denver over Houston, Detroit over New Orleans, Minnesota over San Francisco, New England over Jets, St. Louis over Philadelphia, Pittsburgh over Cincinnati, Oakland over San Diego, Washington over Giants, Miami over Cleveland.

Other prep games—Clintonville over Seymour, Chilton over Sturgeon Bay, Weyauwega over Marion, Bonduel over Wittenberg-Birnamwood, Ripon over New London, Berlin over Waupaca, Brillion over Hilbert, Denmark over Freedom, Wrightstown over Valders, Omro over Winneconne, Mishicot over Reedsville, Manawa over Shiocton, Lourdes over Marinette Central.

Other MC games—Ripon over Beloit, Monmouth over Coe, Knox over Carleton, St. Olaf over Cornell.

about," said Cincinnati's Johnny Bench. "We thought they were going to kill him."

Rose, who was on base when the last out of the game was made, raced through the crowd untouched into the Cincinnati dugout. Several of the Reds brandished bats just in case they were needed against the mad mob.

"If the cops weren't going to stop those maniacs, we would," said Bench.

In the ninth inning, some officials of the Cincinnati family were evacuated from near the Reds' dugout when unruly fans started to muscle toward the field. About 25 people were escorted to safety in an alleyway under the stands leading to the Reds' clubhouse. Two of them were little girls, both crying and obviously frightened.

"I saw some little girls being pushed face-first in the dirt," said Bench. "It was a disgrace. This wasn't a black mark on baseball—it was a black mark on Shea Stadium. The police did nothing, they just stood around."

Many of the more than 50,000 fans at Shea Stadium had plenty of time to warm up for their passionate celebration. The Mets had taken a 6-2 lead with a four-run fifth inning highlighted by Cleon Jones' run-scoring double.

Then it was just a matter of time before the Mets won their second pennant in five years.

O.J. runs away with offensive honor

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League record for rushing in a single season is 1,863 yards—at the moment, that is.

Look out, Jim Brown. Your once "untouchable" record may be crumbling.

With less than one-third of the season gone, O.J. Simpson is more than one-third of the way to breaking it. And if guard Reggie McKenzie and his teammates on Buffalo's offensive line have anything to say about it, he'll run it into the ground — which just happens to be what O.J. did against Philadelphia. He only scored one touchdown but he alsc set up one with successive scampers of 29 and 28 yards and kept bringing the Bills close enough to set up two field goals, including the one in the closing minutes that beat the Eagles 27-26.

For his performance, Simpson was the unanimous choice today as The Associated Press Offensive Player of the Week in the NFL.

"These guys have been telling me I'm going to get 1,800 yards or more," Simpson said after the victory over Philadelphia, "and Reggie keeps saying I'm going to get 2,000.

"And if they said it, I've got to believe them, because they're the guys who'll get it for me. If they say I can get it, then I'm going to get it."

THE Post-Crescent

Agnew, guardian of nation's morals

Every decent American citizen has a right to a feeling of complete disgust over the revelations which led to the resignation of Spiro Agnew as our Vice-President. His agreement to plead no contest to one charge of income tax evasion, after several days of plea bargaining between his attorneys and the Justice Department, can only lend credence to the speculation that he was involved in additional serious crimes. He is no longer entitled to a presumption of innocence.

This is the man who posed as arbiter of the nation's morality, who traversed the country orating against youthful war protestors or any youth with long hair for that matter, and against parents responsible for this permissiveness.

This is the man who complained about the nation's press for even daring to comment negatively about the performance of the administration of which he was a part, and more recently about the leaks of false and malicious charges against him, as he termed them.

Spiro Agnew, the guardian of the nation's morals, who accepted bribes, free groceries and booze.

And what of the man who chose him as his potential successor to the presidency of this nation, not only once but twice?

Senseless violence in Boston

Two appalling incidents in Boston have alarmed residents in that area and deeply damaged race relations.

A young white woman was seized by six black youths, forced to drench herself with gasoline she was carrying and then was set on fire. She died some hours later. An elderly man, fishing on a pier, was stabbed to death by a mob of 50 or 60 black youths. There were at least two other violent episodes which police said were part of the same pattern of senseless violence upon whites by blacks.

In less dramatic fashion similar conflicts have been building for years in many —perhaps most —major cities. A number of reasons can be cited. There are too many people living in cramped and otherwise unpleasant surroundings. A great many of those people have been uprooted from familiar surroundings and transported, leaving their traditions, their beliefs, their inner defenses behind. They are aimless and rootless. Their primary motivation is simple survival in what has become an increasingly difficult and dangerous world. They are judged according to their color or nationality or sex or some other extraneous criteria that has nothing to do with their worth as human beings. In fact, slum living itself detracts from the ability to look at people as individuals. They seem to become part of a faceless, shapeless mass, sub-human and nameless. And so they act that way.

It is no excuse for the individuals who lit the match or stabbed and stoned to point out that those who are treated like worthless animals come to act that way. But there is a reason. There is also a strange mesmerism that afflicts people who become part of a mob. We all know we do things in a group we would not do alone, from swearing at an umpire to taking part in a massacre. Tyrants through history have learned the technique of swaying masses for their own purposes.

There is horror and remorse in Boston today. There will also be justification preached for actions and attitudes in the past by whites trying to put or keep blacks "in their place." And that's exactly what led to the apparently senseless slayings last week.

The Russian grain deal

Senator Henry Jackson's call for a review by the Justice Department of conflicting testimony before the Senate Permanent Subcommittee is well in order. The American public deserves to know whether officials of the Department of Agriculture were dishonest or merely incompetent.

A year ago last summer the Russian grain deal was announced, in which the Soviet Union was given $750 million in financing to aid its purchases of American grain. The United States then paid out about $300 million in export subsidies, largely to big grain dealers allegedly to encourage them to make their sales. One result of the more than $1 billion deal was to make grain scarce in the United States and consequently higher in price to Americans. This in turn contributed to the increase in meat prices. The Russians in the meantime profited in repayment through the dollar devaluation.

Senator Jackson asks the Justice Department to find out answers to several pertinent questions. How much did agricultural officials know about the scope of grain being sold so as to calculate accurately the effect on the domestic economy, why did they pay out the high export subsidies when the price was in itself adequate for the sellers, why wasn't the price higher to the Russians in the first place, why didn't the Department of Agriculture's Commodity Exchange Authority note what was going on, why were ordinary farmers kept in the dark on the deal so that they lost, and who lied to the committee and might be charged with perjury?

Last year Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz told a House agricultural subcommittee on livestock and grains that "we have been scrupulously careful not to converse with the private trade and they with us." Assistant Secretary of Agriculture for foreign trade Carrol Brunthaven also insisted he did not know how much any company sold. But the senior vice president of Continental Grain Company testified under oath that he had told Brunthaven about negotiations involving seven tons of grain and asked for continued subsidy assurances. He received it in a phone call from Washington, he said.

The Administration has defended the grain deal, and reasonably, as a forward step in American-Russian relations. However, its claims that it could reduce farm program costs is specious. Last summer the General Accounting Office suggested that the deal was mismanaged, an opinion echoed at an international conference of the Brookings Institution.

Critics of the transaction have charged that it was designed primarily to assist Mr. Nixon's re-election campaign then in full swing and that inside information permitted large interests to profit at the expense of the smaller farmers. The deal merits investigation.

Tavernkeepers seek later night hours

MADISON —A curiously unnoticed change in the political climate of the state Capitol in recent years has been the virtual disappearance of what used to be known as the temperance lobby.

For decades after the repeal of the liquor prohibition laws in the early 1930s, a variety of organizations devoted to surveillance of the beer and liquor trades maintained agents at the Capitol. These sentinels monitored the representatives of the distillers, the distributors, the brewers, the taverns and affiliated interests in this state which traditionally displayed a tolerance for drink. They also insisted upon a strong fabric of law providing public control over the commerce in intoxicants.

Now there is being offered a test that will show whether the organized temperance movement has given up the ghost.

Special law in Milwaukee

There is a movement for the relaxation of the legal hours of operation rules for taverns selling beer and liquor, pegged nominally at least on the idea that the present sale hours rule is arbitrary and discriminatory to the extent that it assumes that the residents of Milwaukee and the visitors to that city are more equal than others of the state, in a manner of speaking.

There never was a very convincing reason why tavernkeepers in Milwaukee were granted more generous hours for the legal sale of their goods than those in 71 other counties.

But they have had them for many years. In Milwaukee the barkeep can legally serve his customers until 2 a.m. every day and until 3:30 a.m. on Sunday. The discrimination goes back to World War II times. The legislature was somehow convinced that because Milwaukee had war production plants, they employed shift workers, and that some of those shift workers were being deprived of their post-work alcoholic refreshment, it was the duty of the state to write a special law on their behalf.

Quite ignored was the fact that there were war factories all over Wisconsin and that the aggregate of war production outside Milwaukee was probably greater than in Milwaukee. But the representatives of other jurisdictions did not press for such generous tavern hours. Thus Milwaukee won the concession and has continued to have it long after the contrived justification was offered in the legislative forum.

Now there is a drive, whose force remains to be tested, to restore uniformity of tavern operation hours. Predictably, the proposal does not ask that Milwaukee be returned to the schedule of Appleton and La Crosse and Racine and Superior and other localities, but that all of them be required to conform to the extraordinarily tolerant example of their big municipal sister.

Some local option

It is a reasonable presumption that most thoughtful persons prefer a consistent pattern of regulation for the sale of liquor and other intoxicants. That was the strong theme of all of the earlier liquor code provisions. But it has been seriously eroded, as in another decision of the legislature more recently that municipalities, at their option, can extend tavern operating hours outside Milwaukee, but only during the tourist season, and only if they certify their conclusion that tourism is a significant element in the municipal economy.

Thus there will be a test of the survival of the vigilant citizen lobby that attended such legislative issues in former times, but which has seemed to lose interest more recently as the agents of the beer and liquor and entertainment industries and their allies have improved their legislative clout.

Meanwhile, there are signs that the legislature blundered in this field a few months ago when it wrote the new law permitting beer bar owners, who saw their trade evaporate with the legal emancipation of 18-year-olds, to qualify for liquor licenses. The sponsors of that heavily lobbied (on both sides) legislation now guardedly concede that it needs some "clarification."

What has happened is that far more new licenses are being issued than anybody was willing to admit at the time —in a state which already stands out among its neighbors and, in fact, among the states of the union, for the abundance of its taverns in relation to population.

Male Chauvinism evident in words

(During Mr. Harris' vacation, we are reprinting some of the best columns from his latest collection in book form, "For the Time Being.")

To many people, the story of words seems a remote and academic pastime, bearing little relation to the real world. Actually, however, it is in words and their changing use that we find important clues to the social and psychological drifts of the society.

For instance, what do all the following words have in common: bawd, concubine, coquette, courtesan, hag, harlot, hoyden, shrew, termagent, wench and witch?

Of course they are all demeaning words for women, and today are used only in reference to women. But the really interesting thing about them—and many more—is that originally they used to denote either sex.

Over the last few centuries, however, these words became pejorative only for women—which indicates how male chauvinism in the real world translated itself into the verbal downgrading of the opposite sex.

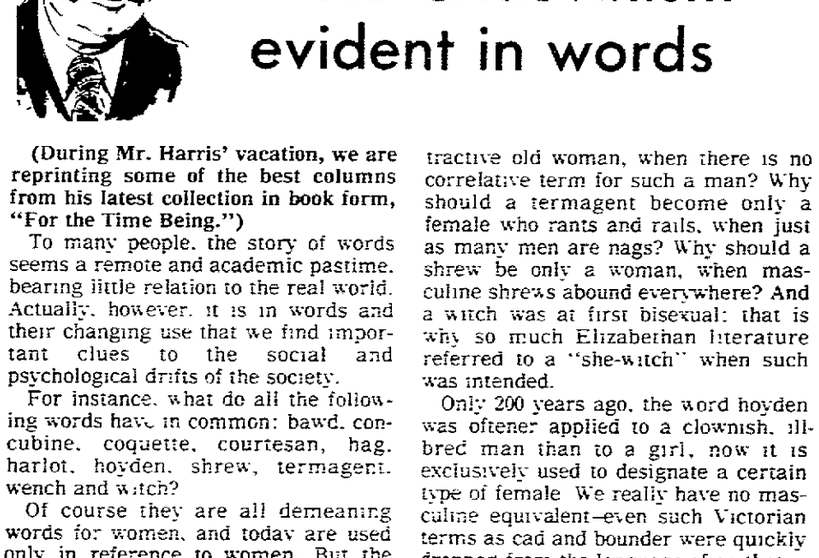

Bawds, concubines, coquets, courtesans and harlots initially referred to both men and women of loose sexual practices. Chaucer, Wycliffe, Beaumont and Fletcher, Shakespeare and countless other writers use these terms interchangeably for either sex. Then they suddenly die out as words applying to men and become "feminine" only.

Why should a hag be only an unattractive old woman, when there is no correlative term for such a man? Why should a termagent become only a female who rants and rails, when just as many men are nags? Why should a shrew be only a woman, when masculine shrews abound everywhere? And a witch was at first bisexual: that is why so much Elizabethan literature referred to a "she-witch" when such was intended.

Only 200 years ago, the word hoyden was oftener applied to a clownish, ill-bred man than to a girl, now it is exclusively used to designate a certain type of female. We really have no masculine equivalent—even such Victorian terms as cad and bounder were quickly dropped from the language of epithet.

Our speech accurately reflects the prejudices of the ruling group. Since the rulers and the rich and the educated (who directed language) generally lived in cities, we developed such words as villain, which meant a rustic; heathen and pagan, which also indicated those who dwelt in the country; boor, which meant a farmer, and many other such words which downgraded rural inhabitants.

The use of a word wrongly understood can affect great events. Some believe that Darwin's "The Descent of Man" evoked such a storm because "descent" seemed to indicate a dropping down from the apes; when he really meant it in the sense in which we speak of "descending from royalty."

Demands that Agnew resign

Editor's Note: The following column was written before Vice-President Agnew's resignation, but is printed because of its relevance.

Whatever doubts still linger that Vice President Spiro Agnew now has any responsible course but to resign should be put to rest by his emotional outburst last week.

A Vice President trying to discredit possible criminal charges against himself by undermining the integrity of the prosecution and the federal judicial system is an intolerable spectacle.

His self-serving protest that he cannot get a fair hearing because of the publicity about his case and because somebody is out to detroy him is not worthy of a man who stands one heartbeat away from the presidency.

Even if his charges were true, which is highly doubtful, Agnew's real problem still would remain that the Justice Department has enough evidence of his taking bribes to warrant its presentation to a grand jury for a possible indictment. And it should be clear to Agnew that it is not in the nation's best interest to have its second-highest-ranking official, who could succeed to the presidency at any moment, under a criminal cloud.

'A frightened, angry man'

Instead of vowing not to resign if he is indicted, Agnew should have indicated some concern for the impact of a vice presidential indictment upon the country. His speech, however, was not that of a patriot. It was the outcry of a frightened, angry man who is thinking only about his own skin and staying out of the pokey.

Agnew's reaction to his troubles contrasts sharply with that of Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas, whose nomination to be Chief Justice was challenged because of conflict-of-interest charges. Fortas protested his innocence and no court charges were ever filed, but he resigned anyway out of concern that the attacks upon him were damaging the uprightness and the authority of the high court.

Agnew expressed confidence in the country's criminal justice system when it served his purpose earlier, but now he is ready to tear it down. Of course, there has been a lot of publicity about his problems; it is no ordinary event to have a Vice President investigated by his own administration for criminal activity. But there is no precedent to suggest that means Agnew is a dead duck and can't get his day in court.

In fact, there is precedent for the opposite. Angela Davis and Daniel Ellsberg did all right even though they certainly endured a great deal of unfavorable pre-trial publicity. And more Black Panthers have been acquitted than have gone to jail despite massive bad publicity about their organization and their own well-publicized fears that they could not get fair trials.

Evidence seems valid

Agnew was especially bitter about Assistant Attorney General Henry Petersen's reported comment that the Justice Department had the evidence on Agnew, and had it cold. It is unfortunate that Petersen didn't keep his mouth shut. But his remark, and other leaks about the Agnew case from the Justice Department, are hardly as prejudicial and malicious as Agnew is trying to make out. It should be evident to an idiot that the Justice Department believes it has the evidence cold or it would not take the extreme and historic step of going to the grand jury in the first place.

In fact, considering that a Vice President of the United States is involved, the federal prosecutors have been considerably restrained. The probe has been going on at least since February and the story did not become public until U. S. Attorney George Bell in Maryland officially notified Agnew of it in August.

Agnew's demeaning and self-serving posture, and his willingness to be destructive to the nation's criminal justice system, demonstrate that he is unfit to be Vice President. Whether he is innocent or guilty, he should resign for the good of the country.

Laborers must make no calculation based upon the idea there will be extensive lumbering upon the Wolf or its tributaries the coming winter, for there will not be half as much business as last season.

Laborers will do well to be on their guard against "medicated" loggers, impecunious speculators and sharpers, who will contrive to get parties at work trusting to some chance to enable them to make a raise and slide without paying the workers.

Choppers, loggers and teamsters will command much lower wages the coming season than at any time since the war. Hence, it is important for them to know the financial responsibility of the parties for whom they work.

Probably not over two or three responsible lumbering firms of this city will enter the woods this season with lumbering parties.

After resigning

Former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew is seen Wednesday after he had resigned. He also pleaded no contest to a federal income tax evasion charge and was sentenced to a $10,000 fine and three years probation. (AP Wirephoto)

Speener to face 3 felony charges

Three criminal charges of misconduct in public office, involving an alleged kickback, personal long distance telephone calls and an unauthorized pay raise, will be filed against Eugene K. Speener, superintendent of the Outagamie County Health Center.

The felony counts, which Dist. Atty. John Ensley said he will sign Friday or Monday, result from a three-month John Doe investigation into several areas of county government and labor unions.

The misconduct charges will allege that Speener:

—Accepted a $125 television set, for his personal use, in return for his purchase of three barrels of floor wax and three barrels of cleaner for the Health Center in mid-1971. Hyde Park

Eugene Speener

Chemical Co. of New York was named as the donor of the television set.

—Unlawfully authorized a $123.50 a month pay raise for James Mulholland, Health Center accountant, last January. John Doe testimony revealed that the Health Center Board of Trustees did not authorize the raise.

—Charged numerous personal long distance telephone calls to the county between Jan. 1, 1970 and Aug. 1, 1973. Testimony revealed the calls were to a personal acquaintance in Racine.

Speener's attorney, Robert W. Swain, was at a press conference this morning which was called by Ensley and County Judge R. Thomas Cane, who presided over most of the Doe. Swain said Speener had not been informed of the charges and he did not know how he would plead when he appears in County Judge Nick F. Schaefer's court next week.

If convicted, Speener faces a maximum penalty of one year in prison and a $500 fine on each of the three counts.

Speener apparently will be the only Health Center employe to be charged.

Cane told reporters today that there were other statements about misconduct at the Health Center made during Doe testimony, "but as many times happens, there were rumors that couldn't be substantiated. Cane did not elaborate.

Speener and Mulholland were among

U.S. appears set for Israeli supply effort

WASHINGTON (AP) —The United States appears to be laying the groundwork for a major resupply effort for Israel should that nation suffer continuing heavy losses in its war with Syria and Egypt.

But knowledgeable officials stress that no decision has been made. They say the United States is concentrating on a diplomatic drive to find a concensus with the Soviet Union and other powers for at least a ceasefire to end the fighting, and more preferably for a framework for a lasting negotiated settlement.

"We're in close and continuing contact with the government of Israel," said Robert J. McCloskey, a State Department spokesman. At the same time, he said that a massive airlift of Soviet supplies to Egypt and Syria, reportedly under way, "would tend to put a new face on the situation" both for Israeli forces in the field and for the United States.

Witnesses reported, meanwhile, that a Boeing 707 transport plane bearing Israeli markings was loaded with Sparrow and Sidewinder Air-to-Air missiles at the Oceana Naval Air Station near Norfolk, Va. Officials described this as a patchwork resupply effort and not the kind of major rescue operation that Israel would need should it lose ground to its Arab foes.

Other observers said Israel undoubtedly already has asked Washington to speed up delivery of F4 Phantom jets and other weapons promised in contracts for shipment this year and next.

A key element in the decision evidently is whether Israel or Syria and Egypt obtain the upper hand in the field. At this point, senior U.S. officials say, a decisive turn has not yet been reached.

At the White House and elsewhere in the government there was no indication that the U.S. was making much headway in, as McCloskey described it, "attempting to crystalize a concensus."

The Israeli military command announced its ground forces crossed the cease-fire line in the Golan Heights today and staged hit-and-run commando raids across the Suez Canal.

Israeli air and naval raids on Syrian and Egyptian positions along the Mediterranean coast and Suez Canal were also confirmed by Arab communiques. They reported the attacks were repelled and claimed 86 Israeli planes had been shot down.

Israeli gunboats during the night shelled the Syrian port of Latakia and the Banias terminal for the Iraqi oil pipeline. Israel claimed two Syrian missile boats sunk without any Israeli loss, while the Syrians claimed eight Israeli boats and a Greek freighter were sunk.

In the Golan Heights, Israel reported its forces were attacking Syrian armored and infantry forces guarding the road to Damascus.

The Egyptians have reported penetrating nine miles east of the canal into Israeli-occupied Sinai and a communique today reported an Egyptian armored force had encircled fleeing Israeli tanks and destroyed an entire column.

Western visitors to the Egyptian front Wednesday reported forces and supplies continued to move across the canal to reinforce the Egyptian positions.

Syria and Egypt, involved in the fighting since its outbreak six days ago, were joined in battle Wednesday by Iraq. Jordan, which has a long frontier with Israel and fought in the six-day war in 1967, has mobilized its reserves and was reported under heavy pressure to enter the war on the Arab side.

Philippine Air Line Jet is hijacked

HONG KONG (AP) — Three armed Filipinos hijacked a Philippine Air Line jet today on an interisland flight, took the airline president hostage in Manila, then flew to Hong Kong, military authorities said.

The hijackers surrendered at the Hong Kong airport after several hours of negotiations. The crew and the airline president were reportedly unharmed.

The hijackers had released the plane's 64-passengers at the stop in Manila.

A government spokesman said the three young men surrendered after being informed that Philippines President Ferdinand E. Marcos had granted them amnesty.

There was no immediate reason given for the hijacking by the men, whose identities were not known.

After they landed at the Hong Kong airport, they told authorities they wanted political asylum.

Rancudo said two of hijackers held a stewardess and woman passenger with homemade .22-caliber pistols at their heads, while a third man brandished what he said was a hand grenade.

The three seized the BAC111 jetliner in Bacolod, a central Philippine sugar town about 300 miles south of Manila. They apparently overpowered an air marshal assigned to the flight and ordered the plane flown to Manila.

Nixon seeks quick action on nominee

BY JEAN HELLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon sought the counsel of Republicans and top Democrats today on a vice presidential successor to Spiro T. Agnew, who quit, admitting federal income tax evasion.

Nixon has told the political leaders he wants by tonight any suggestions or advice they have on naming a nominee to succeed Agnew. Nixon also has sought the advice of congressional leaders on procedures for picking a new vice president.

The Constitution says only that a nomination will be made by the president and is subject to the approval of both houses of Congress.

After talking with the President Wednesday evening, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said Nixon expected to nominate a successor later this week or early next week. Mansfield and House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., met with Nixon after a meeting the President had with four top Republican congressional leaders — Sens. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, and Reps. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan and Leslie C. Arends of Illinois.

Agnew resigned Wednesday afternoon shortly before he faced U.S. District Court Judge Walter E. Hoffman in a Baltimore courtroom.

Agnew pleaded no contest to a criminal tax evasion charge that he filed a false joint income tax statement for

1967 that reported income of $26,099 and taxes of $6,416, when in fact his income was $55,599 and he owed taxes of $19,967.

Reading from a prepared statement held in trembling hands, Agnew told Hoffman, "I did receive payments in 1967 which I failed to report for the purposes of income taxation ...At no time have I enriched myself at the expense of the public trust."

Hoffman said he regarded Agnew's no contest plea as an admission of guilt.

"As far as the court is involved, the defendant is on trial for wilful evasion of income taxes for the calendar year 1967, which charge is a felony in the eyes of the law," the judge said. "He has entered a plea of nolo contendere (no contest) which, so far as this criminal prosecution is concerned, is the full equivalent of the plea of guilty."

Hoffman sentenced Agnew to three years unsupervised probation and fined him $10,000.

Agnew's resignation and plea were his part of an agreement reached with Justice Department officials who agreed not to pursue charges of bribery, extortion and conspiracy against him. Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson had personally directed the federal investigation of Agnew and described the evidence as damaging.

In an unusual move, the Justice Department released through the court a 40-page document detailing the evidence amassed against Agnew on all charges, including those that were dropped.

Agnew said he was innocent of all the charges except the one on which he entered his plea.

Have compassion, consideration for Agnew, Richardson suggests

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson, urging consideration and compassion for Spiro T. Agnew, said today he hopes "the American people understand and support" the agreement that led to the vice president's resignation and admission of income tax evasion.

To that end, Richardson told a nationally televised news conference, he felt it was essential that the case government prosecutors had assembled against Agnew be made public.

He said only with knowledge of that prosecution case could the American people judge the fairness of the outcome.

Richardson said President Nixon did not participate in the plea bargaining negotiations on the Agnew case, but, as President, had to be satisfied that the arrangement was in the public interest.

The agreement embraced Agnew's resignation as vice president, a government appeal for leniency and publication of the case against Agnew in an investigation of tax evasion, alleged bribery and extortion.

In that account of the case, made public Wednesday, government prosecutors said Agnew, yearning for riches beyond his grasp, cast aside the law and reaped thousands of dollars as the kingpin in a shadowy scheme of shakedowns.

For at least a decade, Agnew actively encouraged the undercover kickback tradition known only to an inner circle of Maryland politicians and contractors seeking state business, the government claimed Wednesday.

He complained often that the demands of public office required a lavishness he could not afford on his salary alone. The contractors helped with frequent cash gifts, knowing they would be rewarded with lucrative state contracts, the prosecutors said.

The scheme was described in detail in a 40-page outline filed by U.S. Atty. George Beall with the district judge who accepted Agnew's no contest plea to a tax evasion charge. The plea was entered moments after Agnew quit the vice presidency.

Agnew admitted he had received payments in 1967 and that he knew the money was taxable. He denied the other allegations and said he took part only in "a long-established pattern of political fund-raising in the state."

The outline of evidence was remarkable for its graphic and unprecedented portrayal of wrongdoing by the nation's second highest officer.

The accusations focused on Agnew's relationships with four of his friends and business associates:

—I. H. "Bud" Hammerman, a wealthy Baltimore banker and real estate tycoon who allegedly acted as bag man for payoff:

—Jerome B. Wolff, a lawyer and engineer appointed by Agnew as Maryland Roads Commission chairman, now president of the engineering firm of Greiner Environmental Systems Inc.

—Allen Green, president of Green Associates Inc., one of the Maryland engineering firms that received hefty state contracts during the Agnew administration

—Lester Matz, president of Matz, Childs and Associates Inc. and a sister firm that also basked in Agnew's favor.

Though Richardson said none of the major witnesses was granted immunity from prosecution, the document said Matz and Wolff were assured that their sworn statements would not be used "in

More Corona victims?

YUBA CITY, Calif. (AP) — The prosecutor who won conviction of Juan Corona for the murders of 25 California farm workers says he is looking for a second mass graveyard. He believes there may be as many as 14 more buried victims.

Sutter County Dist. Atty. G. Dave Teja said a 26th hacked and stabbed body has been "unquestionably" tied to the case. He said that additional evidence exists indicating there may have been a total of 38 to 44 victims.

"All of us connected with the investigation believe that someplace in Northern California there is another graveyard," Teja said.

There is evidence Corona buried victims of different races in separate areas, and that the "Mexican graveyard" is still undiscovered, Teja said.

Although Corona was convicted last February after a six-month trial and is serving 25 consecutive life sentences in state prison, Teja said the investigation of the case remains open.

He said detectives investigated sites this summer in four rural Northern California counties where he believes a graveyard containing the bodies of Mexican-American victims may eventually be found.

He said a brutally beaten body of a transient farm worker was found in January 1970 about 75 miles north of the Yuba City orchards where 25 hacked and stabbed bodies were unearthed in 1971.

Teja said the Tehama County victim, who is still unidentified, suffered similar wounds, and was listed as an unsolved murder.

But he said he believes that victim, of Mexican ancestry, is the same person referred to in an entry in the "death ledger" which played a large part in Corona's trial. That entry was "Sanchez Oct. 12, 1969." The ledger book contained 34 names and dates which experts said were in Corona's handwriting. Teja described it to jurors as a "death list."

Explaining his theory that there is a still-undiscovered graveyard, Teja said 24 of the men Corona was convicted of murdering were American-born transients of Anglo-Saxon ancestry and the 25th was black. But the "death ledger" included several Spanish surnames, and a now-lost second ledger is believed to contain more Spanish names, the district attorney said.

Teja said the one black victim's grave was isolated from the graves of the others discovered near Yuba City.

Opposition surfaces to naming of Connally

WASHINGTON (AP) —Congressional Republicans met today to discuss possible successors to former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew amid a strong undercurrent of bipartisan opposition to former Gov. John Connally of Texas.

Nixon told congressional leaders and a close aide Wednesday he plans to name a strong vice president who shares his foreign policy views, a description fitting Democrats-turned-Republican Connally.

And an usually well-informed Capitol Hill Republican said "If it's anybody but Connally, I'll be shocked."

Republicans were preparing lists of possible nominees for submission to the White House by late today. Several said, however, they thought that procedure was "a charade" that won't influence Nixon's thinking.

Some GOP senators said they fear public opposition to a Connally designation might prompt Nixon to name him, while a leading Democratic senator was quoted as saying "If the President names Connally, that would split both parties."

One congressional source predicted flatly that a Connally nomination would be rejected by the Senate. Democrats control both houses of Congress, and both must approve the President's choice.

Some Democrats [illegible] plans to fight a Connally nomination, another source reports.

Word that New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller was interested in the nomination came [illegible] from Republican senators and Rep. Peter Peyser, R-N.Y., who said through a spokesman as House GOP members met that he had received a phone call from the governor expressing [illegible] interest" in the post.

In the Senate, the liberal and moderate Republicans [illegible] from the Wednesday Group [illegible] a breakfast discussion about the situation but reached no conclusions.

Besides the names of Connally, Rockefeller and California Gov. Ronald Reagan, all potential 1976 contenders, and a series of less political senior GOP statesmen, there was some talk that Nixon might make a surprise choice of a lesser known person.

Names mentioned in that respect were former congressman and White House aide Donald Rumsfeld, now U.S. ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization; former Sen. John J. Williams of Delaware and former California Lt. Gov. Robert Finch.

Crash kills rural Kaukauna youth

KAUKAUNA — A 16-year-old route 2, Kaukauna boy died early today of severe head injuries which he sustained in a fiery two-car accident at the intersection of Farrell and Greiner roads about 7:15 p.m. Wednesday.

According to Outagamie County Coroner Bernard H. Kemps, Randy J. Vander Heiden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Vander Heiden, died at 12:45 a.m. without regaining consciousness after the crash.

Two persons riding in the second car were listed in good condition today at Kaukauna Community Hospital. They were the driver, Gary D. Wisneski, 19, route 1, Kaukauna, with a shoulder separation, and Rodney B. Peirson, 17, route 1, Seymour, with face and knee cuts and several broken teeth.

Authorities said the Vander Heiden youth was alone in the car and heading west on Greiner toward Appleton, where he was to do some shopping. His car collided in the unmarked intersection with the Wisneski auto, which was heading north on Farrell. The accident took place less than a mile from the Vander Heiden residence.

The two vehicles left the roadway and entered a field at the northwest corner of the intersection, where the Vander Heiden car burst into flames. The crash was discovered a few moments later by Vander Heiden's father, who was driving to a neighbor's house.

The elder Vander Heiden saw his son lying unconscious on the front seat of the burning auto and pulled him out.

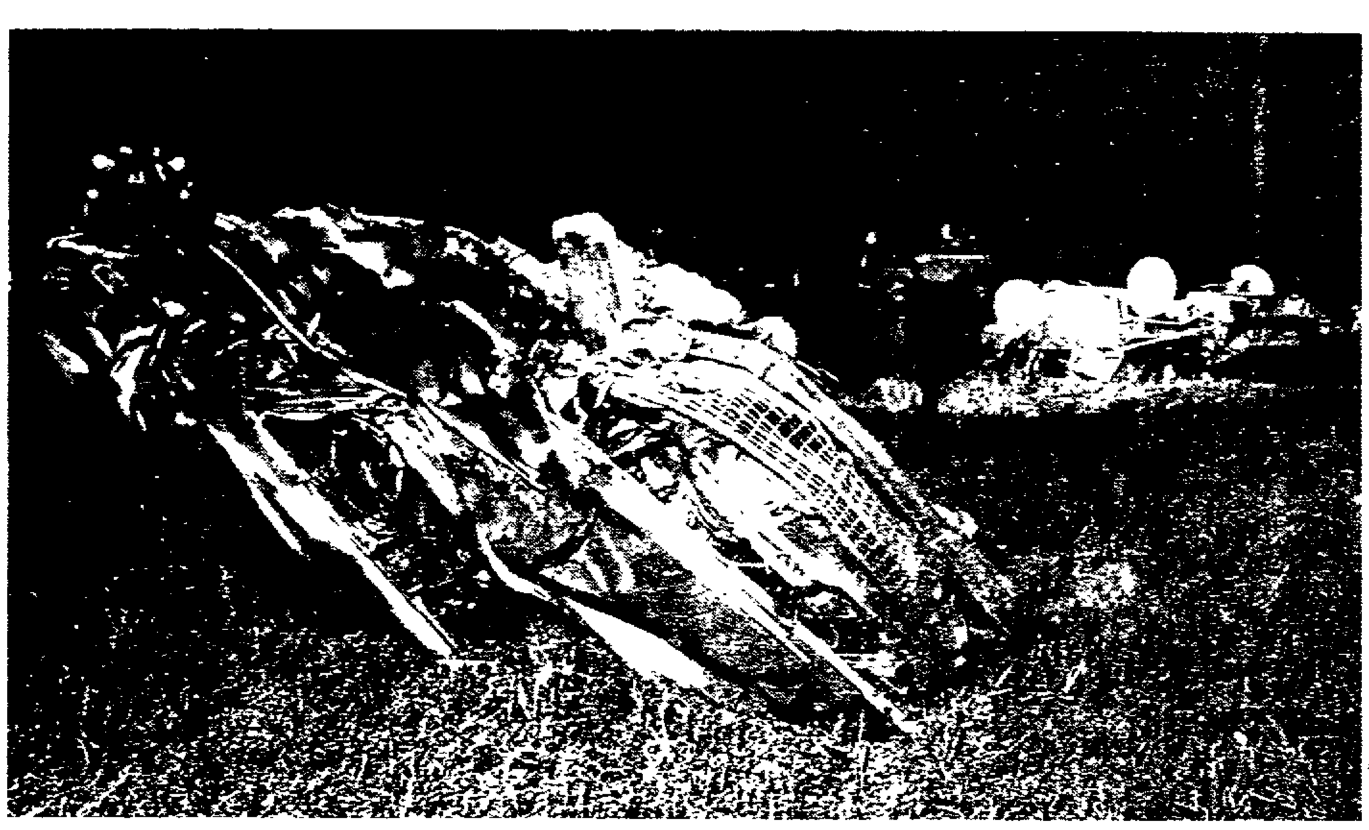

The death was the 32nd this year on county roads, establishing an all-time record. The previous mark of 31 was set in 1968, while only 17 fatalities had been reported by this date one year ago.

The victim had been a junior at Kaukauna High School and the body was released to the De Wane Funeral Home in Wrightstown.

The boy was a nephew of Joseph Vander Heiden, at whose farm a barn was destroyed by fire Tuesday morning. The fire had been at the intersection of Farrell Road and County Trunk JJ, two miles south of the accident scene.

David A. Posey, 24, Dallas, died in a Bloomer hospital Wednesday of injuries received in a Sept. 29 accident, in which the panel truck he was riding in and a car collided on U.S. 53 south of New Auburn. Four others died in that crash.

The two deaths raised the state's 1973 traffic toll to 871, compared with 908 one year ago.

Outagamie refuses to back waste plan

BY BILL KNUTSON
Post-Crescent staff writer

An attempt to get Outagamie County to endorse state takeover of solid waste disposal failed after an emotional exchange on the county board floor Wednesday.

Supv. Eugene Kloes of Appleton asked for support of a Senate bill being debated in Madison today that would create a state solid waste recycling authority.

Wisconsin is a leader in solid waste disposal and a vote against his proposal "is a vote against progress," Kloes admonished supervisors.

But, by a 22-15 vote, supervisors agreed with Supv. Norman Austin of Appleton, who said the board was not sufficiently informed about the issue to vote on Kloes' proposal. Austin had the matter tabled for 30 days.

Afternoon debate followed a lengthy morning presentation to the board by Arloe Paul, retired president of Allen Bradley Co. and vice chairman of the Governor's Task Force on Recycling.

The state would be divided into regions for implementing the waste recycling program. Fond du Lac, Outagamie and Winnebago counties would form the initial region.

Paul asked to appear before the board after opposition to the state controlled program developed in Fond du Lac and Winnebago counties.

Supervisors, including Board Chairman Russell DeLaHunt, were upset because Outagamie County, which has worked two years on development of its own solid waste disposal program, would see its soon-to-be-constructed shredder system taken over by the state.

"We're a little chagrined," said Supv. Ted LaPin of Appleton, that after we sign a contract and break ground the state comes along and tries to claim eminent domain on our shredder."

It "completely usurps the powers of the county," said Supv. Gene Retzlaff of Hortonville, who told the board he was told by State Rep. Ervin Conradt of Shiocton that the recycling bill stood little chance of passage.

Several supervisors indicated they would be in Madison today when the bill is debated.

The state already has taken over the school sytem, is about to take over social services and probably is eyeing police services, Retzlaff complained.

Most of the support for the state program came from die-hard opponents of the county's plan to construct a hammermill shredder in Appleton's Northeast Industrial Park.

Supv. Fred Ruth [illegible] of Appleton [illegible] the opportunity [illegible] at the county board's [illegible] committee which has spearheaded development of the local waste disposal plan.

"The committee is running scared. They went hog-wild [illegible] of the b[illegible] going on in this county. I think you're in a muddle."

Rehfeldt complimented Paul and his task force for doing a good job.

Supv. Charles Wussow of Appleton said it was impractical for a small community to go into its own recycling program.

"It's like bailing water out of the ocean with a small pail," Wussow remarked.

Supv. Herman Ripp of Appleton thought Outagamie County "should team up with the state and get the show on the road."

DeLaHunt told supervisors that Fox Valley chambers of commerce will meet Friday to discuss the state recycling bill.

Paul said the county's efforts in solid waste disposal would not be wasted if the state plan is realized.

The county's shredder would fit into the program with the state either buying or leasing it from the county.

Brillion council okays downtown boundaries of redevelopment plan

BRILLION — Downtown renewal took a major step forward Monday as the Common Council accepted the redevelopment area set forth in a plan submitted by Max Anderson Associates of Madison.

The plan was recommended by the city redevelopment authority after it gained the Citizens Advisory Committee's unanimous approval last week.

The boundaries set are Trier and Oak streets on the north, Jackson to the south, Custer extended to the west and a new street approximately 200 feet to the east and parallel to Main Street.

A six-month freeze on the redevelopment area, part of the enabling resolution, prevents any type of construction not compatible with the plan. The freeze can be renewed at the end of six months. First reading of the resolution was waived to allow immediate action.

Authority Chairman Thomas Lopina presented a chronological check list of statutory requirements to be met in adopting a renewal plan. Lopina also distributed a report prepared by Anderson on existing land use and the economy and reviewed the four-phase development proposal.

A request for payment from Anderson of $2,000 was approved. The balance on the planning contract is payable when all research reports and implementation plans are completed.

Bid accepted at Weyauwega

WEYAUWEGA — The City Council has accepted the bid of Pleshek Heating and Appliance to install a new gas heater at pumphouse No. 1. The $425 bid includes complete installation with state approved heating plans. Other bids were received from Fremont Plumbing and Heating and Weyauwega Plumbing and Heating.

Assistant disposal plant operator Charles Sherburne reported on his trip to LaCrosse where he attended the wastewater treatment operators' convention where water pollution, plant operations, sludge disposal laboratory techniques and solving problems that occur in disposal plants were discussed.

Study OK'd on youth activities

CLINTONVILLE — The United Fund of Clintonville and Vicinity has allocated $240 of the this year's budget for feasibility studies into a new program — Clintonville Youth Activities.

The admissions and budget committee searches for organizations which provide assistance to the youth and senior citizens of the city, believing that youth activity programs are urgently needed.

Earl J. Carlson, parks and recreation director, in the application for funds said, "The Clintonville Youth Center is presently in a state of flux. By this I mean that our experience indicates a need for youth recreation more akin to a YMCA operation rather than our present passive recreation facility. We need to have some sort of weekend entertainment for elementary-aged students and would appreciate any funds whatever to be used to show movies (cartoons and Disney movies) at our present facility on Sunday afternoons."

Carlson further indicated that funding would establish a program that would not be possible without United Fund's assistance.

The general goals of such a program will be to provide wholesome and meaningful recreational possibilities for all students in the school district without cost to the youngsters.

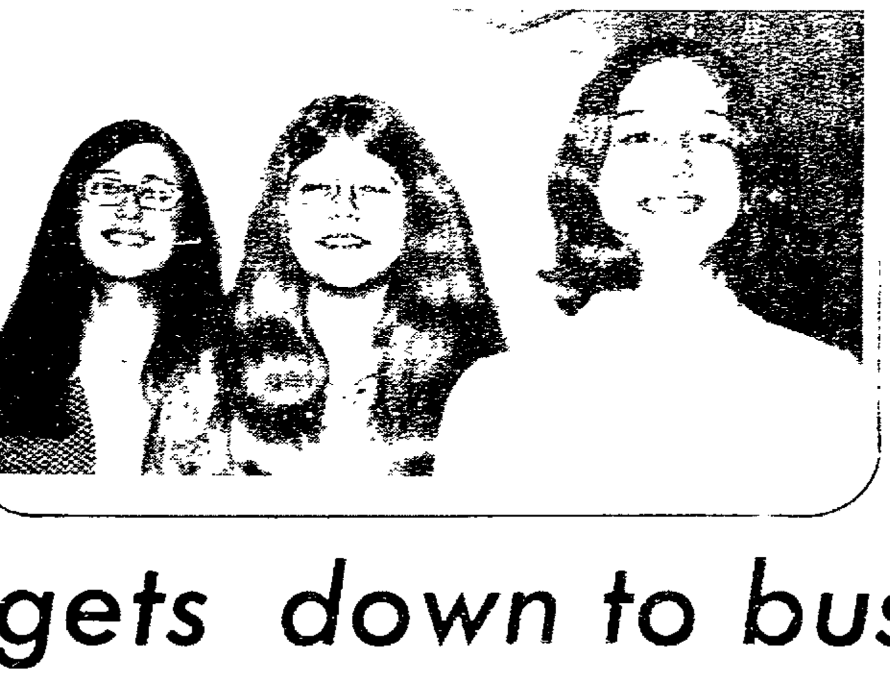

The local American Field Service will receive $540 which is 2.5 per cent of this year's United Fund goal. The objective of this program is for the foreign student to bring something of his homeland into the community and in turn take home a picture of life in a northern Wisconsin community.

In analyzing United Fund support in comparable communities, the admissions and budget committee found that the average amount allocated by other communities was considerably less than that [illegible] in the past years and that AFS was primarily supported by business and educational organizations.

Waupaca board studies school traffic problems

WAUPACA — The board of education is ready to take a new look at solutions for traffic safety problems at and around the new high school.

Police Chief Fred Rasmussen pointed out in a recent letter that brush clearing, signing and cleaning up at Churchill Street and Riverside Drive had made some improvements, but not enough. He urged that other improvements be made. The board will consider alternatives and consult with the board of public works.

Rasmussen proposed the installation of curb and gutter and sidewalk on one side of Riverside Drive and the cutting of more brush on public and private property along Riverside Drive from Churchill to the high school entrance. He pointed out that careful policing of this area could not assure that pedestrian accidents would be prevented.

The school district owns the road from Riverside Drive to the new school and parking lot. Any improvement of this road would be a direct cost to the school district.

The matter was referred to the board's buildings and grounds committee for consideration with the request that proposals be developed for presentation at the November board meeting.

Informally discussing some of the ramifications, it was pointed out that the ideal solution would be to provide a one-way entrance and a one-way exit to the school grounds. This could mean another attempt by the board to acquire access off Churchill Street. The north entrance to the school property off the recently improved Harding Street earlier was designated by the board as a service road.

The board would petition the city for the improvements it deems necessary for safety.

Public Works Director Walter Hein said Wednesday, "The door is open for discussion." The residents on Riverside Drive from Churchhill to the school entrance have petitioned the city that that stretch of road be maintained as a rural-type street, he said. They do not want to pay for the installation of curb and gutter and sidewalk, he added.

There is a 60-foot right-of-way but for the city to condemn it and force a special assessment on the property owners for the improvement to meet the school's needs would be difficult, Hein said.

With the impending rerouting of State 22 and 54 along Churchill Street from the U.S. 10 Beltline to Royalton Street, it is likely that the school district will request a sidewalk on one side of Churchill from Royalton to Riverside Drive as a safety factor. Now high school students walking to school are using the roadway or walking on private property.

Hein said a sidewalk on the east side of Churchill would be more feasible.

Assist. Supt. Carl Strassburg asked the board to change the dates of the first in-service meeting on modular scheduling from Oct. 26 and 27 to Oct. 25 and 26 to assure that the workshop be fully attended by the teachers.

It will cost the board of education an additional $170 to bring the two consultants here for Thursday and Friday, rather than Friday and Saturday. The board approved the change unanimously. Originally, the teachers were asked to give a Saturday, voluntarily, for the workshop session.

Supt. Len Brittelli advised the board that he had been informed by the Wisconsin Physicians Service that a premium raise will go into effect soon. He was told that for every $100 collected from the teachers and other school employes, $134 has been paid out by WPS. "While the increased rate has not been set, I was told that we could on an increase of from 20 to 30 per cent," Brittelli said.

Al Niemi, project manager for John Flad and Associates, architect for the new high school, told the board that most contracts on the building are completed and that the five per cent retaining payment continues until satisfactory completion of the work.

"While the architect's projected cost on contracts has been used on a few contracts because the work is not complete, we find that the actual cost of the high school building was $1,760,751, which represents a net savings of $11,791. The budget for the building set at the time of the referendum was $1,772,542," he said.

A list of omissions and deficiencies attached to the certificate of substantial completion, approved by the board and Flad and Associates, has been 50 per cent completed. Those remaining, substantially, are waiting for material items but should be completed by the end of this month.

Russuell Lowe, high school sophomore, represented the student council at the board meeting. After thanking the board for including student representation on the new board-administration-student advisory council, Lowe asked about the merit plan. "What is your stand on the merit plan and why have you limited it to juniors and seniors?" he asked.

"Because of certain disappointments

No agreement yet on Waupaca teacher talks

WAUPACA — No agreements had been reached when the fifth mediation session ended after 3 a.m. Thursday between the Waupaca Teachers Association and the Waupaca Unified School District. Negotiations will resume at 9:30 a.m. Saturday.

"I am hopeful that additional bargaining sessions will bring the parties to a settlement," said John Gusmer, board chairman. "The board is ready and willing to work towards that end."

Intensive bargaining is what the teachers have been seeking since April, when it became evident that teachers would begin the 1973-74 school year without a new master contract, according to Association spokesmen.

Waupaca teachers made public appeals by 1,500 flyers circulated Tuesday and through informational picketing Wednesday morning.

A leaflet campaign initiated by the teachers seeking public support for their position apparently has had little effect. It urged attendance at Tuesday night's meeting but of the 43 persons who showed up, most were teachers.

Reportedly, as a result of the flyers, school board members received 49 calls between 5 and 7 p.m. Tuesday. All of those calls reportedly supported the board's handling of the bargaining to date.

The flyers, circulated by teachers, stated the current position of bargaining and urged district residents to call the board and express their views.

Club will sponsor 'stop thief'

NEW LONDON — The local Woman's Club voted at at recent meeting to sponsor "Operation Stop Thief" in the community.

Marian Snyder, club program chairman and president of the New London United Fund, showed slides on the activities that benefit from contributions to the agency.

Mrs. Hope Neidling of Stevens Point presented the program on "Meals on Wheels," a project that provides one hot meal a day for elderly residents. The meals are served at a central location or delivered to homes.

Unified board gets down to business

BY FERN SMITH
Post-Crescent staff writer

CLINTONVILLE — The unified board of Shawano and Waupaca counties Wednesday took its first look at program and budget responsibilities to provide services for the mentally ill, the mentally retarded and the alcoholic and drug user in the two-county area.

During its 2 1/2-hour organizational meeting, it also elected officers, appointed a program director and named a planning committee.

In the race to meet the Jan. 1 deadline for 60 per cent state funding and 40 per cent local funding for 1974, members of the 11-man board felt they made substantial progress.

The philosophy guiding all future board action will be to purchase services from existing agencies in both counties wherever possible and practical. The intent is to encourage the perpetuation of existing boards in the areas. A decision will be made by the board soon as to whether to draw all existing services into one agency in a coordinated plan, or to set itself up as a unified health agency and contract for all services.

As program director, the board elected Paul Neja, 40, administrator and chief psychiatric social worker of the Wolf River Mental Health Clinic since 1969. He will be responsible for setting up and administering approved programs, formulating one-year and long-range programs confirming to state guidelines, submitting an annual budget for approval by the unified board, each of the county boards, the Lake Winnebago and Lake Michigan comprehensive health planning councils and the state Division of Mental Hygiene.

Neja was hired on a 3 1/2-year contract at an annual salary of $25,5[illegible]. He received his degree in philosophy from St. Norbert College, De Pere, and his master's degree in social work from the University of Wisconsin-Madison. He brings to the position a wide range of experience in group development, evaluation of severly disturbed and damaged children, group therapy, counseling individuals and families and planning for the mentally disturbed, mentally retarded and alcoholics and their families.

Woodrow Smith, Clintonville, chairman of the Waupaca County Board, was elected chairman. Dr. Patricia Stuff, Bonduel, board member of the Wolf River Mental Health Clinic, Shawano, was elected vice president. Fred Krueger, Shawano, member of the Shawano County Board and chairman of the Disability Board, was elected secretary. Lloyd Matheson, Waupaca, board member of the Wolf River Mental Health Clinic and the Waupaca County Association for the Mentally Retarded, was elected treasurer.

Smith appointed three members of the unified board — Stuff, John Kafka, Clintonville, and Del Wiley, Shawano, to represent mental health, mental disabilities and alcoholism and drug abuse, respectively, to a nine-member planning committee. Consumers appointed in the disabilities areas are Ms. Virginia Harvey, Shawano, mental health; Otto Rusch, Waupaca, alcoholism and drug abuse, and Mrs. Gordon Meiklejohn, New London, mental disabilities.

Two additional appointments will be made next week from among the members of the two comprehensive health planning council directors. George Verhoven, consultant for the state Division of Mental Health, Green Bay, will be the ninth member of the planning committee.

The unified board will meet Tuesday at Clintonville Community Hospital to plan an interim program to Jan. 1, 1974, a 10-point program plan for 1974 and a long-range plan. It will be assisted in this planning by Kary Hyre, special consultant from the state Division of Mental Hygiene, Madison.

Sewage problems spark Calumet meeting petition

CHILTON — A petition signed by 277 Calumet County residents and delivered to County Clerk Donald Schwobe requests a public meeting to discuss problems being encountered by those building in rural areas.

About two-thirds of the signatures are by persons living in areas where septic tank problems have been experienced; a fourth of the signatures come from the Brillion Marsh area.

Planner Roland Tonn explained to the planning and zoning committee that the state health department officials visited several sites in question and one permit was issued where previously it had been denied. On one site, a holding tank had been requested and the permit granted over objections of the town. However, the planning department met with the town officials and explained that use of a holding tank for sewage was the only way the property owner could build. His property had not measured up to the septic tank standards for percolation tests. Tonn also explained that, though the state does not generally approve of holding tanks, in some cases this is the only alternative. When this is true, the permits are granted.

Tonn said that current state codes on disposal is that this code of sewage was enacted in 1964. "Our enforcement started in 1972 with the employment of DuWane Klessig (code administrator), doing on-sight investigations." This is a transistional period for many persons in meeting the new standards regulating the environment. "Sure," he said, "the property owner may feel that restricting his rights to build on his land is against his constitutional rights, but it is against the law to run the sewage in the ditch."

One other problem cited by Tonn, is that many septic tanks were installed before code enforcement at sites that are only now defined as unsuitable. These systems often malfunction and pollute surface and ground waters. Also, sites that pass the present health code regulations may lose their percolative capacity because of crusting on the infiltrative surfaces in the seepage bed. Crusts are formed by the accumulation of solids from sewage or by the organic matter produced by bacterial growth in the upper few inches of the soil below the bed.

A brochure is expected to be prepared by the planning department about building in rural areas and what should be done and investigated before property is purchased for building.

Tonn also noted that a recent map of Wisconsin showed that only a small area in Calumet County, near New Holstein, is for conventional septic tank systems.

No action on the petition came from the committee, as it must first follow the proper channels through the county board.

Most committee members think it is just a matter of educating the people to the codes, or else have the state change them. The code is part of a five-step agreement in pollution control in the Great Lakes Region area.

In line with the solving of some of the problems with the septic permits, the committee authorized the resolution supporting Assembly Bill 509 directing the Wisconsin Department of Health and Social Services to establish an examining and certification program for soil testers and providing that after July, 1974, no person may test the soil for its ability to accept the disposal of liquid domestic wastes unless he holds a certificate issued by the department. Amendment No. 1 also requires certification of any person engaged in review, an evaluation and approval of soil borings and percolation tests. The resolution will be presented to the county board for adoption and sent to state Rep. Gervase Hephner, D-Chilton, and Sen. T. Petri, R-Fond du Lac.

Keeping posted

CHILTON — The Joan of Arc Circle, Daughters of Isabella, will meet Tuesday evening in St. Mary's Church Hall.

CLINTONVILLE — The Tilleson-Strehlow-Klitz Post of the American Legion will meet at 8 p.m. today in the Veterans Memorial Building.

Preschool story hour to start at Clintonville

CLINTONVILLE — A six-week story hour program for four- and five-year-old preschoolers will begin Oct. 23 at the Finney Public Library. The program will run from 10 to 10:45 a.m. on consecutive Tuesdays.

The program is open to only 20 children, due to limited space. Registration may be made by calling the library.

The library will be closed Oct. 18 to allow library personnel to attend a state convention in Green Bay.

Woman in fair condition after auto accident

CHILTON — An 18-year-old New Holstein woman is in fair condition today at Calumet Memorial Hospital here after she was trapped in her car for nearly 2 1/2 hours Wednesday evening after her auto crashed in a deserted area.

Cindy L. Blaylock, route 2, New Holstein, was traveling north on Mill Road about one-tenth mile south of U.S. 151 near the feed mill at Hayton about 4 p.m. when she lost control of her car. The auto skidded sideways, went through a ditch and came to rest in a small wooded area out of sight of motorists.

Miss Blaylock was immobilized in her car with a broken leg and multiple contusions. She was found at 6:30 p.m. after the lights of her car and the sound of her horn attracted a nearby farmer.

Miss Blaylock had to be pried from her car by traffic police and ambulance attendants and then was taken to the hospital.

Roping, barrel race scheduled Sunday at Manawa rodeo grounds

MANAWA — A Roping and Barrel Race will be sponsored by Trail-Et, Inc. Sunday at the Midwestern Rodeo Grounds starting at noon.

Five events with a $200 purse plus entry fees is featured in opening roping, novice roping, ribbon roping, girl's barrel race and girl's goat tying.

This first annual event will also feature a calf riding contest open to boys and girls 12 years and under. Bill Nolan of Bonduel is sponsoring the event which has a $50 purse. There is no entry fee for the special event.

The public is invited to attend this contest. Refreshments will be available on the grounds from the Manawa Jaycees.

Nursing assistants given service training awards

WAUPACA — Thirty nursing assistants received awards Tuesday for completing 120 hours of in-service training at Bethany Home.

The program included class work, return performance and return evaluation tests. The program was presented by Mrs. Susan Farrell, RN and Mrs. Marjorie Panzenhagen, RN, certified instructors, and Dorothy Wroblewski, RN, Bethan director of nursing.

In congratualting the nursing assistants, Robert Larson, administrator, noted that through the years the 30 assistants had provided an average of 5.3 years work in nursing service. "I hope that completion of this course will provide a challenge to each of you to consider further training in your specialized field." he commented. "Fine courses will be available to you in this community through the Fox Valley Technical institute and we encourage you to take advantage of these opportunities."

Certificates were issued to Ruby Anderson, June Dietz, Delores Doede, Arlene Ecklund, Virgule Farley, Janice Friday, Freda Grunwald, Rebecca Hamm, Doris Hooey, Norma Klapper, Mildred Knutson, Kathryn Lewis, Doreen Marquard, Joyce Mihne, Jo Peterson, Elizabeth Quimby, Lois Ravey, Faye Somers, Alma Waller, Germaine Wilke and Marjorie Williams, all of Waupaca;

Bernice Kropidlowske and Hedwig Kropidlowski, Almond; Matilda Novak, Amherst; Iris Draeger, Manawa; Carla Leppen and Esther Wendler, Nelsonville, and Florence Griena and Bertha Nelson, Scandinavia.

A recognition tea was given by the Bethany Home Employes Club. Mrs. Virginia Laedtke, RN, president; Mrs. Lyman Johnson, resident council president, and Mrs. Joyce Olson, LPN, tea chairman, expressed gratitude to the nursing assistants for the contributions they have made through the years to the home's residents.

Parents Night Friday at Hilbert grid game

HILBERT — Parents Night will be observed Friday when the Wolves battle the Brillion Lions at 8 p.m. in the last home game of the football season.

Parents of the players and cheerleaders will be introduced at half-time and refreshments will be served after the game.

Snow removal, repair bids OK'd at Manawa

MANAWA —Contracts were awarded to Hass Excavating for snow removal and Gerhard Handrich for repairs of the teacherage at Tuesday's board of education meeting of the Little Wolf School District.

Three bids for snow removal were received and read with Hass submitting the low bid of $13.50 per hour. Handrich's bid for repairs on the district-owned house was accepted for $485.

The Title II project application and letter of assurance for a special project for the instructional materials center of the Manawa Elementary School also was approved. Approval of the project provides that the equipment for the materials will be provided by the school district if the application is accepted as a special project for libraries

The school board granted a request from Harry Goetz, high school principal, to hire a study hall supervisor for the high school. Goetz has been supervising the study halls to allow faculty members to work with the independent learning approach developing with the modular scheduling which went into effect this fall. The action was taken on the premise that more time can be spent by teachers on independent learning with students.

In other action the school board:

—Awarded a hot lunch contract to Mrs. Vickie Suehs as a baker in the school lunch program.

—Tabled until next year the idea for a storage building presented by the high school students at the September meeting.

—Approved the recommendations of the administration and legal counsel to allow students to attend school on a tuition-free basis only if their requests were within the limitations allowed by state statutes in regards to tuition.

—Learned that Wisconsin Power and Light Co. has applied for an 8 per cent rate increase which would cause an increase to the school district of about $2,500.

—Heard a report from Dr. Robert G. Ames, superintendent of Schools, concerning the work that was left to do by the contractors and explained those items not completed. He also informed the school board that all playground equipment has been installed

Woman asks village to wipe out rat problem

HILBERT — Complaints of an abundance of rats in the community were aired by Mrs. Clarence Hanold Tuesday night at the village board meeting.

The rodents are particularly abundant in the area along State 114, although she claimed they were prevalent in other areas, noting that some people "are afraid to go out at night because of the rats." She requested the village to hire an exterminator, adding that she feared children would be bitten and that the animals might have rabies.

Orville Manz, village president, said he believed rats, raccoons and skunks were abundant this year and appreciated Mrs. Hanold's situation as her home is at the edge of a swampy area with long grass. All complaints the village has received about rats have come from that area of the village, Manz said. He felt other residents bothered by rats could easily dispose of them quietly with a little poison.

Mrs. Hanold said she felt many people were troubled by rats but were afraid to speak out.

The board agreed that the weeds and long grass would be burned by the local fire department just as soon as conditions were favorable. Persons in Chilton owning property in the area would be billed for the work.

Outagamie code of ethics sought

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent staff writer

The judge conducting the John Doe probe in Outagamie County today expressed grave concerns about certain county board committee favor receiving and county failure to comply with bid procedures and called for a code of ethics to be established.

In a statement released at an unusual press conference, acting Circuit Court Judge R. Thomas Cane stated: "It is recommended that the Outagamie County Board adopt a code of ethics prohibiting its employes and elected officials from accepting any gifts or favors from individuals who are doing business with or requesting in any manner to do business with Outagamie County."

He said the code, among other things, should prohibit county officials and employes from accepting gratuities for doing their job, and if they do, they should be punished.

Cane, who has been receiving secret testimony since last July on several subjects, said he didn't believe that there had been criminal activity involved, but he feared the favor-receiving could lead to such activity and should be stopped immediately.

He declined to identify the committee. However, it was learned some time ago the county board highway committee was the subject of a portion of the probe.

County Executive Alvin Woehler said he believed the judge was referring to the highway committee. "It sounds like that committee," he said.

Woehler said he concurred with the idea of a code of ethics and would pursue the matter.

Cane stated that the court found "a certain committee...has practiced for some time the acceptance of free lunches, dinners and drinks at the expense of various salesmen who are attempting to sell property to the county."

He added: "The court is satisfied from the evidence presented there were no salesmen who received any advantage over the other with the county since the salesmen were expected to equally share the costs. However, I find this practice reprehensible since it could easily lead to abuse and a public officer or employe is not expected to receive any such personal hidden rewards by virtue of his office."

The judge also stated that the court found that the county "has failed on numerous occasions to comply with Section 59.08 of the Wisconsin Statutes which requires the county to submit for competitive bids any contracts for construction, repairs, remodeling or improvement of any public work, building or furnishing of supplies or material of any kind where the estimated costs will exceed the sum of $1,000."

Cane added he didn't believe there were any "hidden motives" or excessive costs resulting. "I am satisfied in the future there will be compliance with this statute," he said.

Cane said he and Dist. Atty. John Ensley were making the statement — which he termed a rare practice after a Doe probe — "in the interest of justice and good government."

"We are both relieved that our county government is free of any corruption or impropriety other than what has been cited and believe that the people have a right to know this," he said.

The statement included announcement of the planned filing of criminal charges against Eugene Speener, health center superintendent, for three counts of misconduct in office.

Woehler said he would seek to have Cane, Ensley, Corp. Counsel William Schuh and himself sit down and draft a preliminary code to be brought before the county board for consideration.

Woehler said he believed the code should and would be implemented in the county.

However, he withheld his agreement with Cane's contention that illegal purchasing practices were being used in the county. He said the corporation counsel had issued a legal opinion some time ago that the practice was legal.

"If this is an area for discussion," he added, "I'm certain we would invite the judge and DA to sit down with us and resolve it in total. But I am not agreeing that this was a violation, at this point."

Woehler said the practice was used by county board committees, and the board approved the minutes of the committees.

Woehler declined to comment on the value of the Doe. He had questioned its value during the early stages, although he publicly said he would cooperate. He also unsuccessfully attempted to have the probe transferred to a judge from outside the county.

The Doe, which commenced in mid-July after a series of articles about health center activities in The Post-Crescent and subsequent complaints by certain county board supervisors, reached into at least four areas, including the health center, the highway committee purchasing, voucher control questions from the county clerk and alleged union leadership misconduct in Operating Engineers Local 139. The nature of a Doe is that it can be reconvened at any time when a complaint appears to have merit, and it can probe any area within the jurisdiction of the officials conducting it.

with last year's merit plan, after staff review, certain parts were dropped," Pres. Everett Anderson responded. "It will be reviewed before the opening of the second semester.

The administration will consider the inclusion of sophomores the second semester but feels that freshmen benefit from full time in school to get oriented and devote proper time to study.

The student council asked the board to consider a smoking area for students in the new high school, or a designated area on the school grounds. "We do not have an answer from the state on the legality of this request, but feel it would be an improvement," Lowe said.

Police & fire

KAUKAUNA — Harvey Cornelius, 27, 135 W. Second St., was taken by police to Kaukauna Community Hopsital for treatment of a head cut suffered in a tavern scuffle about 8:30 p.m. Saturday.

According to police, Cornelius started arguing with a friend and was hit by a bottle when a fight ensued. Neither Cornelius nor the other party would press charges.

Adult foster care homes okayed as alternative to nursing homes

Some elderly persons in Outagamie County who might otherwise go to nursing homes will soon be able to live with foster families.

The county's Board of Social Services this week gave unanimous approval to the adult foster care concept and approved a rate structure.

The minimum care rate paid to the foster family will be $130 a month. Moderate care payments will be $150 and maximum care will be $175.

County Welfare Director James E. Stampp urged approval of the proposal, calling it "a meaningful step between total independence and total dependence."

Adult foster care homes are desirable alternatives to nursing homes for many people, Stampp explained, at about half the cost.

Nursing home care, while financed mostly with state and federal monies, is the most expensive program administered through his department, Stampp said.

Some people already in nursing homes could be placed in the foster care homes, he explained. He guessed that 20 persons could be in such homes within a year.

The program will start slowly, he believed, because of the time involved in recruiting foster families. Public interest in caring for elderly people full-time is not as great as it is with caring for children, Stampp related.

Program administration will require the services of a full-time welfare department staff member, Stampp said, but he believed he could absorb the additional workload with his present, authorized personnel.

Lt. Gov. Martin Schreiber has been critical of the state's overabundance of nursing home beds, but Stampp said Outagamie County doesn't have enough. That, he related, is largely why he considers it important to start the foster care program now.

There has been "tremendous state and federal pressure" to move on alternate care, Stampp said.

Winnebago County, which has about 50 adult foster care homes, is a leader in the state, he added.

Municipal audit will be decided

HARRISON — A special meeting to ascertain whether electors want a municipal audit was authorized by the town board Wednesday night.

The meeting will be the week of Nov. 12, with a definite date established after consulting with the town attorney, Robert Lutz, Chilton.

A petition with 33 signatures asking that the town records be audited was first presented to the board last June by Mrs. Donald Zobel, route 1, Menasha. Since then she has presented several other requests, pointing out errors in the last two annual financial statements. Mrs. Zobel has stressed that she is not accusing town officials of wrong-doing, but feels financial procedures should be up-dated and better record keeping methods established.

The town board has repeatedly put off authorizing an audit because it felt the cost of $500 to $1,000 was too much.

Voters will have the opportunity to express their views at the special meeting. However, only matters pertaining to a municipal audit can be taken up at the meeting.

Gifts presented by Jaycettes

NEW LONDON — The Jaycettes have voted to donate a padded rocking chair to the pediatric ward at New London Community Hospital and a dart board and darts to the residents of Franklin Park Apartments.

The club will sponsor a "mini-Halloween parade" for the residents of St. Joseph Home, according to Mrs. Dave Kopp, project chairman. Jaycettes will bring their costumed children to the home at 5 p.m. Oct. 31 for a short parade through the dining area. Other interested children in the community also are invited. Apples will be given to the residents.

Assembly OKs jailing drunk drivers

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—No-fault auto insurance stalled Wednesday in the Assembly while legislators approved mandatory jail penalties for drunken motorists

Parliamentary maneuvering also delayed action on proposed changes in the Wisconsin unemployment compensation law

Wednesday's action by the Democratic-controlled Assembly included approval 59-40 of rules to limit debate, a measure which Republicans complained was designed to silence the minority party

Assemblymen forwarded to the Senate 76-22 a mandatory two-day jail sentence for persons convicted of drunken driving, a penalty which had been on the books temporarily in the 1960s

The penalty was promoted by Republican Kenneth Merkel of Brookfield and Democrat Martin Schneider of Wisconsin Rapids at the request of the state traffic safety coordinator John Radcliffe

At the request of Rep Paul Sicula, the Assembly voted 67-32 to submit no-fault insurance to a legal review whose timetable could prevent Assembly action this session

Sicula, a Milwaukee lawyer and chairman of the Assembly's Insurance and Banking Committee, asked that the nofault issue be sent to Republican Atty Gen Robert W Warren for an opinion on its constitutionality

Sicula's resolution requests no reply from Warren before Dec 1. The legislature hopes to adjourn by the end of October, but the resolution was approved nevertheless 67-33.

It applies to all the no-fault plans before the Assembly, most of which are designed to assure accident victims of swift financial assistance without waiting for lawyers to fix blame for an accident

The bill containing changes in the jobless compensation law received preliminary approval 76-23 Wednesday, then was delayed on a reconsideration motion

The maneuver allowed union lobbyists extra time to press for elimination of the law's one-week waiting provision

The law requires a week of unemployment before a jobless person is eligible for compensation, a provision intended to discourage frivolous strikes.

The United Auto Workers, without appreciable backing from the AFL-CIO, demanded the one-week rule be eliminated.

The Wisconsin Manufacturers Association said elimination of the rule could cost employers about $13 million by 1975

Association spokesman Kenneth Priebe said it was manufacturing's chief objection to the bill

Assemblymen voted 50-47 to preserve the one-week rule. Then their leaders moved for reconsideration despite indications they had adequate voting momentum to get the compensation bill approved

CATV rules compromise is proposed

MADISON, Wis (AP) —The Wisconsin Assembly was handed a compromise proposal Wednesday for state regulation of cable television

The plan approved 6-4 by the Assembly's State Affairs Committee would make the industry subject to regulations of a division of the Public Service Commission

Telephone companies had said cable TV utilities, because of equipment which can transmit business matters, should be no less subject to PSC regulation than any other form of commercial communication

Other advocates of state regulation said some form of state agency should supervise the quality of the industry's programming, even if its uses privately franchised tranmission cables rather than traditionally public antenna methods

The cable TV industry has objected to state control. The measure endorsed by the State Affairs Committee proposes a moratorium on state agency supervision until July 1, 1975

The legislation, spokesmen said, contains a response to concerns of rural viewers who fear the industry's growth will be concentrated in lucrative urban areas without providing links to farm homes

The bill would allow the state agency to make franchise holders provide service to schools, government agencies and rural viewers.

Before service directives would become effective, however, franchise holders would be allowed hearings

They also could demand preliminary studies to assure them a service directive would not create excessive operating expense

Municipalities would handle the awarding of franchises, a provision designed to meet municipal hopes for collecting permit revenue.

Municipalities could use revenue bonds to help develop cable TV systems, a feature requested by the Wisconsin Electric Cooperatives Association.

The bill contains no provision for providing state subsidy for the industry, Democratic Rep. Edward Jackamonis of Waukesha said

Jackamonis, committee chairman, said his panel does not feel there is immediate justification for subsidizing TV cables in rural areas.

Having the regulatory agency serve as a PSC auxiliary does not have to be a permanent arrangement, he said.

The committee's package contains recommendations submitted to a series of public hearings and compiled by a state study commsision.

Religion no exemption from union dues, Senate decides

MADISON, Wis (AP) —The Wisconsin Senate rejected 16-13 Wednesday an effort by a religious group to exempt its members from involvement with labor unions

The bill would exempt those with religious objections to unions from joining unions or making "fair share" payments.

Fair share arrangements require non-union workers to pay the union the equivalent of union dues.

The bill was requested by the Wisconsin Conference of Seventh Day Adventists, which opposes involvement with unions.

One of the bill's authors, Sen James Swan, R-Elkhorn, indicated he would seek reconsideration of the rejection vote.

Several senators complained the bill was an attempt by antiunion lawmakers to undermine the union shop in Wisconsin.

Under the measure, workers with religious objections could divorce themselves from involvement with labor organizations and pay the equivalent of union dues to charity.

In other action, the senate debated a bill which would require that fetal death certificates list abortion as cause of death when applicable.

The measure is backed by anti-abortion lawmakers who claim the information is needed for gathering statistics on how many abortions are performed in Wisconsin.

"Abortion is murder—outright, legalized murder," said Sen Gerald Lorge, R-Bear Creek

"How can you have a death certificate without a birth certificate," Swan argued "This is the quintessense of trivia."

Swan said he has always opposed abortions, but thought the death certificate requirement would make little sense

The senate refused to kill the bill on a 17-12 vote and refused to table it on an 18-11 vote. But the measure was temporarily laid aside after procedural questions were raised on an amendment

The upper house gave final legislative approval to a bill which would allow the state Department of Health and Social Services to contract with organizations for administration of medical assistance payments

The department is now allowed to contract with only specified nonprofit groups or licensed insurance agencies

Proponents have claimed the bill is supposed to give the department greater flexibility in administering the medical assistance program

The Senate approved 28-0 two bills designed to aid Indians in Menominee County.

One measure provides that the state will pay those costs of the county's health care program when costs exceed a rate of $5 over $10,000 of county equalized valuation It was estimated the package would cost the state $54,300 in the next two years.

The other bill expands the definition of needy Indians by dropping the stipulation that they live on tax free lands to be eligible for relief That bill is expected to cost the state $78,000 in the current biennium.

Senators voted 16-13 to revive a measure involving a new statewide system of probate court commissioners

The Senate Tuesday indefinitely postponed a bill to create a probate court commissioner in Dane County. It was revived, however, when Sen Henry Dorman, D-Racine, said he would amend it to make it apply to all 72 counties.

The measure was referred to the Judiciary and Insurance Committee.

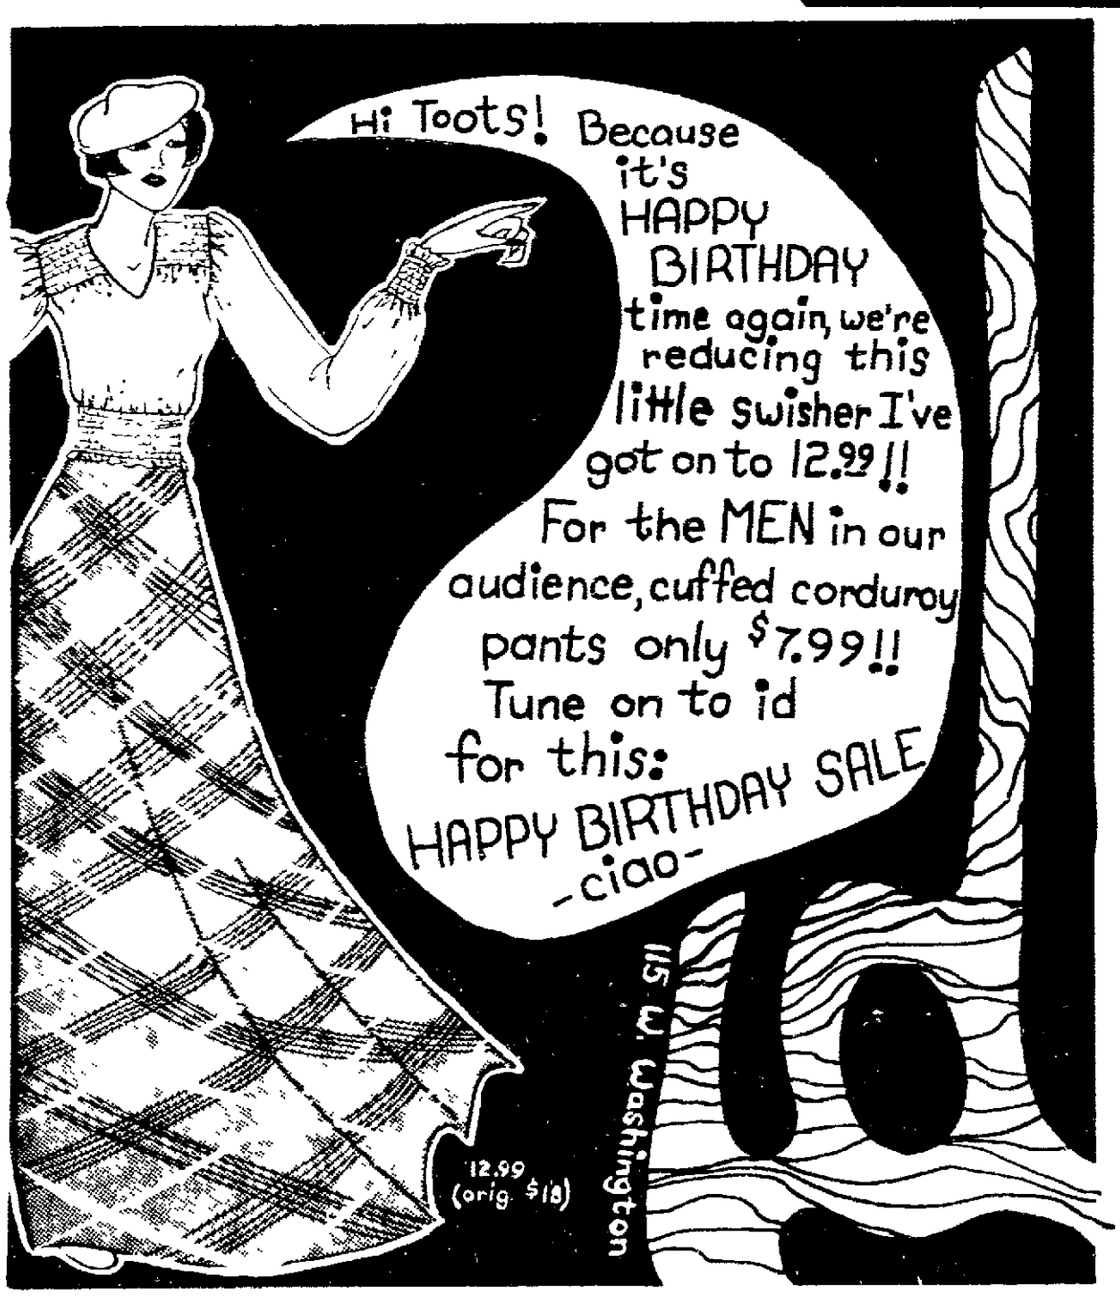

Discussion slated on special education and effects of new law

A panel discussion on special education, especially, as it is affected by the new law providing consideration for everyone between 3-21, has been planned for 7:30 p.m. tonight by the Parents' Group on Learning Disabilities. It will be at McKinley School.

The panel will discuss mandatory education laws for children with exceptional needs and will answer questions

Panelists are John Freehill, director of special education for the Appleton Public Schools; Gary Griffin, who is with the Fox Valley Association for Children with Learning Disabilities, and Mrs Donna Van Stippen, a mother and a member of the Outagamie Association for Retarded Children.
